Breaks tradition before nomination

Reagan surprise: names V.P. choice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan said today he has selected U.S. Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his vice presidential running mate if he wins the Republican nomination for president.

Reagan said he knew he was breaking with tradition to announce his choice for a vice president in advance of the convention.

"Since I now feel that the people and the delegates have a right to know in advance of the convention who a nominee's vice presidential choice would be, I am today departing from tradition and announcing my selection," Reagan said in a news conference.

He refused to answer any questions and left immediately after reading a 350-word statement.

Reagan, a conservative challenger to President Ford, said that Schweiker, who has a more moderate image, is someone "whose basic beliefs (are) compatible with my own."

He described Schweiker as "a man of independent thought and action, with a background in business and 16 years in public service. He is respected by his colleagues but has not become a captive of what I call "the Washington buddy system.'"

Reagan did not mention in his prepared statement that Schweiker represents the state with the second-largest bloc of uncommitted delegates. Pennsylvania's 103-vote delegation stands 71-6 for Ford, with 25 uncommitted and one for Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

That 65-delegate margin in Pennsylvania represents slightly more than the entire nationwide delegate lead of 60 held by the President.

Reagan talked about Schweiker's qualifications for the vice presidency.

"He has an awareness of the shortcomings in our foreign policy and the domestic threat posed by continuing the present policies of inflationary deficit spending," the former California governor said.

"I have met with him and we have spent a considerable amount of time personally discussing the critical issues that face us today and the principles by which we would lead the nation," he said.

In the past week, spokesmen for both Reagan and President Ford have announced they were over the top in the delegate hunt.

James Baker, Ford's chief delegate hunter, announced that the President had 1,135 delegates, five more than the 1,130 needed for the nomination. Earlier, John Sears, Reagan's campaign director, announced Reagan had 1,140 delegates.

That means at least 16 — and possibly many more — of the 2,259 delegates to the Republican National Convention are being counted by both sides.

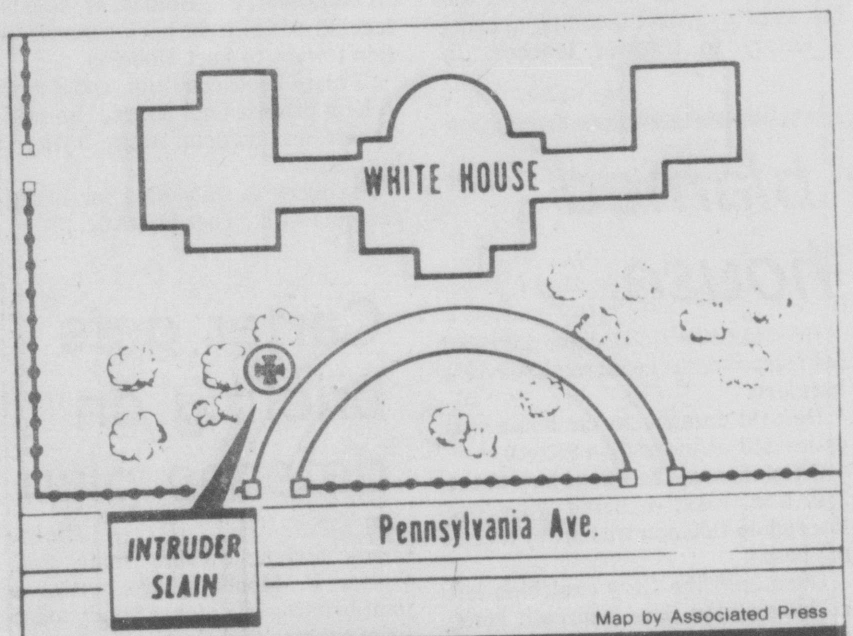
Slain W.H. intruder baffles police



Map pinpoints where the White House intruder was slain. He climbed the fence from Pennsylvania AVenue, a witness said.

Motive of pipe-wielding cabbie who leaped over fence unclear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authorities said today they are puzzled about what motiviated a cab driver who scaled a White House fence and threatened a guard with a three-foot pipe before being shot to death.

Washington police said the intruder, Chester M. Plummer, 30, raised the pipe "in a threatening manner" and ignored repeated orders of an Executive Protective Service guard to halt on the White House lawn Sunday night.

The guard, Pvt. Chales A. Garland, fired a single shot that hit Plummer in the upper left chest and felled him about 60 feet from the eight-foot fence he had scaled along Pennsylvania Avenue.

Plummer's name was not included on a list of about 38,000 persons considered a potential threat to government officials, said special agent Lewis McClam of the Secret Service. He said the agency is unaware of any grievance Plummer might have had against the government.

"We're trying to find out the purpose, the reasoning" of the incident, McClam said.

Plummer's father, Clarence M. Plummer Sr., identified his son's body at the hospital. Plummer told a reporter he was a District of Columbia government guard and said: "I don't know what happened."

A resident of an apartment house where Plummer lived for a time described him as a "loner" who was little known to others in the neighborhood.

The police said Plummer, a 30-year-old Washington cab driver, reportedly had a criminal record, but was not involved in any previous intrusions on the White House grounds.

A police sergeant said Plummer's motive was unknown. After talking with Plummer's parents, the sergeant said, "He never indicated to them he had any qualms with the President." Plummer, a bachelor, was estranged from his parents, he added.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner, asked whether the incident would cause any security changes at the White House, replied, "We constantly review our 'security procedures and find no problems with the outer perimeter at this time."

The White House recently installed crash-proof gates costing $550,000. A man crashed into the old gates in a car on Christmas Day 1974, and in February 1973 an AWOL soldier landed a helicopter on the White House lawn amid a hail of bullets from guards. Last November an unarmed intruder came within a few feet of Susan Ford, the President's daughter, on the first of his three illicit entries onto the grounds.

But no previous incident resulted in death or serious injury.

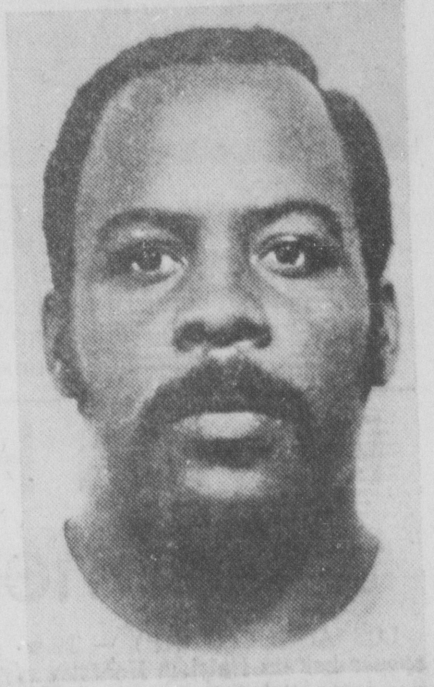
A dispatcher at the Red Top Cab Co. in Arlington, Va., where Plummer worked, said, "He was really a nice guy. He was quiet."

Plummer was shot several hundred feet from the White House, where President r second floor quarters. It was not known whether Ford heard the shot, but White House spokesmen say he was informed of the incident.

An ambulance squad tried to revive Plummer with heart massage on the White House lawn. He stopped breathing en route to George Washington Hospital, where efforts to revive him continued. He was pronounced dead at 11:05 p.m., about 90 minutes after the shooting.

Several women staging a summer-long vigil outside the White House for the Equal Rights Amendment said they noticed the man walking nervously around the White House area with the pipe in his hand for about 45 minutes before the shooting.

"He'd sit down, cross the street and come back, climb up on the rails and look in for a while and sit down," said Barbara Janifer, 18, of Seat Pleasant, Md., who was part of the vigil.



CHESTER M. PLUMMER

Another demonstrator, Judith Witherow, said, "Everytime he saw the police he would move."

A Secret Service official said, "The individual was observed earlier ... by EPS officers, but did not make any overt attempt at that time to arouse suspicion as to a possible penetration."

Plummer set off an alarm and was "immediately detected" by Garland and another officer when he scaled the fence, and Garland approached him alone, the official said.

Garland, 25, will be placed on administrative leave pending a routine grand jury investigation, the police said.

2 others believed involved in hijack, kidnaping of kids

CHOWCHILLA (AP) — As many as five persons may have been in on the kidnaping of a busload of Chowchilla school children, investigators say.

With one in jail and two more being sought, authorities said Sunday two more persons may be named in the nationwide manhunt to find the kidnapers.

"There has been some talk of a fourth and a fifth person being involved," a law enforcement source told The Associated Press. "But we haven't gotten far enough into the investigation to be sure."

Newspapers quoted investigators Sunday as saying a middle-aged man may have masterminded the elaborate July 15 kidnaping of 26 children and a bus driver.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates also said it seemed "logical" to assume at least four people were involved in the abduction. Noting the majority of the children were girls, Bates said the kidnaping gang might have included a woman to care for them.

Federal and local arrest warrants have been filed for Frederick N. Woods IV and James L. Schoenfeld, both 24. Woods' father owns the Livermore rock quarry where the children were held captive for 17 hours in a buried moving van before they managed to escape.

Schoenfeld's 22-year-old brother, Richard, surrendered Friday and is being held in the Alameda County Jail.

"We're definitely pursuing the possibility that there are other suspects in this case," an investigator told the San Francisco Examiner. "These others might be the brains behind the whole thing."

The Oakland Tribune quoted a source close to the investigation as saying there is "a possibility that an older male was involved in the kidnaping, and there are some good leads to back it up."

According to the victims, including 55-year-old bus driver Ed Ray, two of their captors were men in their 40s and 50s. Authorities have refused to explain the obvious discrepancies between the victims' descriptions and the youthful appearances of Woods and the Schoenfelds.

Richard Schoenfeld was visited by his parents and his attorney over the weekend.

"My client shows signs of being suicidal," attorney William Gagen said after a two-hour session with Schoenfeld Saturday. "He also fears that his brother...also might commit suicide."

Scientists cure arm ailment

Viking gets a free hand for tests

PASADENA (AP) — With Viking 1 back to almost-perfect health, scientists are preparing for this week's search for life on Mars — man's first scientific analysis of another planet's surface.

On Sunday, scientists unjammed the lander's sampling arm, in which a pin from a protective covering had become stuck for several days.

Now, with the arm unjammed, the experiment will take place according to schedule on Wednesday, the lander's eighth day on Mars, Viking Project Manager James Martin said Sunday.

The telescoping device is to reach out and scoop up 50 cubic centimeters of Martian soil — enough to fill a shot glass. The analysis of that soil is the key to Viking's search for life as well as its attempts to find out about the planet's evolution.

Unjamming the pin represented a major step toward a successful mission, but it did not remedy everything that has gone wrong with Viking 1. A seismometer to measure and locate marsquakes, the equivalent of earthquakes, was still out of operation after several attempts to repair it from earth.

"There's been no new word on the seismometer," Martin said, "and I frankly don't hold out much hope for success."

Scientists unjammed the pin by recreating the problem on an identical lander here and developing a command to free the pin.

There were several anxious hours between the issuing of the command and Viking's response. The craft finally sent back pictures showing the arm in the correct position, and then close-up shots of a small section of the red, rocky Martian surface.

There, the scientists spotted the pin and knew the arm was again in working order.

"We're heading right on forward," Martin said. "Everybody's very happy and excited."

"All of the (mission's) teams were very concerned about the pin," said engineer Ron Frank. "But it's in perfect health now."

On Sunday, after deciding to have the sampling done in a relatively smooth area less cluttered with sharp Martian rocks than the spot originally set for examination, scientists sent the command for the arm to conduct its soil collecting work on Wednesday. Whether it responds to the order will be known late that day.

Martin said he was "very excited" about Viking's chances for coming up with some proof of Martian life, chances he said were "greatly enhanced" by the craft's discovery of nitrogen in the atmosphere there in samples last week.

Nitrogen is one of the requirements for the existence of life as earthlings know it.

Martin said calculations based on the newest data received from the lander showed that the craft was only about 33 kilometers off the exact landing target when it touched down. Scientists were shooting for a landing anywhere within a 100by-140-kilometer oval.

Sea evacuation slated

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The United States today made plans for its second seaborne evacuation of Americans following the collapse of the latest of more than 50 cease-fires in the Lebanese civil war.

The helicopter carrier Iwo Jima and five other ships of a 6th Fleet task force were expected to move into place off the Lebanese coast to send one or more unarmed landing ships ashore Tuesday.

A total of 154 Americans and 281 persons of other nationalities registered with the U.S. Embassy last week for the evacuation. It was thought the number might increase because of the failure of the cease-fire attempt Sunday.

Plans for a road convoy to take the evacuees to Damascus, Syria, were cancelled because the embassy decided the trip would not be safe. The same thing happened in June, and the U.S. Navy removed 110 Americans and 157 other persons from the seafront on June 20.

Parts of valley hit by rare rain storm

A rare summer rain storm hit the western portion of the valley Sunday, but other areas got only a few drops.

The early afternoon rain measured .10 of an inch at Pomona's official weather station at Cal Poly, west of the city. The storm didn't move far across the Pomona city line, however, and The Progress Bulletin gauge downtown recorded no rain.

The weather station at Mt. San Antonio College reported .04 of an inch. La Verne and San Dimas also reported brief ranfalls.

More rain is on the way, at least in some parts of Southern California. It may not amount to a deluge, but the showers are predicted through Tuesday over a wide area of the mountains and desert regions.

There's also a chance of light showers in the coastal and intermediate valleys and Los Angeles and vicinity, forecasters said. In any case, skies are expected to be mostly cloudy through Tuesday. However, little change in temperatures is predicted.

Weather

Early morning cloudiness with hazy afternoon sunshine today and Tuesday. Possibility of scattered showers in the foothills. High today 85, low tonight 60, high Tuesday 87. The high Sunday was 85 and the overnight low was 63. The high Saturday was 93, and the overnight low was 59. Tuesday's sunrise 5:58, sunset 7:56.

Gasoline fire flares up

Chino father, two sons burned

A father and his two young sons suffered severe burns in a garage accident in Chino Sunday afternoon.

According to Chino fire officials, the father, Craig Johnson of 12949 12th St., was trying to repair a portable stove when a plastic cup of gasoline he had set nearby ignited.

The fire melted the plastic cup and the fuel spilled on Johnson's sons, Brandon, 4, and Bryant, 2, setting them ablaze. Johnson burned his hands smothering the flames.

The three were treated by paramedics, then taken to Chino General Hospital. From there Johnson and son Brandon were flown by a Los Angeles County Fire Department helicopter to the Sherman Oaks Burn Center for further treatment. Both were reported in good condition this morning.

Capt. Forest Alderman of the Chino Fire Department said when the firemen arrived at the scene the flames already were out.

Wants Ford to invoke Taft-Hartley Act

Reagan urges 'cooling off' time in cannery dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — As negotiations in the California cannery workers' strike continue, Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan is urging President Ford to impose a cooling-off period in the dispute, which could imperil California's vast fruit harvest.

The two sides in the 6-day-old strike spent 13 hours with an official of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service on Sunday, and the talks were scheduled to resume this morning. A mediation service spokesman had no report on whether negotiators made progress Sunday.

Reagan, a former governor of California, urged Ford on Sunday to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act immediately in the strike.

Reagan said the walkout "at the peak of fruit harvesting season threatens to bring disaster to California agriculture and fuel a new round of inflated food prices."

"I respectfully request him to act now in the national interest," Reagan said in a statement directed at his GOP rival.

There was no immediate response from the White House.

After Saturday's lengthy round of talks, the chief federal mediator said the discussion was centering on money.

Late Saturday James Scearce, national director of the mediation service, said he had "asked both sides to review their positions in the light of the proposals already made."

Scearce said the marathon negotiations have solved many noneconomic issues. "We are now to the hard core economic issues," he added.

The 30,000 cannery workers represented by the Teamsters Union went on strike last Tuesday. The talks moved to Washington Thursday.

California Processors Inc., representing the cannery operators, has offered wage increases ranging from 93 cents to $1.43 an hour over three years. But the unions have asked for increases of $3 an hour over three years. Wages currently average $4.93 an hour.

Growers say they expect the crop to peak in about a week and estimate they could lose $2.5 billion if the strike lasts indefinitely.

The walkout has closed 70 California canneries that process peaches, apricots, pears, tomatoes, grapes and other fruits.

Meanwhile, the head of President Ford's team surveying the economic impact of the strike said there has been a "substantial loss" of the apricot crop whose harvest period is nearly over.

Charles Brader, deputy director of the federal Agricultural Marketing Service, added that the tomato crop, whose harvest period is just beginning, has been "sharply affected."

Brader and two other officials inspected much of California's Central Valley Saturday and Sunday.

Brader, interviewed before returning to Washington, described the inspection as "an on-ground verification of some of the things we had heard from the growers" in the negotiations.

The team is reporting today to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

California supplies much of the nation's canned and fresh fruit and most of its tomatoes, which are now in high demand because of the popularity of pizza and other sauce dishes.

THE VIKING PROBLEM

K. Z. Bradford, manager of the science test laboratory for Viking I, holds the type of small pin which caused concern because scientists were unable to move the soil-sampler arm of Viking on Mars. He is holding it next to a full-scale model of the lander which is used for testing at the Jet Propulsion Lab in Pasadena. The stuck pin dropped out Sunday and the sampler-arm is ready for action.

Patricia Hearst due in court to set new date for her trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was due in court briefly today to set a new date for her trial on criminal charges that include assault, robbery and kidnaping.

The trial previously had been scheduled to begin today. But it was postponed when she was ordered to continue a psychiatric evaluation being conducted to help determine her sentence on a bank robbery conviction in San Francisco.

U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick has extended her stay at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in San Diego until Oct. 7, so presumably her trial will begin after that.

The hearing was to be held in the same courtroom as the trial, now being conducted, of Miss Hearst's former companions and codefendants, William and Emily Harris. Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler, who is hearing the Harris case, planned to recess their trial briefly upon Miss Hearst's arrival.

Superior Court Judge William Ritzi has been assigned to handle the proceedings in Miss Hearst's case.

Her appearance comes in the midst of a controversy about the validity of a tape recording of the Harrises and Miss Hearst which the prosecution hopes to enter as evidence against the Harrises. The defense has questioned the tape's authenticity and argued the prosecution cannot prove it has not been altered.

However, authorities said they do not plan to ask Miss Hearst any questions about the tape recording during today's court appearance.

Dep. Dist. Atty. Sam Mayerson has said he would probably have to grant her immunity to do so, and has balked at taking that step.

Mayerson says the tape contains discussion of some of the events which led the county grand jury to issue an 11-count indictment against Miss Hearst and the Harrises in connection with a May, 1974 shooting incident at an Inglewood sporting goods store.

Proposed dam would force relocation of 340 persons

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The proposed Parks Bar Dam on the Yuba River would force the relocation of 340 persons and take 19,500 acres off the Yuba County tax rolls, says a draft environmental impact report.

The preliminary report was sent to a number of organizations over the weekend by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Comment was invited.

The $734 million project was authorized in 1966 for the Yuba River about 12 miles east of Marysville. It would consist of two dams, each about 7,000 feet wide. One would be a 368-foot high concrete dam on the Yuba River, and the other a 328-foot high earth dam on Dry Creek, a tributary.

The resulting lake would cover 6,640 acres with a 67-mile shoreline, and hold 916,000 acre feet of water.

Also, an afterbay would be built three miles downstream to regulate releases from a proposed power plant.

The report said the lake would cover the old gold town remains at Timbuctoo, the Englebright Dam, and nearby power plants operated by the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and the Yuba County Water Agency.

Included in the affected land would be 4,310 acres of oak and grassland, and 1,490 acres of agricultural grassland. The relocation would also affect 11 farms and eight businesses, in addition to the 340 persons.

On the earthquake danger, the report mentions two "linear features" which run from the surface traces of the earthquake last Aug. 1 near Oroville, 25 miles north.

Larry Bowermaster of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers explained that a linear feature can be "a fault that existed 20 billion years ago, or a ridge or a depression."

One of the linear features crosses the axis of the Dry Creek Dam. The other crosses the Yuba River where the afterbay would be.

The reservoir could provide 150,000 acre feet of water per year if conservation is applied during dry periods.

It would also produce about 653 million kilowatt hours of electricity a year, the report said.

Stolen coins are recovered

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The 17-year-old son of an Orange County, Calif., coin collector and three companions have been arrested and $250,000 in stolen coins and bullion have been recovered, police say.

The rare coins and bricks of gold and silver bullion were taken earlier this month from the Cypress, Calif., home of Dean Brawley, police said Sunday.

One of the youths booked for investigation of possessing stolen property was Brawley's 17-year-old son, whom police refused to further identify because of his age.

The rest of the collection was recovered later, police said.

Racial balance dispute sparks bout

State legislators 'talk it out,' then decide to 'fight it out'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A fight erupted between two state legislators following the taping of a talk show on the subject of racial balance, witnesses said.

"I've seen politicians mad before, but never anything like this," said Dr. Robert Docter, a member of the Los Angeles Board of Education and another panelist on the show taped Sunday.

Docter said the fight began when State Sen. Alan Robbins, D-North Hollywood, lunged at State Sen. Nate Holden, D-Los Angeles, after the taping.

"As soon as we went off the air," Docter said, "Sen Robbins took off his microphone and went toward Sen. Holden. He (Holden) was sort of physically attacked."

Witnesses said the fight lasted about a minute, until Docter and Hank Springer, president of a Los Angeles teachers' union, pried them apart with the aid of stagehands.

Witnesses said the pair had engaged in some bitter verbal exchanges during taping of the KNXT show, "Talk About." They had been discussing Robbins' proposed legislation which would prevent the Los Angeles school board from using a lottery to transfer teachers to achieve racial balance in the district.

Holden, a black man, had recently charged the bill had "racial overtones." Witnesses said that during Sunday's taping, Robbins, who is white, called Holden a "liar."

CBS employe Ted LaForte, an ex-fighter, said, "Robbins was trying to throw punches, but Holden was trying to block them off." He said he had to push the heel of his palm into Robbins' face to break up the scuffle.

Robbins, 33, could not be reached for comment. But Holden, 47, said he decided not to fight back because he didn't want to hurt Robbins.

"I'm in good condition and I used to be a professional boxer," he said. "There was no point in my trying to hurt him."

The show is scheduled for broadcast at 1 a.m., Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Natural gas blamed for blast at house

ESCONDIDO (AP) — Natural gas may be responsible for an explosion which ripped through an empty home here while its occupants were vacationing, firemen say.

Officials said the blast Sunday turned the house into a ball of flames and rained glass over portions of a neighboring country club.

"All they believe is that natural gas ignited," fire department dispatcher David Dunn said Sunday. "They're not sure how the gas escaped into the house."

He said fire officials have not ruled out the possibility of arson to cover a burglary.

He said damage to the home was estimated at more than $60,000.

Officials said the sole injury in the 3:15 a.m. blast occurred when one Escondido fireman was hit by a ceiling beam.

Dunn said the fiery explosion left nothing of the three-bedroom home except the chimney and destroyed about one-third of the house next door.

JIMMY'S WAY

Carter gets briefing on defense plan

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, are getting a joint briefing on defense policy today from experts on a Carter ask force.

Included in the Carter brain trust are several people who served as Pentagon officials under former President Lyndon Johnson.

It was the first of four joint briefings scheduled in Plains this week. The Democratic running mates are to be briefed on the economy on Tuesday and foreign policy on Thursday.

On Wednesday, CIA head George Bush will brief the two on national security.

Among those briefing the candidates today are Paul Warnke, former assistant secretary of defense; Paul Nitze, former undersecretry of defense and Cyrus Vance, former secretary of the Army. All served under Johnson.

On Sunday, the Carters escorted the Mondales to Sunday school and church, a family picnic in a tree-shaded churchyard, and a softball game between reporters and the Secret Service.

Since Mondale arrived in Plains late Saturday night, Carter has stressed his compatibility with his vice-presidential running mate and his assertion that the liberal Minnesota senator will be accepted in the South.

"There's no doubt in my mind that his acceptance in the South will be equally as enthusiastic and as friendly as mine has been in the North," Carter told a cheering crowd of about 300 who turned out to greet Mondale and his wife Joan at the Plains train depot Saturday.

The 48-year-old senator attended the Sunday school class Carter teaches in the basement of the Plains Baptist Church, and heard Carter say: "If we have faith in Jesus, if we believe that he is willing to take the punishment for our sins, we can be right in God's eyes, just as though we've never sinned." But, Carter added, "We have to admit we're sinners."

After church, the Carters drove their visitors to another churchyard five miles south of Plains for an annual picnic attended by numerous relatives of Carter's wife, Rosalynn.

William Spann, 29, in and out of California prisons

Jimmy Carter's nephew serving 10 years in jail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — William Carter Spann, 29, a nephew of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, is a California convict serving 10 years to life in prison for two armed robberies, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

An officer at the San Francisco County Jail said Spann was serving his sentence at the state prison facility at Vacaville, but was currently kept at the jail here as a material witness in another robbery case.

The Chronicle in a copyrighted story gave this account:

Records show that Spann has been in and out of California prisons since 1969 when he first moved here from the east.

"Coming out here was like stepping off the ground onto a carousel," Spann said of his first days in Los Angeles.

He was first jailed after convictions for car theft and burglary in Los Angeles County, paroled in 1971, then returned to prison in 1972 for parole violations including possession of a weapon, failure to report to his parole officer and reckless driving, the state Department of Corrections reported.

Spann testified in San Francisco Superior Court last week that while in San Quentin Prison from 1972 to 1975 he commenced a homosexual relationship with another inmate, James Yarborough. The relationship was continued after their release.

Spann said he had told his mother and Carter's sister, Gloria Spann, he had received death threats in prison when it was learned he planned to testify as a prosecution witness.

"She told me 'We're too involved in this campaign' to help...she told me to live my own life..." Spann said in the interview.

The candidate's press secretary, Rex Granum, told the Chronicle that he would not comment on Spann's complaints of death theats.

"It's not the role of the campaign to speak on behalf of the candidate's sister," he said.

Spann went back into prison last month after his conviction for two San Francisco armed robberies in March, including a $60 stickup from a Market Street tavern. The second robbery involved the stickup of two rooming house employes for an unspecified amount of cash. Spann pleaded guilty to both offenses. He was sentenced May 26.

Spann said in the interview that at the time of the robberies he was "so high on speed and heroin that I couldn't remember what had happened. It was like I was on a roller coaster."

Prison records show that Spann was treated in a prison hospital for drug addiction in 1974.

Spann said that before his move to California he had spent most of his childhood on the Carter family peanut farm in Plains, Ga.

He was born in Americus, Ga., near Plains, the only child of Gloria Carter and her first husband, William Hardy. When they divorced, young William's name was changed to Carter, and he lived with his grandparents, Lillian and James Earl Carter, until 1951 when Mrs. Carter married farmer Walter Spann, who adopted the boy.

Commenting about his 1969 move to Los Angeles, Spann ruefully told the Chronicle, "That was one of my biggest mistakes. I need to be someplace where things are a little simpler."

3-year-old shoots, kills friend, 7

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nine-year-old Marie Barcrof thought it was play when a 3-year-old threatened her and her father with a .357 magnum pistol. Then she watched in horror as the youngster turned and killed her 7-year-old friend.

"It was just the awfullest thing I ever saw," said the young South Baltimore girl after her friend's death Sunday.

"Jeffrey just stood there for a moment with a big hole in his stomach and blood all over the place. Then he fell over."

The victim, Jeffrey Krausch, was shot once in the chest from point-blank range, police said. He was pronounced dead at South Baltimore General Hospital shortly after 2 p.m.

Police would not reveal the name of the youngster who shot Jeffrey.

The father of the 3-year-old is a security guard and neighbors said they had seen the gun in his car on previous occasions. But police said the 3-year-old and his 5-year-old brother took the gun from a kitchen table in a house where they and their father were visiting.

Marie was sitting with her father, George Barcroft, on their porch enjoying Sunday's springlike weather when the boy and his brother came out of a nearby house where they were visiting.

"He just came up to us and pointed this gun in my face and said, 'I'm going to shoot you and I'm not going to miss.' I thought it was just play," said Marie.

According to Marie, just before the shooting the two visiting children had argued with Jeffrey and a playmate about the younger children poking holes in the Krausch's front lawn.

The Krausch family lives around the corner from the Barcroft family and the house where the two unidentified children were visiting.

As far as the shooting itself, Marie said, "I don't think the little boy knew what he was doing."

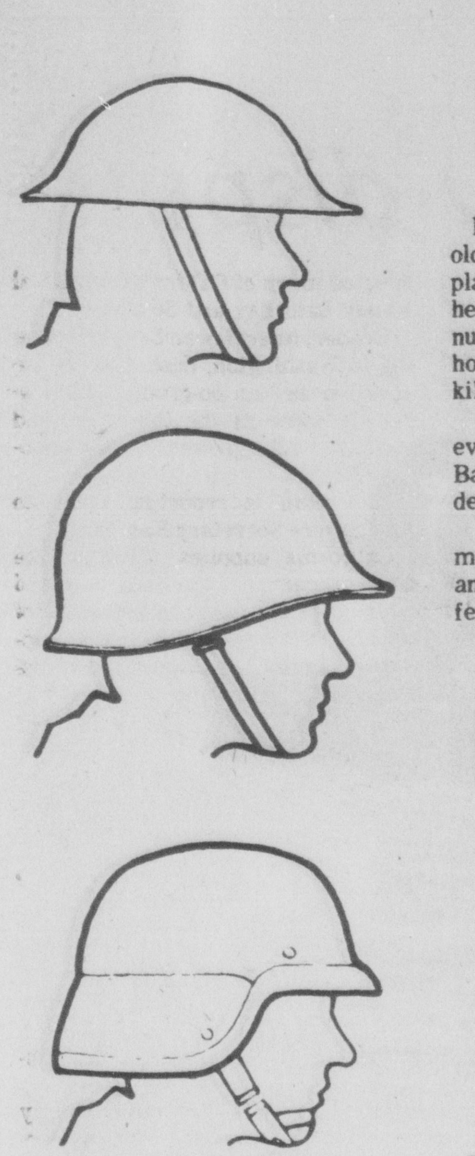
"He didn't even say nothing to Jeff," Marie said. "He just pointed the gun. His brother cocked it and the little boy pulled the trigger."

The mortally wounded boy fell against the side of his house. Barcroft said he jumped to his feet and screamed at the two younger boys, who ran inside the home they were visiting.

Barcroft then called an ambulance as the youngster's mother cradled her son's head, sobbing, "Oh my baby."

"Jeff and I were real good friends. We went to the same school and everything," the girl said.

A spokesman for the city state's attorney said no charges would be filed against the gun's owner. The spokesman would not elaborate.



GI HELMETS

The new proposed helmet for the U.S. Army, bottom, is made of hard, light plastic and comes in different sizes. At top is the flat "tin hat" adopted during World War I and center, the "steel pot" worn since World War II.

GI helmet changing styles

ABERDEEN, Md. (AP) — The steel helmet that World War II GIs used to cook rations and wash their socks is going the way of the cannon ball and Gatling gun.

In emergencies, the old helmet had also served as a foxhole digger.

Researchers at the Army's Human Engineering Laboratory here have developed a synthetic helmet which resembles a cross between what a German World War II helmet and and the protective headgear now worn by motorcyclists.

Lab officials insist it was not modeled after the German helmet, but its developers have dubbed it "Fritz" because it has a protective skirt covering the back of the neck.

The design is an attempt to provide more protection and to make the helmet fit more comfortably by shifting the center of gravity backward and toward the center of the head, an Army spokesman said.

Final testing of the new helmet is scheduled for the fall. The Army hopes to have it in regular issue by 1980. The sixyear development project has cost $2.5 million.

Critics of the old helmet complain that it is heavy, uncomfortable and unwieldy. Unlike the new headgear, the old steel helmet comes in one size with a plastic helmet liner.

Developed in the 1930's, the old helmet is made of Hadfield steel alloy and weighs 56 ounces. Its replacement will weigh between 47 ounces and 53 ounces, depending on size, and will be made either of Kevlar, a substance designed by DuPont to replace steel cords in automobile tires, or fiber glass.

In 1941, the steel pot succeeded the flatter "tin hat" worn during World War I.

"Fritz" wouldn't be suitable for cooking stew or digging holes. The synthetic materials are not able to withstand intense heat and the built-in webbing prevents it from being used as a shovel.

"Yes, the steel pot was useful as a wash basin," said one Aberdeen researcher. "But that isn't what a helmet is supposed to be."

Iran floods take 14 lives

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Floods following heavy rains killed 14 persons Sunday in the Kerman district of south-central Iran, according to reports reaching Tehran.

The newspaper Ayandegan said a large region in the southern part of the country was under water. Heavy rain has done damage in other parts of Iran, but no casualties have been reported.

More whales go on beach

LOGGERHEAD KEY, Fla. (AP) — At least 30 mammals thought to be pilot whales beached themselves Sunday on this tiny island in the Gulf of Mexico and most died later, officials said today.

It is the third incident within two weeks in which deep-water mammals beached themselves in large numbers on Gulf Coast beaches or sandbars.

Coast Guard spokesman John Ralph said the creatures were first sighted Sunday afternoon on the beach of this island in the Dry Tortugas chain.

"None were dead when they first were found, but all appeared sick and dying," Ralph said. "Most died by this morning, but some are still alive."

Ralph, based in Key West, said communciations with Coast Guard personnel on the Dry Tortugas, about 72 miles west of Key West, were difficult and further details were not immediately available.

Last Thursday, five animals at first believed to be pilot whales but later identified as false killer whales beached themselves near Fort Myers, about 150 miles northeast of the Dry Tortugas.

One died, but rescuers were able to save the other four. The surviving whales were taken to a marine attraction where they were reported in good health.

A week earlier, 25 spinner dolphins died in a mass beaching near Sarasota, 50 miles farther north of the Gulf Coast.

Experts have theorized that a parasitic infection is affecting the sensitive sonar devices that the mammals possess. But no conclusive cause of the beachings has been determined. Pollution has been ruled out because these creatures live too far out to sea to be affected by man-made irritants.

Pilot whales are porpoises that vary in length from 14 to 21 feet and weigh between .75 and 2.5 tons. They travel in schools which can contain as many as several hundred members.

False killer whales are porpoise-like mammals that weight between 1,000 and 2,000 pounds.

Elephant rustling on rise

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Elephant rustling is on the rise and police have set up a special unit in an attempt to halt the traffic following complaints from the Wild Life Association of Thailand.

"At least 20 elephants have been driven from southern Thailand to Burma and dozens of others taken for ransom this year," said Boonsong Lekakul, president of the association.

Elephants are used as work animals in logging operations in remote or hilly areas of Thailand. The elephant population in the country has dropped from about 2,500 to 2,300 in the last year. A working male elephant is worth about $1,500.

The flag of the United States is mounted on the housing of Viking 1's nuclear power system in this picture taken July 23, 2:30 p.m. Martian time. Also seen are the U.S. Bicentennial symbol and a student-designed Viking emblem. The view is west of the spacecraft and includes a series of low hills. The blocky hill in the center appears to be a part of a crater rim. Light areas are dune-like and may be windblown sand or dust. The dark rocky stripes may be material ejected from the crater. Five arrested in auto gunfight

Three Pomona men and two juveniles were arrested by MONTCLAIR police Sunday after officers intervened in a high speed two-car chase involving several groups of persons exchanging gunfire.

Arrested for investigation of attempted murder in the incident were Larry Paul Fernandez, 19, of 1744 S. San Antonio Ave.; Mario Joe Rios, 19, of Pomona, now with the U.S. Marines at Camp Pendleton; Steve Michael Duenas, 18, of 730 E. Grand Ave.; and two Pomona juveniles. Police are searching for several other youths for questioning in the incident.

Officers said several cars traveling at a high rate of speed on Holt Boulevard were seen and pursued. Officers said both vehicles were pursued at speeds of 80 to 90 miles per hour until one went out of control and crashed.

The second vehicle involved was stopped and its occupants questioned in the 5200 block of Orchard Street. Police said the drivers and passengers of both vehicles were questioned and gave statements that they had been shooting at each other. However, police said no weapons were found in either car.

Police said no one was injured in the crash. Police said the victim of the shooting incident was a juvenile from Ontario. Police said the chase began somewhere in Pomona and ended up in Montclair.

Three caught

Three Pomona youths, suspected of robbing and stealing a car from a Pomona man early this morning, were arrested by West End sheriff's deputies following a high speed car chase on East End Avenue from Philadelphia Street in CHINO.

The youths were booked in the Pomona jail this morning for investigation of armed robbery. Two youths were 17, and the other 15.

West End sheriff's Deputies Dan Clark and Lester Breeden said they observed a vehicle parked outside of a dairy store at East End Avenue and Philadelphia Street about 2 a.m. The deputies said as they pulled in behind the car it sped away at a high rate of speed. The deputies said the vehicle stopped at East End Avenue and Phillips Street and its four occupants fled on foot.

Breeden said that he and Clark finally caught up with three of the youths after a short foot pursuit and arrested them on a variety of misdemeanor charges. At the jail the deputies learned that the youths had allegedly robbed a man of his car in Pomona a short time before. The youths were turned over to Pomona police for booking on charges of armed robbery. Deputies said they found a switchblade knife in possession of one of the youths. The fourth youth that ran from the officers is being sought this morning.

Wrong victims

Two men are nursing numerous cuts, bruises and abrasions in the West End Jail, allegedly because they picked on the wrong victims in an attempted robbery Saturday near CHINO.

Jacques Edwards, 18, of 3159 Kellogg Park Drive, Pomona, and William Windle, 33, of 4366 Phillips St., Chino, according to West End sheriff's reports, were arrested by a vacationing Michigan sheriff's deputy and his half-brother, the intended victims of an armed robbery on Ramona Avenue south of Grand Avenue.

According to sheriff's reports Ivan Deering, 23, a Livingston County Michigan sheriff's deputy visiting his half-brother Bruce Harmon, 12228 Dunlap Place, Chino, were driving on Ramona Avenue when another vehicle pulled up beside them. The two men in the other vehicle yelled at Deering and Harmon to stop.

Deering and Harmon said they stopped and the two men approached their car. One of the men pulled a knife and placed it against Harmon's throat and demanded money. Deering, taking advantage of a careless moment by the suspects, disarmed them. A fight between the four men erupted, deputies said.

Deering and Harmon slugged it out with the suspects for several minutes before subduing them.

Deputies said that Edwards suffered a broken nose, broken jaw, a cut lip and black eye in the altercation while Windle lost several teeth, a cut eye and cut lip. The two suspects were treated for their injuries at Doctors Hospital in Montclair and turned over to local sheriff's deputies. Edwards and Windle were booked in the West End Jail this morning for investigation of armed robbery.

Deputies said that Harmon and Deering suffered no injuries.

Fights off rapist

A tiny Vietnamese woman fought off a would-be rapist who attacked her in south POMONA early today, police said.

The victim, 32, gouged the man with her fingernails but was slugged several times herself in a field in the 2100 block of S. Garey Avenue.

The woman, about 5 feet tall and weighing less than 100 pounds, was crossing the field on her way to work shortly after 6 a.m. when the man jumped a fence and approached her. She said that when he asked her for the time she saw a watch on his wrist and started to run because she became suspicious of him. She said he grabbed her and tried to pull off her clothing. She scratched him and he slugged her. When she began screaming he ran, vaulted the fence and fled.

Police Officer Michael Bouse, who investigated the incident, said a market employe witnessed the attack but it was over before he could react. The victim declined immediate medical attention for facial injuries she suffered.

The attacker was described as black, of indefinite age, wearing a bluish plaid shirt and dark trousers.

Suspect nabbed

A 19-year-old Glendora man was caught inside the burglarized McCoy's Market at 3200 N. Garey Ave. early Sunday morning, POMONA police reported.

The young man, Danny Guy Day, was found atop a refrigerator after police, summoned to the store by a burglar alarm, were admitted to the building by the manager. They had called him from his home.

Officers said Day entered the building by climbing to the roof and squeezing through a window. They said he told them he had been visiting a friend in Pomona earlier and had been drinking beer. He was booked on suspicion of burglary.

Mississippi's 30 GOP delegates remain uncommitted

By The Associated Press

Mississippi's 30 Republican delegate-votes could have put President Ford within a political inch of the GOP nomination, but the delegation voted to stay uncommitted until the convention. So the Republican presidential contenders keep scrambling for delegates while the Democratic ticket starts writing its policy proposals.

The Mississippi delegates, the only full state delegation still unaligned either with Ford or challenger Ronald Reagan, also reaffirmed on Sunday an agreement to vote as a bloc.

But they gave no clear sign which candidate will win their votes. Both camps lobbied fiercely and both claimed strong support.

Ford has 1,096 delegates and Reagan 1,024, according to a survey by The Associated Press. The winner needs 1,130 and there are 138 delegates still uncommitted. Both candidates claim enough votes now to win the nomination.

Reagan announced Sunday that he would make "a major campaign statement" today. There were no details but one aide said it would be "a positive statement" for the campaign.

As the Mississippi delegates met, Jimmy Carter and running mate Walter F. Mondale prepared for a week-long session in Plains, Ga. with Democratic economic and foreign policy advisers.

Reagan spent Sunday taping television interviews and Ford was on the golf course as their aides lobbied for support in Mississippi.

The White House announced that Ford would meet with the Maryland delegation at a White House reception todayand had invited Pennsylvania's 103 delegates for a similar session on Thursday.

All 43 Maryland delegates are committed to For and most of the Pennsylvania delegates support the President, but White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford isn't taking any chances.

In Plains, Carter said he believed the Democratic ticket was a "pretty good melding between North and the South." The candidate, his running mate and their Secret Service detail played a game of softball with relatives and visiting reporters Sunday night.

In other weekend developments:

—Carter told Time magazine in an interview published Sunday that his major problem remained recognition. "My major vulnerability is that people still don't know who I am or what I stand for on specific issues.

—Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., saying voters wouldn't be fooled by Carter's "messianic smile," predicted Ford will win both his party's nomination and the general election next November.

Russians again fail to destroy satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have suffered their third straight failure this year in testing a satellite-destroying system, U.S. intelligence sources report.

The latest failure occurred July 21 when a Russian Hunter satellite failed to stay in orbit, the sources say.

According to U.S. specialists, the Hunter satellite was sent up to try to destroy Russia's Cosmos 839 satellite which had been lofted into orbit 12 days earlier.

American analysts say they do not know what is causing Russia's apparent technical problems.

The Russian effort to develop an operational anti-satellite system dates back about 10 years and has proceeded in fits and starts.

There were only five successful launchings out of more than 20 attempts before testing halted in 1971. Soviet flight tests resumed in February and all three attempts since then have been flops, U.S. intelligence sources say.

The Russian satellite destroyer is said to be a vehicle about 20 feet long, weighing about 2½ tons at launch.

Equipped with five main rocket engines for making orbital adjustments and maneuvering, the interceptor is believed capable of closing in on its target at the rate of 1,300 feet per second. Experts say it can come within 100 feet or less of the target satellite before exploding on radio command from the ground. Intercepts have been made at altitudes between 120 and 550 nautical miles, U.S. sources say.

There are obvious military advantages to being able to knock down or blind an opponent's intelligence-gathering satellite. Spy satellites using cameras, infra-red sensors and various other monitoring devices are particularly important to the United States as a means of keeping track of missile tests, deployments and other military developments inside Russia.

Of special concern are U.S. satellites on guard against possible Russian missile attack.

Dr. Malcolm Currie, the Pentagon's research chief, said last winter that "we are very concerned about satellite vulnerability." He said U.S. scientists are working on ways of assuring the survival of American satellites.

Currie did not elaborate, but it is known that the United States has been testing secret new types of power generators and mechanisms designed to keep space vehicles in proper orbital position and in action in the event of Soviet efforts to disable them.

The United States has not tried to develop its own satellite-killing weapons systems since the 1960s.

The 1972 nuclear arms limitation agreement forbids Russia and the United States from interfering with each other's spy satellites or with any other means of monitoring compliance with that agreement.

However, the 1972 pact does not prohibit the Russians from testing an anti-satellite system, so long as they do not deploy it.

UC economist cites benefits of made-jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A University of California economist says federally funded jobs programs do provide a quick pick-me-up in times of recession.

Michael Wiseman's findings may reassure congressmen who last Thursday overrode President Ford's veto of a $4 billion federal jobs bill.

However, Wiseman based his study not on the jobs included in the new public works bill, but on a $1.6 billion federal program that created jobs at the city and state levels in 1974 and 1975.

Wiseman, who teaches at the University of California at Berkeley, reached no firm conclusion on whether job programs provide more lift to the economy than alternative antirecession moves, such as increased tax incentives in the private sector to expand employment.

But he found that the vast majority of the jobs created with federal funds would not have existed otherwise; over 80 per cent of the persons hired had not been receiving even unemployment benefits, and a third of them were blacks and other minorities, who have been hit hardest by unemployment.

Most important, according to Wiseman, the programs proved the government can create a quarter-million jobs within six months.

At the height of the programs in late 1975, about 360,000 persons were employed at an average salary of about $8,000 a year. There were 8 million unemployed at that time.

Among the drawbacks cited by Wiseman were that one-fifth of those hired already had jobs, according to one study. Also, about 10 per cent of the jobs would have been created anyway by local governments without the federal subsidy. And he found that unskilled people benefited least from the program.

The Brookings Institution released Wiseman's study Sunday in one of its periodic reports on the economy.

His findings prompted Arthur M. Okun, a senior Brookings fellow and onetime chief economic adviser to President Lyndon B. Johnson, to raise his estimate of the value of the public jobs program.

"I think I started out with a pretty skeptical view," commented Okun. Now, judging the program on an academic basis, "I'd give it a B."

The parasol ants live in very warm regions and raise tiny mushrooms. The worker ants in the community bring in bits of leaf for the mushrooms to grow on. The pieces of leaf look like tiny parasols as the ants carry them along.

Everything grows—including nuts!

California: where abnormal is normal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Almost anything grows — and goes — in California, including nuts.

Is there something in the environment that nurtures human variety?

Examining the state's recent police blotter — the latest item being the Chowchilla busnaping — might lead one to ponder the observation by an easterner that "the United States is tilted and everything that isn't tied down slides into California."

The taking of the Dairyland School District bus on July 15 with 26 children aboard was a bizarre innovation in crime. But of late there have also been Charles Manson, the Symbionese Liberation Army and Miss Hearst, Juan Corona and 25 bodies he buried around the countryside, Squeaky Fromme and Sarah Jane Moore who tried within weeks of each other to do away with President Ford, and the uncaught Zodiac killer who once threatened to augment his list of at least a dozen murders by killing a busload of school children.

In fairness, most of the above were not Californians, but then neither are millions of residents of this state, named, incidentally, after an imaginary island. California has always been a dream: Forty-Niners seeking gold, Okies seeking farms that wouldn't blow away, Flower Children seeking waterbeds, encounter devotees seeking the touch of togetherness, everyone seeking sun. Most of them stayed on.

"It's the end of the country. There is still a sense of frontier," said Prof. Joseph Gusfield of the University of California at San Diego. "California is a community of less controlled populations, less likely than elsewhere to be open to the influences of past traditions, families, old neighborhoods, familiar churches. There's a fluidity, and that tends to bring people to form around things that are new. That's why cults flourish here. But that doesn't necessarily lead to violence."

California has been called the world's largest outdoor asylum, noted Dr. Donald Cressey, a sociologist at the University of California at Santa Barbara. "I think that's right. All the kooks from New York come out here. When students burned down the Bank of America here in 1969, every freak in the United States got his backpack and hitchhiked to Santa Barbara."

The search by the rootless for an identity has led to what professor Warren Klapp has called "ego screaming." Said Gusfield: "The individual finds it more and more necessary to take on a more flamboyant way of presenting himself. In his clothing, his manner. He has to immediately make his identity known."

Beyond dispute, California is a land of extremes. It has the highest point in the contiguous 48 states. And the lowest. It has Disneyland and the Hollywood Pet Cemetery where Puzzems, Mack Sennett's cat, rests her nine lives until Judgment Day.

In the 1940s Encinitas almost became the home of the Golden Lotus Yoga Dream Hermitage but didn't for lack of funds. California has the Golden Gate Bridge that "people love to jump off of," said Sheldon Messinger, a criminologist at the University of California at Berkeley. "Almost all of them jump off the side facing the city. They don't like the ocean side." Keep the dream in sight right to the end.

A state that can make pictures of Marilyn Monroe's cleavage as well as ground zero photos of Mars can't help but attract comment. Westbrook Pegler, the acidulous columnist, thought California should be declared incompetent and have a guardian appointed. Comedian Fred Allen said it "is a fine place to live—if you're an orange." An old adage has it that California is what the United States will be next year. Las Vegas is what it will be like in 20. California, wrote Julia Sloane, "is the land of the second chance."

And so they come, to the end of the rainbow. "These people have left their kin behind," said Sanford Dornbusch, a Stanford University sociologist. "They get here and the norms break down."

"There is less restraint," said Gusfield. "Even nature is less harsh on you. Manson would have had trouble existing in Illinois. It gets cold. In California you can live without much shelter."

Out of the search for the pot of gold, comes a search for self.

"Who am I? That's why so many of the contact groups started in California," said Gusfield. "It's the need to create a person of oneself, of creating a membership because there's nothing else.

"Some take these frustrations a little less easily. They don't have their traditions to fall back on and take obstacles a little less easily. This sets up a kind of environment where there are a lot of ways of acting out."

Like kidnaping children on school buses?

"That's a very iffy question. No one has a good theory."

That includes U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., the man who prosecuted Patty Hearst. "California is a permissive area. And we have a broader spectrum of people than anywhere else. Things sort of feed on themselves. If one nut sets a standard of nuttiness, other nuts are attracted because they feel a base has been established. You know, 'come on in, the water's fine.' These things become in vogue.

"In the East municipal crime is quite common. We have very little of it out here. On the other hand we have more sects, fanatical people, either religious or political. But I can't make the leap from that to crime."

"There are so many partisans in California," said Gusfield. "The conservatives hate the liberals, and the liberals hate the conservatives. You get individualistic politicians. Nixon. Reagan. Jerry Brown. Shirley Temple, an actress. George Murphy, a soft shoe man. The political stability that comes from a political machine is absent," said the professor, who used to live in Chicago. "So we have anger in paradise."

Animal still worth more than a man in Egypt

TALKHA, Egypt (AP) — Financially speaking, Mussad Hagry would be better off if he were a water buffalo.

His take home pay would be 30 times more than it is now, and he would get free food and shelter, which he doesn't get now.

For Hagry is the lowest man on Egypt's economic ladder, a day laborer who is an immigrant in his own country, his sunup to sundown efforts can be had for 40 cents a day, of which he has to pay half for food and drink provided by his employer.

It costs $6 a day to hire a water buffalo, frequently used in agricultural or construction projects. This condition represents unfinished business for the Egyptian revolution of 24 years ago, one of whose basic aims was to make a man worth more than an animal.

Struggling to propel the country out of poverty, the government has concentrated on establishing industries, and most of the nine-million member labor force now earns substantially more than a Hagry or the water buffalo.

But there are still two million day laborers like Hagry, according to a study by the Ministry of Social Affairs, representing 22 per cent of the labor force. Most are jobless for more than 12 days a year. The hard-pressed government is only now getting around to giving them some help.

Every morning, seven days a week, he rises at dawn when the crew boss bangs on the hovel he sleeps in. He washes in untreated water from the Nile River and then has breakfast, a crust of bread and a glass of sweet tea.

Then with a straw basket and hoe he and the rest of the crew head for the muddy construction site near this Nile Delta town, 78 miles northeast of Cairo, to dig an irrigation canal.

Under a hot sun he works until noon. Lunch is a piece of cheese, bread, an onion and another glass of tea. Then it's back to work until sunset.

Like millions of Egyptians who lived on the banks of the Nile for centuries, Hagry accepts his fate with patience and says it is God's will.

Relieves Tormenting Rectal Pain And Itch, Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...Due to inflammation. Gives prompt, temporary relief from such burning itch and pain in many cases.

The burning itch and pain caused by infection and inflammation in hemorrhoidal tissues can cause much suffering. But there is an exclusive formulation that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from this itch and pain so that the sufferer is more comfortable again. It also actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation and infection.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center reported similar successful results in many cases. This is the same medication you can buy at any drug counter under the name Preparation H®.

Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed surface area and it doesn't sting or smart. In fact, it has very soothing qualities which make it especially helpful during the night when itching becomes more intense.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Key Facts* About the U.S. Prescription Drug Industry

Today's better medicines take less of your health dollar than a decade ago. U.S. Department of Commerce data reveal that drug products (prescription and over-the-counter) purchased by consumers take a declining share of the total medical care dollar. Ten years ago it represented 15 cents; today, 11.6 cents. Based on government data, industry economists estimate that prescription drugs account for only about 8.2 cents out of every dollar spent on medical care.

Fight nervous habit

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: It never bothered me that I've always been a nail-biter until I met and fell in love with a boy. Now, I'm embarrassed because my hands always look so terrible. He's never said anything but sometimes I catch him looking at my fingers. I also run my fingers through my hair and pull it. And this draws attention to my hands, making matters worse. I do want to be liked. Trying to break these habits only makes me nervous. What can I do? — W. R.

Dear W. R.: Usually nail-biting and hair-twisting or pulling are symptoms of anxiety and nervousness. You want to stop these habits which are a manifestation of your nervousness, but you want to get rid of the nervousness too. Sometimes the root of the problem and the symptoms are so intertwined that it's difficult to tell where one stops and the other begins.

First, observe what situations are apt to trigger the nail-biting or hair-tugging. Write these down and find ways that will make you feel more comfortable in these situations. This will take time. Right now, substitute a less offensive habit. Instead of biting your nails, push your hands to your sides and clench your fists.

Then jot down the actions that accompany or conceal the nail-biting. If you cup your hands for instance, and hold it near your face, try forming a counter-habit. Getting rid of the accompanying action, such as cupping your hand near your face, will help you avoid nail-biting. Your hand won't be near your face and you will be forced to think before lifting it to your mouth.

Analyze and break up the sequence of events that lead to the nail-biting. When you become more aware of what you're doing, you'll find it easier to control your behavior.

At the start of the chain of actions that lead to nail-biting, begin the competing action — clenching your fist, counting to 10, reaching for a pencil. Let a friend in on your campaign and practice with her. Pretend you're in a situation where your habit would occur and think of how you're going to react in a new way. Don't hesitate to ask friends to remind you if you slip, and keep notes so you'll know what situations are likely to make you resume the old habits.

These are only suggestions for altering the symptoms of anxiety. What is perhaps more important is increasing your self-esteen and developing your potential. If you understand and appreciate yourself, others will like you.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband kids our 15-year-old son because he doesn't like to date girls. I'm afraid the kidding will destroy our son's friendship with his dad and it might make him afraid that he's homosexual. I don't see why he has to be rushed into something he's not ready for but my husband feels it's important. — T. T.

Dear T.T.: Your husband may not realize that when he "kids" his son as you describe, he's behaving in an aggressive, hostile manner. Teasing usually carries a certain amount of anger and the person who is teased is the victim. This can damage the relationship between father and son because no one enjoys being the butt of a joke or the object of laughter.

Children need to extend, rather than shorten their childhood. Psychologically, the young adolescent is still a child and there's no way to rush his emotional maturation. If he's pushed into growing up too fast, he may remain a child.

It would be wise to encourage your husband to examine his own motives more closely when he tries to push his son into premature dating. It is quite normal for a 15-year-old to feel more comfortable with member of his own sex and he should be allowed to develop at his rate of speed.

Swimming taught to tiny children

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — You're in the kitchen and your infant child crawls unnoticed out the door and tumbles into the swimming pool. Instant tragedy, right?

Not necessarily, says Gay Lee, a sprightly 65-year-old woman who has spent much of her adult life teaching infants and handicapped children how to swim and survive in water.

She has done what many people have considered impossible — taught infants just out of the cradle how to swimn even how to jump off a diving board.

"I got the idea back in 1954 after reading a story in the paper about a grandmother who was babysitting two kids, both under 2, who wandered off and fell into a swimming pool and drowned," she said. "It shouldn't have happened."

She then launched her own survival program, determined to prevent similar tragedies, and began teaching infants to turn over on their backs and cry for help the moment they hit water.

"They don't like being on their backs anyway, so they cry," explains Mrs. Lee, a longtime swimming instructor from Milwaukie in the Portland suburbs.

Mrs. Lee, who didn't learn to swim until the age of 30, has received numerous local, state and regional awards for her accomplishments in working with the handicapped and initiating infant swimming survival techniques.

She has taught thousands of youngsters and adults how to swim. She has taken many children who could hardly walk — crippled, palsied, amputees — and turned them into good swimmers.

She has demonstrated her techniques across the country, even internationally. Film crews followed her through the Scandinavian countries on a demonstration tour, and several African newspapers covered her swimming lessons in the pool of the Nairobi Hilton.

But swimming lessons are over, at least temporarily, for Mrs. Lee, who is now fighting for her own survival against cancer. She suffered a back injury in a fall at home last February and was hospitalized.

An X-ray then revealed a maglignant tumor of her spine. She's been hospitalized ever since.

She says she's not as concerned about dying as she is being away from the kids she taught.

"I just want to get out of here so I can get back to my swimming pool," she says. "We — my late husband and I — never had any children. I guess the good Lord didn't give me any so I could love many."

5-week summer ballet course

The Los Angeles Ballet School will conduct a special five-week summer course for ballet students through Aug. 27.

Hector Zaraspe, on the dance faculty at the Juilliard School and internationally known ballet teacher, will be the special guest instructor.

Since 1954, Zaraspe has served as choreographer, teacher and ballet master in the major dance centers of the world. Among these were the Joffrey Ballet, Vienna State Opera Ballet (as the assistant and teacher to Rudolph Nureyev), Dutch National Ballet, Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires and the Metropolitan Opera in New York City.

He has served as private teacher and coach for such dance greats as Antonio of the Ballet de Madrid, Maya Plisetskaya, Margot Fonteyn and Nureyev.

Others on the summer faculty include Irina Kosmovski, ballet mistress and principal teacher at the Los Angeles Ballet, a former member of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and a regular member of the summer faculty at the School of American Ballet in New York City; and Nancy Robinson, former member of the Joffrey Ballet and currently ballet mistress and instructor for the Los Angeles Ballet.

Joanne Vennera will also teach two weekly jazz classes. Guest teachers from the Los Angeles Ballet will also attend.

The curriculum for the summer session will include beginning through advanced ballet, variations, pas de deux dance forms, and pointe. Those wishing additional information may call (213) 478-0107.

BIG MARKET — Moustepha Akkad, right, sets up a scene for Anthony Quinn during filming of "Mohammad — Messenger of God," in North Africa. Akkad reports great interest in the Middle East for the film and points out that there are 700 million Moslems in the world.

Syrian producer takes Peckinpah's advice, feels his epic will be hit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The gospel according to Sam Peckinpah: "If you want to become a film maker, don't screw around with menial jobs. Start at the top: be a producer-director and make your own film."

Once a film student at UCLA and USC, Moustapha Akkad followed the advice of the hardbitten Peckinpah. The result is the $17 million epic "Mohammad — Messenger of God," which Akkad produced and directed through a series of troubles that would have frayed the nerves of a Job.

"But I think it has been worth it," said Akkad, making final cuts for the July 29 premiere in London. "There are 700 million Moslems in the world, and there is great interest in the Middle East for the film.

"There is also a curiosity about the title and the subject in the West. My picture won't be a 'Jaws,' but I think it will be well received here. There seems to be a return to spirituality today, as the machine is taking over. I think people in the western world will be interested in learning about the Moslem religion. Nobody here knows that Islam believes in Christ, in Noah, and all the prophets, in the virginity of Mary."

Not that "Mohammad — Messenger of God" is a religious tract. It is a full-scale spectacle with Anthony Quinn as the warrior-disciple Hamza, Michael Ansara as Meccan leader Bu-Sofyan, Irene Papas as his wife, plus the Demillean cast of thousands.

Moustapha Akkad was born 43 years ago in Aleppo, Syria, attended the American college there and came to California to learn film making. After graduating he learned the bitter truth of 1950s Hollywood: there were no jobs for film students. Then he found work with Peckinpah on "Ride the High Country" and learned the invaluable advice.

Akkad produced and directed TV documentaries, notably "Cesar's World" with Cesar Romero. Then in 1970 the film maker decided to go for broke. He commissioned British writer H. A. L. Craig ("Waterloo") to write a script about Mohammad.

"We had one major problem: the Islamic religion forbids the portrayal of Mohammad," said Akkad. "I solved that by having the camera act as the eyes of Mohammad. He is never seen, nor does he speak, but you feel his presence as the action swirls around him."

Financing the film was the easiest part, Akkad claimed. The initial $10 million came "from sources in the United States, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Libya and Morocco." Akkad had an ambitious plan: to make two versions simultaneously, one with an English-speaking cast, the other Arabic. That was one of the factors that stretched the budget to the breaking point.

A $700,000 replica of Mecca was thrown up near Marrakesh, Morocco, and Akkad began filming in late 1974. Progress was slow. He was working with 40 members of each cast, crowds of 5,000, a 300-person crew that included 28 nationalities, filming entirely on location amid sandstorms and other mishaps of nature.

"I didn't realize how much longer the Arabic version would take," said the film maker. "The Arabic language is much more flowery, and the actors are more dramatic with their gestures."

The severest blow came when the film makers were expelled from Morocco because, said Akkad, "King Hassan had been pressured by religious extremists who threatened trouble because of the film." Mecca and the entire "Mohammay" company was moved by rail, air and boat to Tripoli in Libya, where the movie was completed in May 1975.

Akkad finished post-production in London, and Maurice Jarre ("Lawrence of Arabia" and "Dr. Zhivago") composed the score. He had to stretch his music for the Arabic version, which runs 20 minutes longer than the English-language three hours. Akkad is now negotiating for distributors in the western world, plans to release it with his own organization in Islamic countries.

Entertainment

George Carlin

Comic to spice variety series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Carlin has this kind of mind. "Ever noticed," he asks, "there aren't many guys in China named Rusty?" A short pause. "Guess the name never caught on over there. ..."

In September, the 39-year-old comic starts a 13-week gig on CBS' "Tony Orlando and Dawn," doing a five-minute monologue each week. The one-hour variety series appears in "family viewing" time.

Those who've only seen Carlin in concert, discussing such things as dope, bodily functions and how dirty words lose shock value, might consider his coming job coronary time for the CBS censor.

No way. For one thing, the show is taped and tape can be edited. For another, Carlin is a veteran guest performer on TV. He knows discretion is the better part of a return engagement. He's a realist.

Carlin, who started in comedy doing gags for pals on New York's West Side, used to be what's called a cuff-link comic, working top night clubs, doing safe, noncontroversial routines for big bucks.

He wore a suit and tie then. In 1970, when the nation seethed with youthful protest over the Vietnam war and lesser causes, he began casing his largely older, middle-class audience and pondered.

He concluded they weren't for him. He started doing stuff that then was a no-no for top night clubs — drugs, race, Vietnam. He deliberately antagonized patrons, burned his bridges and headed home.

When he began what he calls his "changes," the money was much less than what he'd earned in the saloons of the establishment, he conceded.

"But I knew in my heart all the other stuff would work out later," said Carlin, who lists his occupation as "foole" — Old English for jester.

"The money follows if you do the thing you love and do it well."

Dodgers happy to see Braves

ATLANTA — The Dodgers, happy to be in friendly Atlanta, open a three-game series here with the Braves tonight.

Believe it or not, the fifth-place Braves are the only other Western Division team besides Houston against which the Alstonmen have won more games than they have lost.

Atlanta has won three of eight and Houston two of nine against the Dodgers. Unfortunately, Houston is not a scheduled stop on this trip.

Beautiful San Diego is Waterloo for the Angelenos. Following Sunday's 1-0 Dodger victory, The Angelenos still had won only four of 13 games with the border city expansionists.

Safely out of the clutches of the pesky Padres, the Dodgers will send Don Sutton (10-8) against Carl Morton (1-7) tonight (4:30 p.m. PDT). Rick Rhoden (9-0) will try again for his 10th win Tuesday night against knuckleballer Phil Niekro. Tommy John (6-6) takes on Andy Messersmith (9-9) Wednesday in only his second start against his old teammates.

San Diego was a hotbed of enthusiasm and excitement . . . for the Padres as they hosted the Angelenos Saturday and Sunday.

A goodly number of the 38,511 hung around long after Saturday night's thrilling (for the San Diegoans . . . frustrating for the Angelenos) 6-5 Padre win.

"McNamara's Band," the musical group headed by Marine Captain Jim Eakle, was still playing on the main plaza as members of the press trickled out of the park 30 minutes after the game.

Padre fans dance

A goodly crowd watched and applauded and cheered and couples, that would look more at home dancing to Lawrence Welk, bounced around to Eakle's tuba, drum and tambourine combo.

It's not just a baseball game in San Diego, It's a happening. The band, with two pretty girls and two other male "helpers" moves around the park and entertains whenever the Padres are at bat,

The Tuba is painted green and yellow and bears the label, "Tuba Man." Eakle wears a yellow Padre jersey with the number 44 stenciled on its back. The girls wear Padre brown shorts and yellow sweaters with "Pom Pom Girl" on the front.

There is a "Sign Man" who holds up various signs such as "Beat the Bums" and leads cheers.

There is also a group of Padre cheerleaders (six pretty girls) wandering around leading cheers.

One of the local radio stations has a character dressed as a giant bird. A hyper-active type, he dances up a storm whenever any music is played. Circulating through the stands he greets fans, hugs kids (and pretty girls if they wish), leads cheers and goes out of his gourd when the Padres do antyhing at all.

With all this going on, it's hard not to enjoy a game no matter what the outcome.

But there was no joy for the Dodgers Saturday. The loss was all the more frustrating since a pregame meeting on how to hit against 17-game winner Randy Jones was highly successful.

Standing closer to the plate, the Dodgers produced seven hits and five runs in seven innings off Jones who had beaten them three times previously.

After leaving the bases loaded without scoring in the seventh, you would have thought the Padres were dead trailing, 5-1. But they came right back and tied it in the eighth.

No relief help

Stan Wall, Charlie Hough and Elias Sosa all had a hand in trying to stop San Diego, but to no avail.

"If you can't go to the bullpen in the eighth inning with a four-run lead, you aren't worth a dime," muttered a disappointed Walter Alston.

But Walter wore a happier expression Sunday after Doug Rau's fine effort. Rau scattered six hits in extending his record to 10-6. Lee Lacy doubled in the only run of the game in the seventh inning.,

"It's been an experience," said Lacy of his return (from Atlanta) to the Dodgers. "In this series I've played all three outfield positions and gone 7-for-14 at the plate."

Lacy is 20-for-54 (.370) since rejoining L.A.

Bill Buckner did not play Sunday. "Buck" hurt his wrist batting in the first inning Saturday night.

Pitcher Al Downing did not even make the trip to Atlanta. Downing, who warmed up but wasn't called upon (as usual) Saturday, was sent back to Los Angeles with an ear infection.

He'll join the team in San Francisco if his condition improves.

HERE 'N THERE — The Dodgers are only 8-16 against their Western opponents. Even the lowly Giants (next stop on this trip) have won six of nine from the Alstonmen.

U.S. Olympians on rebound

MONTREAL (AP) — The East Germans are leading, the Americans are on the rebound and the Russians are busily denying rumors one of their premier athletes is among the missing at the XXI Olympic Games.

American forces, down but not out after one of its worst days in Olympic history, turned Dark Saturday into Sunny Sunday with a gritty comeback that was sparked by one of the most dramatic moments of the Games—Shirley Babashoff's last-gasp winning anchor leg in the women's final swimming event, the 400-meter freestyle relay.

That victory, the continued dominance of the men swimmers, and a couple of gold medal performances by track and field men—including Edwin Moses' world record run in the 400 hurdles—served as the highlights of the American revival that came just in the nick of time.

East Germany, however, won five of the eight men's rowing finals, got a medal in every race and swept past the troubled Russians into the gold medal lead with 26. They also have 17 silver and 10 bronze, a total of 53. Russia leads in total medals with a 24-24-22 gold-silver-bronze count. The United States, which won only 10 of the 104 medals distributed Friday and Saturday, collected 18 of 66 Sunday and has a 21-21-16 count.

There appeared to be more trouble for the Russians, who will host the 1980 Games in Moscow. They've twice been accused of attempting to influence judges and had one of their modern pentathlon athletes kicked out for cheating. This time the problem involved Valeriy Borzov, winner of both the 100 and 200 meter dashes in 1972.

Early reports said Borzov either had defected or been kidnapped. However, the Soviets denied it.

"All of this is just a rumor started by the news media," Mikhail Efimov, the Soviet press attache said today. "Valery Borzov had a good sleep, is having breakfast and will go out to train this morning."

Borzov finished third in the 100 and withdrew from Sunday's 200-meter qualifying. Efimov said it was because the Russian sprinter had "aggravated an injury."

Sgt. Andre Laurendeau said the Montreal Urban Po;lice had investigated and were assured "that Borzov is in good hands."

The Soviet press attache said Borsov will compete in the 400meter relay later this week.

The schedule today includes five track and field finals, with the Americans hoping for a one-two finish from Dave Roberts, Gainsville, Fla., and Earl Bell, Jonesboro, Ark., in the pole vault. Medals also will be awarded in the men's 200-meter dash, 10,000 meters and javelin and the women's 800.

The men's basketball team, apparently headed for another showdown with the Russians, plays Canada in a semifinal game. Russia plays Yugoslavia in the other. The winners meet for the gold medal which the Russians won in a controversial final in Munich in 1972. The American women could gain a silver against Czechoslovakia.

Also on the schedule are finals in fencing, cycling, judo and the men's platform diving.

Relaxed Halos ready for K.C.

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels have found sudden success under new manager Norm Sherry at the expense of the slump-ridden Texas Rangers. Now the challenge gets stiffer.

The runaway American League Western division-leading Kansas City Royals open a three-game series tonight at Anaheim Stadium. There's an 18-game gap in the standings between the Royals and sixthplace Angels, who completed a three-game sweep of the Rangers with an 11-inning, 7-3 victory Sunday.

"This is as good a time as any to play them," said Sherry, 3-0 as a major league manager. "My guys have pride and don't want to accept being in the cellar and we want to take the division's best, too.

"I'm thrilled myself and thrilled for these players about this weekend. It's been frustrating for them to know they have the ability but not being able to do something about it."

Texas suffered its 16th lose in 18 games and has fallen into third place.

Sherry will be matching wits and players with Kansas City skipper Whitey Herzog, who paved the way for Sherry's ascension into the Angels' managerial job. Herzog was thirdbase coach for Dick Williams before taking the Royals' job in mid-1975. Sherry was promoted from Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League to man the third-base box.

A more relaxed clubhouse and dugout have been obvious signs of the Sherry regime. An instant benefactor has been Lee Stanton, who hit a grand-slam home run to produce Sunday's victory.

"I know I'm more relaxed and I know the team is too, both in the clubhouse and on the field," said Stanton. "We've always been trying to do our best but the ability comes out better when you're relaxed."

Stanton's deep drive to left field was his first home run of 1976. Last year he led the Angels with 14 home runs and 82 runs batted in.

"It's funny. Bobby Bonds and I were talking about grand slams before the game," said Stanton, who now holds the Angels career record with three. "He got one earlier this year and he said he was going to catch me today. But I won't let him."

Stanton's grand slam came off loser Steve Foucault after a leadoff single by Terry Humphrey and successive two-out intentional walks to Jerry Remy and Bobby Bonds. It made a winner of Dick Drago, who allowed a two-out, bases-loaded single by Lenny Randle in the ninth inning to deprive Gary Ross of an apparent victory.

California had led from the second inning when Terry Humphrey's bloop double produced one run and set up two more. Texas scored first off Ross in the fourth inning on consecutive two out singles by Toby Harrah, Tom Grieve and Juan Beniquez.

The Rangers have fallen from tight contention with the Royals to 11½ games behind. They are only half a game ahead of four-place Minnesota and only 6½ ahead of the Angels.

At Sherry's pace, that gap won't last long.

ANGEL ANGLES — Bonds plans to undergo surgery to repair his injured right hand on Aug. 15. Bonds arrived at the decision after meeting with Angels' general manager Harry Dalton. Bonds, who has hit 10 homers and has driven in 51 runs with a .261 average, has been hampered by the injury suffered in an exhibition game with the Dodgers. He will have his hand in a cast for 1½ months.

Bill Melton's suspension ended Sunday. He missed three games because of his argument on the team bus with the departed manager Dick Williams Friday morning.

Nolan Ryan (7-12) will be on the mound tonight against Al Fitzmorris (11-6).

Moses shows what Olympics all about

MONTREAL (AP) — It was a gesture that signified what sports and the Olympic Games are all about.

There was Edwin Moses, who had just set a world record in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles and won the Olympic gold medal, and his American teammate Mike Shine, the runnerup, jogging happily around the track, their hands clasped and waving joyfully to the capacity crowd of some 70,000 in the spanking new Olympic Stadium Sunday.

Then, the quiet, intelligent Moses did what all hurdlers dread doing during a race: he knocked over a hurdle.

But this time, there was no reason to fret. His gold medal was secure.

So he let out a big grin, and continued waving and jogging until he and Shine had completed their victory lap.

A short time earlier, the 20year-old Moses, an engineering major going into his senior year at little Morehouse College in Atlanta, had been a lot more tense, a lot faster and a lot more careful in streaking to a 47.64 second clocking in winning the hurdles title in his first international meet. John AkiiBua of Uganda had set the earlier mark of 47.82 at the 1972 Games.

Akii-Bua was unable to defend his title when Uganda withdrew from the Games in a political squabble.

"I guess I can chop some more time off the world record," said the bespectacled Moses, an "A" student in math and physics, "but I can't run 47 seconds every week.

"Last year, I was just running the high hurdles and open 400 meters," he continued, "just rounding myself out. I've been running seven years now. I guess it's about time something happened."

Moses is a virtual novice at the intermediate hurdles. He only began competing in the race last year—and ran it just once, before resuming competition in the event last March. Then, in June, at the Olympic Trials in Eugene, Ore., he blazed into prominence by setting an American record of 48.30. And he took one-hundredth of a second off that mark in winning his Olympic semifinal heat Saturday.

"I knew the race would be in the 48s, but Eddie was really smokin'," marveled Shine, who recently graduated from Penn State University.

"When he stayed in front and I saw I was second, I just kept pushing it," added the littleheralded Shine. "I couldn't believe Ed was pulling away in the straight after that super first part."

Shine's second-place finish was considered a surprise to most experts ... except him.

Pincay takes riding lead

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Hollywood Park's 37th thoroughbred racing season winds down today on a financially successful note as jockeys Laffit Pincay, Jr., who holds a lead of four wins, and Sandy Hawley battle for the riding title of the meeting.

The count stood at 123 for Pincay, 119 for Hawley, following a winning weekend for the muscular Panamanian.

Pincay started it Saturday with five trips to the winner's circle in which he caught and passed Canada's Hawley, 122-119. Pincay got one win Sunday on eight mounts. Hawley was blanked on all nine.

In today's traditional feature finale, the $125,000-added Sunset Handicap, Pincay is booked to ride either King Pellinore or Riot In Paris, and Hawley will be aboard One on the Aisle.

Neither was successful in Sunday's feature, the $160,750 Hollywood Juvenile Championship, won by Fleet Dragoon, the second betting choice of the 40,655 on hand. Jockey Frank Olivares rode Fleet Dragoon in by 2¼ lengths over Grey Moon Running, at 63-1 the longest shot on the board. Red Sensation, 40-1, was third in the field of 13 2-year-old colts.

Fleet Dragoon paid $7.60 to win, Grey Moon Runner $33.80 to place and Red Sensation $7.60 to show.

Pincay, on Super Joy, the favorite, finished seventh, and Hawley, aboard a 6-1 choice, J. George, was ninth.

"My horse ran hard all the way," said Olivares, "and I was never afraid of the second horse (Grey Moon Runner), catching us."

Commenting on his mount, Pincay said, "The move he made from the three-eighths pole to the quarter pole made me think we were going to win it. But he didn't keep going through the stretch."

The Juvenile was only the second start for Fleet Dragoon. A Fleet Allied California colt, Fleet Dragoon won as a maiden in an allowance.

Pincay's biggest win Saturday was aboard Bastonera II by a neck over the favorite, Miss Toshiba; in the $65,800 Beverly Hills Handicap.

Ontario halts drag racing

Ontario Drag Races, Inc., headed by former Indy driver Rodger Ward, has cancelled all drag races at Ontario Motor Speedway for the balance of this year.

The Winston World Finals Supernationals, promoted and sponsored by the National Hot Rod Association, will be run as scheduled on October 8, 9 and 10.

Rau looks good on 'flat' mound

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Doug Rau doesn't like the mound at San Diego Stadium but he has no complaints about the results he gets pitching off of it.

Rau shut out the San Diego Padres, 1-0, Sunday for the second time this season with a six-hitter that helped the Los Angeles Dodgers salvage a split of the four-game series.

"This probably sounds strange because of my two shutouts here," said Rau, "but the mound here makes me uncomfortable because it's low and flat.

"I'm not questioning whether it's a legal mound or not, but it does give me problems. I wound up with a sore arm after the last game I pitched here."

That game was May 26th and along with a sore arm Rau wound up with an 8-0 victory, stopping the Padres on only three hits.

San Diego matched Los Angeles' six-hit attack Sunday but saw a scoreless pitching duel between Rau and Padre righthander Dave Freisleben broken up in the seventh inning when Lee Lacy's double scored the game's only run.

"I hung a slider to Lacy," lamented Freisleben, who pitched a strong eight innings only to see his record fall to 6-8 because of the one bad pitch.

With one out in the seventh, Dodger shortstop Bill Russell drew a base on balls and then stole second base to set the stage for Lacy's decisive hit.

As it was, Padre left fielder Johnny Grubb nearly made a fine running catch on the ball but had it pop out of his glove as he hit the padding against the left field fence.

"The count was 3-1 and I was looking for Freisleben to throw me a breaking pitch," said Lacy, "Fortunately, I guessed right and hit it good."

"That has to be a tough game for Freisleben to lose, said Rau, "because he really pitched well. He looked like he had outstanding stuff."

Although the Dodgers won the pitcher's duel, their record against the Padres this season still is only 4-9.

"The Padres just seem to play inspired baseball against us," explained Rau. "It's that simple. Every team has problems against certain teams and I guess the Padres are our problem team this year."

Nonetheless, the second-place Dodgers remain confident they can overtake the Cincinnati Reds down the stretch. Lacy typifies their confidence.

"I really, truly believe we've got the best shot at taking it all," said Lacy, who collected seven hits during the four-game series against San Diego.

"We have great balance and outstanding pitching. All we need to do is get hot. The Reds could easily fold because their pitching isn't all that hot."

Lacy singled and doubled and Russell singled twice to pace the Dodgers Sunday while Rau struck out three and didn't walk a man while improving his record to 10-6.

First baseman Mike Ivie paced the Padres with a single and double in three trips.

Is Jerry Pate next Nicklaus?

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Is Jerry Pate the next Jack Nicklaus?

There are many who would argue there may never be another golfer as good as Nicklaus — who has won 75 tournaments in his fabled career.

But the way Pate has blossomed as a rookie on the Professional Golfers' Association tour this year, one can't help but speculate.

Pate, the 22-year-old Floridian who won the U.S. Open last month, added the third national championship to his collection Sunday by running away with the $200,000 Canadian Open.

He fired an Essex Golf and Country Club course record of seven-under-par 63 in his final round for a 13-under 267 total, beating Nicklaus by four strokes. The $40,000 top prize brought Pate's winnings to a rookie-record $128,482. He joined the tour last fall.

It was the fourth time Nicklaus was runner-up in the Canadian Open, the only national championship he hasn't won. Last year he lost to Tom Weiskopf in a sudden-death playoff.

Like Pate, Nicklaus won the U.S. Open as a rookie, in 1962. He is a two-time U.S. Amateur champion, a title Pate grabbed in 1974.

"It would be pretty tough to be on top like he always is," Pate said of Nicklaus, "but I'm gonna try."

Nicklaus shot a 65 Sunday. Yet Pate, a former All-American from the University of Alabama, turned on the afterburners and destroyed Nicklaus, Lyn Lott, third-round leader Bob Wynn and everyone else.

"It just seemed like every shot I hit was right at the flag," Pate said. "And I always had the right club...I told my caddy if I can birdie the first hole I'm gonna win this thing."

Pate — youngest to win the tourney — not only birdied the first hole, but the third, fifth, ninth, 10th, 11th, 15th and 16th as well. He bogeyed the par three 12th. He shot 69-67-68 the first three days for a tourney total of 267.

Besides Nicklaus at 271, Pate's closest challengers were Lott at 274, Ed Sneed at 275, Wynn and Bob Eastwood at 277. Wynn, who had an eight-under 202 after 54 holes, shot a five-over 75 in the finale over the classy, 6,696-yard course.

Only 17 golfers from the final field of 79 shot par 280 or better for the four days — despite ideal course conditions and weather.

Arnold Palmer, whose first tour triumph was the 1955 Canadian Open and who was among the leaders much of the way this year, wound up at 281, as did Weiskopf. British Open champ Johnny Miller shot 278.

"See you next year at Glen Abbey," Nicklaus told reporters. "If I can't win at any of these course, maybe I can win at my own."

The tourney — which drew 75,000 spectators this year, with 21,500 Sunday — will be held permanently beginning next year at the Nicklaus-designed Glen Abbey course in Toronto.

"This week I've played better than I have in 75 per cent of the tournaments I've won," he said. "In better than 90 per cent of those I've won I would have won with the score I had here."

Ben Crenshaw, who won $5,250 for his seventh-place tied at 278, took over the tour moneywinning lead from Hubert Green with $190,401. Green passed up the Canadian Open.

Ramirez gets chance to test his theory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico's Raul Ramirez concedes that Jimmy Connors is one of the best players in the world but insists Connors is not as good as he used to be.

Ramirez gets a chance to test his theory tonight when he meets Connors in the finals of the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships. The winner takes home $20,000 and the loser $10,000.

Ramirez, the No. 5 seed, gained the final round with an easy 6-2, 6-2 victory over Brian Fairlie of New Zealand Sunday, while top-ranked Connors breezed to a 6-2, 6-1 triumph over Ray Moore of South Africa. Each match lasted only a little over one hour.

Following the victory, Ramirez was asked about Connors' comment that he likes being on top because his opponents need to go all-out to defeat him.

"In 1974, when he was playing his best, maybe you needed to play 110 per cent to beat him," said Ramirez. "It's not so any more. So many guys have been beating him, and they weren't all playing 110 per cent.

"When I beat him, I played well, but not 110 per cent," he said. "I just played well, as have the others, such as (Eddie) Dibbs and (Adriano) Panatta."

Ramirez said he has beaten Connors twice and lost to him three or four times. Last December, in their most recent meeting, Ramirez defeated Connors in Mexico City during Davis Cup play.

Ramirez said, however, that Connors cannot be taken lightly or be considered just another player in a tournament.

"You just can't play one pattern with him," he said. "You can't think you can overpower him. You have to do different things, like dinking him."

On the other hand, Connors, who now calls Las Vegas his home, says he doesn't plan to change his style against Ramirez.

"Everybody knows how I play," he said. "I play the same as I did on my backyard court when I was 14. I don't scout anybody and I doubt if they scout me anymore."

Connors also would like to throw out his last meeting with Ramirez during the Davis Cup, especially when a newsman suggested that conditions in the nation's capital this week — hot and muggy on the clay court — were similar to those in Mexico City.

"No way," he said. "In Mexico, there was red clay, heavy balls and Mexican linemen. Everything was Mexican, even the food I ate was Mexican. It isn't the same."

Connors agreed that Ramirez is one of the top clay court players in the world, but added that so are Ilie Nastase; Guillermo Vilas and Bjorn Borg, all of whom he has defeated.

Ellis, Weinert win Motocross titles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jimmy Ellis was the overall winner of the fifth annual Oly Superbowl od Motocross, but he may have been upstaged.

Ellis won the first two 250cc motos Saturday night, but Jim Weinert, racing for the first time since Memorial Day after suffering a broken kneecap, won the Supercross Series before 65,842 at the Coliseum.

Weinert took the title after finishing fourth and sixth in the first two motos. Pierre Karsmakers finished second in the Supercross Series and Kent Howerton, who was hurt in the first moto, came in third.

Tony DiStefano won the third moto, just ahead of Ellis.

In the second moto, DiStefano challenged Ellis for the lead until the sixth lap, when he fell. Ellis went on to win the moto easily, although DiStefano got back up and finished an easy second.

"There is some question whether it will be the Cleveland Crusaders," he said in a telephone interview Sunday from his Atlanta home. "But there will be a team in Florida in time for opening game Oct. 15. I have two other teams I'm dealing with."

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A pair of Californians, Peter Pearson of Sunnyvale and Ann Lebedeff of San Diego, have been top-seeded for the 85th annual Pacific Northwe t Tennis Championships which begin a week-long run today at the Tacoma Lawn Tennis Club.

Little Leagues remain busy

With no less than five tournaments going strong, local Little League teams have a busy week ahead of them.

Action starts tonight in the Pomona City Playoffs in the Major Division, (Ages 11-12) and City playoffs begin Wednesday in the Senior Division, (Ages 13-15).

In tonight's Major opener in the City Tourney, Emblem Club of the American League takes on the Westmont A's of Pomona Southwest in a 5:30 p.m. battle at the Pomona American diamond. The American field, located on the corner of San Antonio and Grand avenues, will be the site of all tourney outings in the Major Division.

Major City finals are set for Wednesday, August 11.

While the City Senior playoffs begin Wednesday, two Senior All-Star squads from the valley will be in action starting Tuesday in the Section 7 Tournament. That All-Star affair is set to go at the Highlander Little League field in Hacienda Heights.

Pomona American, the District 20 champs, will be taking on District 60 at 5:30 p.m., while in the other tourney game Ontario North, the District 23 titlist, will meet the District 19 champ at 8 p.m.

Highlander Park, site of the double-elimination Senior tourney, is located at Stitzel and Paso Verde avenues in Hacienda Heights.

Wednesday's openers in the City Senior Playoffs pit Taco-Rita of Pomona Southwest vs. Pomona First Federal of Pomona Northwest in one game and Pomona Police Association of Pomona American vs. the Elks of Pomona National in the other contest. Both games will be played at Ralph Welch Park and will start at 6:30 p.m.

The double-elimination tourney runs through Monday, August 9 when the City Senior champ will be decided.

The Major All-Star tournaments in District 20 and 23 are still going strong. District 20 All-Star play will resume on Thursday, with District 23 getting back into action on Wednesday.

Montclair loses in finale

Montclair concluded its American Legion schedule Sunday afternoon on a losing note as Redlands Post 650 up-ended the Montclair outfit 4-1. Montclair ended the season 12-14 overall and 8-10 in league action.

Redlands broke open a 1-1 pitcher's duel in the final two innings of the contest as they racked up three runs off of Don Pierce. The key play of the contest came in the eighth for Redlands as a walk and throwing error by the Montclair catcher gave 650 a 2-1 advantage.

Chet Dawson's ninth inning double with Tim Settles and Kent Neil on the base paths gave Redlands a lead of 4-1. Montclair could not mount any kind of attack in their ninth inning at bat.

Montclair's attack was stifled by the six-hit pitching of Redlands' hurler Elwood Smith. Outside of the sixth inning, when Montclair scored its only run of the game, Smith was not in any serious trouble. He fanned four and walked three.

Montclair's Don Pierce was also on his game as the contest only lasted two hours. However, Pierce faltered in the later innings as the Redlands' batters began to hit him. Pierce fanned four and allowed five hits despite losing the ball-game.

Women avert shutout

Swimming ended last night. And it ended on a high note for the deeply frustrated American women who were facing their first gold medal shutout since 1952. It was averted by an almost superhuman performance by 19-year-old Shirley Babashoff, of Fountain Valley, Calif., and three of her teammates.

It was a last-gasp thing. Going into the last event, the Americans hadn't won. Miss Babashoff had collected three silver medals, including one in the exhausting 800 meters just an hour earlier. They were facing the broad-shouldered East German women, winners of all but one event.

And the American girls won it by the touch of Miss Babashoff's fingertips over the East Germans in world record time of 3 minutes, 44.82 seconds.

"I'm very happy with all my medals," Miss Babashoff said. "I did my very best in every race. In the relay, I just got a little more help."

The help came from Jill Strickel, Hacienda Heights, Calif., Kim Peyton, Portland, Ore., and Wendy Boglioli, Ocean City, N.J., each of whom clocked her own fastest time for 100 meters.

But it was the outspoken Miss Babashoff who provided the heroics. Only an hour after the 800 meters she came back to swim the anchor leg and just hold off East Germany's Claudia Hempel.

"I'm glad," Miss Babashoff sniffed with a glance toward the husky, powerful East Germans, "I'm glad I don't have to walk around my neighborhood looking like a guy."

Petra Thumer of East Germany had to swim a world record 8:37.14 to beat Miss Babashoff in the 800. Shirley was timed in 8:37.59 and Wendy Weinberg, Baltimore, was third in 8:42.

Ulrike Richter of East Germany won the other women's final last night, clocking 2:13.43 for the 200 backstroke with teammate Birgit Treibers and Nancy Garapick of Canada second and third.

Elena Vaytsckhovskaia of Russia won the women's platform diving with Deborah Wilson, Columbus, Ohio, third.

The American men, even more dominant than the East German women, reeled off two more in a string of victories that became almost routine.

Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis., took the 100 freestyle in 49.99 and became the first man to crack 50 seconds. Jack Babashoff, Shirley's brother, was second in 50.81. Rod Strachan, Santa Ana, Calif., won the 400 individual medley in 4:23.68, another world record. Tim McKee, Newton Square, Pa., was second in 4:24.62.

In all, the American men won 12 of the 13 swimming events, set world records in 11 of them and accumulated 12 gold, 10 silver and 5 bronze medals in the strongest performance in the history of the Games.

They were kept from a sweep only by the victory of Scotland's David Wilkie over John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., Saturday night in 200 breaststroke.

But track and field victories by the lanky, 6-foot-2 Moses and massive Mac Wilkins in the discus Sunday, along with the United States' first individual gold in three-day equestrian, by Tad Coffin, helped greatly to restore American prestige.

The 6-foot-4, 250-pound Wilkins, from Eugene, Ore., won the discus with a heave of 221-5, well off his own record but good enough to win. Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany was second and John Powell, San Jose, Calif., third at 215-7.

Moses, who has been running the 400-meter hurdles for only a year, scored easily in world record time of 47.64 with delighted Mike Shine of Penn State second.

Alberto Jauntoreno of Cuba won the 800 meters with another world record, 1:43.50 and Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago was a disappointing third.

Annegret Richter of West Germany won the other track final, the women's 100, with a time of 11.08. Americans were shut out of medals in that one.

Coffin, from Stratford, Vt., and Mike Plumb, Cheasapeak City, Md., finished one-two in the individual standings in the three-day equestrian and the Americans won the team title easily. Princess Anne of Great Britain finished 24th.

The United States got only one medal in men's rowing, a silver by Cal Coffey, Jewett City, Conn., and Mike Staines of Philadelphia in the coxless pairs.

Big Leaguers drop opener

The San Bernardino All-Stars which trailed 4-2 at the end of three innings of play bounced back to win a 5-4 decision from the Pomona Valley Big League All-Star squad Sunday night at Corona Butterfield Park.

Gary Easly of District 43 won the ballgame with an eighth inning leadoff home run off of District 20 hurler Butch Long. Long until the home run had pitched a strong game despite giving up four runs to the District 43 All-Stars. Long in six innings fanned six San Bernardino All-Star batters.

Pomona Valley built up a 4-2 lead in the first three frames with a three-run outburst in the second inning. Pomona Valley added one to its total in the third. The big blow of the second inning was a run-scoring double off the bat of Mark Stanley.

Pomona Valley All-Star squad will return to All-Star action Tuesday night at Corona Butterfield Park to battle the loser of Sunday's contest between West Covina and Barstow.

Here's an interesting football fact. . .Although George Blanda has played more seasons of pro football than anyone else in history (26), he does NOT hold the record for most consecutive seasons of playing pro football. . .Blanda played every year from 1949 through 1958, but then sat out 1959, and then played every year from 1960 through 1975, so the most consecutive years he's played are 16. . .Meanwhile Earl Morrall has played pro football every year from 1956 through 1975, so it is Morrall who holds the record for playing pro football the most consecutive years, 20.

One little-mentioned effect of baseball expansion is that now that the American League will have a team in Toronto starting next season, and since the National League already has a team in Montreal, it will be possible some year for the World Series to take place entirely outside the United States for the first time in history.

★★★

What's the fastest anyone ever played 18 holes of golf?. . .The world record is held by Len Richardson who once played a 6,248-yard, 18-hole course, holing out on each hole, in 31 minutes. . .Richardson was an Olympic runner and ran at top speed between each shot.

A's, Otis exchange angry words

By Associated Press

Earlier in the season, Amos "No Interviews" Otis was trying to prove that silence is golden.

Now, the Oakland A's are trying to prove it to him.

Kansas City's Otis sounded off after the Royals beat the A's with a big rally Saturday. The A's, who can read, came out roaring with a seven-run first inning Sunday and went on to a 9-2 romp.

"Those statements contributed very much to our victory," said Manager Chuck Tanner. "We didn't have to have any team meeting. The team was sky-high and showed it."

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 7-3 on Lee Stanton's 11th-inning grand slam for their victory in a row under new manager Norm Sherry while the Boston Red Sox suffered their fifth consecutive setback and sixth in seven games under new manager Don Zimmer, bowing to the New York Yankees 6-5 on Chris Chambliss' dramatic three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth.

Saturday, Otis said that "ever since Reggie Jackson left, the A's have been dead," adding: "How many lies is Chuck Tanner going to tell today? Every time he opens his mouth he says the A's have won the pennant. Doesn't he know he is nine games behind?"

That was Saturday. Now the lead is eight games, down from 10½ a week ago.

"Those statements will come back to haunt him," Tanner replied. "They haunted him today. He played a single into a triple and grounded out with the bases loaded. Otis is a quitter, not a leader. Maybe when the going gets tough he'll quit like he does every year."

Oakland's big inning against Doug Bird and Andy Hassler included RBI singles by Gene Tenace and Claudell Washington, Ken McMullen's two-run triple—Otis missed a shoestring catch—and a two-run homer by Phil Garner. Tenace homered in the third.

"This was a big win," Tanner said after the A's took the rubber game of the three-game set. "It meant two games because we could have been 10 back. We still have six games left against Kansas City and I think we can catch up."

Yankees 6, Red Sox 5

Chambliss slammed reliever Tom House's only pitch into the bleachers to cap a comeback that began after Boston led 5-0 in the fifth inning. Elrod Hendricks opened the ninth with a pinch single off Tom Murphy and Mickey Rivers doubled. After Murphy retired Roy White and Thurman Munson with no advance, Zimmer signaled for left-hander House, only to have the strategy backfire on House's first and only pitch.

"I told him to pitch him tough and I didn't care if he walked him," said Zimmer, whose defending AL champs are just one percentage ahead of last-place Milwaukee in the East Division. "I was hoping Martin would send up Lou Piniella. I played this game the way I wanted. I would not make any different moves. It's been about the toughest week I ever had."

Brewers 3, Orioles 1

Bill Travers allowed three hits, one a solo homer by Paul Blair, as Milaukee completed a four-game weekend sweep of the Orioles. The Brewers scored twice in the second inning on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Dave Pagan following three consecutive walks and Tim Johnson's two-out single off Rudy May.

Tigers 9-5, Indians 1-4

Pedro Garcia's two-run triple turned out to be the game-winning hit as Detroit piled up a five-run lead and held on to win the nightcap behind a 17-hit attack. In the opener, John Wockenfuss drove in two runs with a homer and single, Aurelio Rodriguez added a two-run single and Garcia slammed a two-run homer.

Twins 13-4, White Sox 8-7

Pinch hitter Lamar Johnson's three-run homer in the seventh inning brought Chicago from behind in the nightcap and snapped the Twins' longest winning streak of the season at five games. Rod Carew's basesloaded pinch triple featured a five-run Minnesota rally in the sixth inning of the opener that offset five RBI by Chicago's Jorge Orta.

The Twins pulled off a triple play in the first inning of the opener when catcher Glenn Borgmann grabbed Bill Stein's bunt in the air and threw to shortstop Luis Gomez, who stepped on second to double Orta and tagged Jim Spencer coming down from first for the third out.

Lighter bat helps Phils

By Associated Press

The Mike Schmidt model is a popular bat in Philadelphia — popular, that is, with everyone but Mike Schmidt.

The Philadelphia third baseman prefers the Johnny Oates model.

Schmidt, gripped by a mild slump, tried Oates' lighter, shorter bat and wound up hitting a home run Sunday to help the Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 13-7.

"I just grabbed Oates at going up to the plate," said Schmidt. "It's an ounce lighter and an ounce shorter than mine."

Schmidt also had two singles and drove in four runs, a performance that lifted his spirits and boosted the Phillies' lead in the National League East over the Pirates to 13 games.

"The Pirates must have wondered what I was doing in the big leagues, the way I've been hitting of late," said Schmidt, whose homer was his 26th this season but only his fourth in July. "I'm telling you, the Pirates' pitchers were so hard on me it was a shame. They weren't even bothering to throw me breaking balls. Just fire it past him, they seem to be thinking.

Ollie Brown also knocked in four runs for Philadelphia — but he did it with one swing, on a grand slam homer.

Astros 1, Giants 0

Greg Gross' sacrifice fly in the 10th inning scored Wilbur Howard as Houston blanked San Francisco behind rookie Mike McLaughlin's six-hitter.

Houston had loaded the bases in the 10th off losing pitcher Ed Halicki, 9-13, on a single by Ed Herrmann, an intentional walk to Rob Andrews and a walk to pinch-hitter Ken Boswell. Gross followed with his sacrifice fly.

"You just have to go out there and throw the ball," said McLaughlin after picking up his first major league victory. "If I go down to the minor leagues I can always come back up. It's good to get the experience in now."

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3

Don Kessinger contributed two key singles and second baseman Manny Trillo's two errors permitted St. Louis to score four unearned runs. Winning pitcher Lynn McGlothen, 9-9, restricted the Cubs to a double by loser Rich Reuschel, 9-8, until Chicago scored three runs in the eighth inning on five hits.

Expos 2, Mets 1

Andre Thornton singled home Ellis Valentine from third base with one out in the ninth to give Montreal its victory. With the bases loaded, the Mets were playing a drawn-in outfield and Thornton lashed the ball over the head of center fielder Pepe Mangual for the winning run.

Reds 7, Braves 6

George Foster tied the score with a leadoff home run in the eighth and Doug Flynn drove in the winning run later in the inning with a sacrifice foul pop, leading Cincinnati over Atlanta. The victory went to Gary Nolan and was the 100th of his career. Nolan, 9-5, went seven innings, giving up 10 hits. Bruce Dal Canton, 3-3, absorbed the loss.

Planners to consider request for drive-through restaurant

The Ontario Planning Commission will be asked Tuesday night to approve a conditional use permit to allow construction of a Der Wienerschnitzel drive-through restaurant at the southwest corner of Euclid Avenue and Francis Street.

The applicant, Colwell Ray Hornacek Okinaka, Inc., Tustin, proposes a restaurant with 44 permanent indoor seats. The site is part of the Alpha Beta shopping center recently constructed.

In recommending approval, the city staff proposes that only one seven-foot high sign be permitted. This would carry the franchise name and give no reference to the types of food served.

The commission meeting starts at 7 p.m. in the City Hall council chambers.

In another matter, the planners will consider a city-initiated request to rezone about six acres at the southeast corner of G Street and Archibald Avenue from industrial to commercial use.

Such a change is needed to bring the zoning in compliance with the city's general plan, said officials.

The commission will be asked to deny a tentative tract map for 20 lots on the west side of Cypress Avenue north of Phillips Street.

The application was filed by Dwight W. Mize.

But the planning staff recently received a letter from Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Durel indicating the sale of their property to Mize had expired and the application for a zone change signed by them on Sept. 18 was also "null and void."

The Charlberg Construction Co. will seek approval for a tentative tract map for 37 lots located on the east side of Cypress Avenue south of Francis Street.

The city staff recommended conditions be added to the City Engineer's office's report requiring verification by an acoustical engineer guaranteeing that all houses constructed meet state interior noise level standards and the California Department of Real Estate public report indicate the tract is subject to noise from Ontario International Airport and may have a greater noise impact.

3 car-crash in Pomona injures three

Three persons were injured in a three-car collision in Pomona late Saturday night in which one of the drivers fled the scene on foot, police reported.

The accident occurred at the Corona Expressway at Ninth Street shortly before midnight. Police said the missing motorist ran a red light eastbound in Ninth Street, slammed broadside into a car driven northbound in the expressway by Robert M. Gilpin, 50, of Burbank, knocking it into a car stopped headed west and driven by Billy Ray Sears, 22, of Claremont.

Injured in the accident were Gilpin, his wife, Jeanne R. Gilpin, 48, and Sears' passenger, Monte Elizabeth Shank, 25, of Pomona.

Only Mrs. Gilpin was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where her condition today was termed serious. She suffered a cerebral concussion and was in the hospital's intensive care unit. The other two victims were released after treatment of minor injuries.

Police said the missing driver apparently walked away as a crowd gathered at the accident scene. His car was impounded.

Pine to seek another term with Pomona school board

Elections to fill two seats on the Pomona school board will not be held until next March yet one member whose term is expiring already has announced he will seek another term.

He is Ken Pine, a Diamond Bar business executive, who has served on the board since Aug. 2, 1972.

The other member whose term expires next spring is Don L. Donnelly, first elected in 1969. School board terms are for four years.

Pine, in making his announcement, expressed "sincere thanks" to persons who sent cards, letters and gifts to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he underwent surgery July 8.

"I will be fully recovered within two weeks," said Pine. "I feel a new exuberance, a new attitude. I'd like to get back to work. I will run again in another eight months, get my seat back and go about accomplishing the goals we've set. I make a total commitment."

Pine listed the goals as "our policy on academic excellence, meeting recommendations made by the State Management Team, our Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) program, our bilingual program, a return to an emphasis on the basics, Affirmative Action, a budget we can all read and, hopefully, more education for the money we spend so we can reduce the tax burden in our district.

"Also, we have a new superintendent to break in and you all know how hard that is."

Pine won election to the board in July of 1972 to fill the unexpired term of Donald McCombs who resigned. He was re-elected to a full term in April of 1973. He served as board president in 1974-75.

Colleges make two pilot films for television program

Two pilot films for a television program designed to educate and entertain the elderly have been produced in a cooperative program by Pomona College and Cal Poly Pomona.

The films were produced under the direction of Monica Morris, assistant professor of sociology at Pomona College, and funded by a $23,317 grant from the John and Mary R. Markle Foundation in New York.

Mrs. Morris is taking the pilot films to network television stations, corporations and foundations on the East Coast this summer in the hopes that they will have commercial use.

Students were involved in research, editing scripts and designing and building sets and the filming was a joint venture of the two colleges under the directionof John Steven, program associate in the instructional television department at Cal Poly.

Title of the series, "Celebrate the Years!" emphasizes the "up-beat" mood, but does not play down totally the needs, loneliness and frequent poverty of the elderly.

Will Geer, the "Grandpa Walton" on television, is host in the two pilot programs which demonstrate some of the times which might be included in a series of programs intended for older viewers, but which might be entertaining and useful for a young audience.

One film stresses the need for older people to find satisfying work. The second pilot film explains self-protection.

The series will include a leaflet service that provides more information about work opportunities and other topics.

The idea for the series grew out of a course Mrs. Morris teaches at Pomona College which deals with social issues tha are tied to particular age groups.

Salary plan on Walnut board agenda

Walnut school board members may respond to collective negotiation proposals of both certified and classified employes tonight at 7:30.

The teachers' salary schedule proposed by the Walnut Valley Educators Association ranges from $10,337 to $21,890 for 1976-77. The approximate increase asked is 12 per cent.

The Walnut Chapter of the California Employes Association is asking for a 12.2 per cent increase for classified employes.

The proposal made by classified employes is fairly simple in form but teachers compiled a contract proposal 47 pages long including appendices.

David L. Brown, district superintendent, said today that the response formulated by the administrative staff for consideration by the board includes only items within the scope of the Rodda Act, which provides for collective bargaining.

He named specifically salaries, benefits, transfers and leaves but said no response is being prepared to a description of tenure, not included in Rodda Act provisions.

Banquet scheduled

The staff of Le Roy Boys' Home in La Verne will sponsor a scholarship banquet Tuesday for 21 boys who have done commendable work in school for the past six months.

The banquet will be at Sir George's restaurant in Pomona at 6:30 p.m.

The boys will receive trophies.

Hawaiian senator to help John Tunney's campaign

PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Hawaiian Sen. Daniel Inouye will campaign in California this fall for incumbent Sen. John Tunney.

Inouye, a Japanese-American and a star of the Senate Watergate hearings, will stump, probably in September, for Tunney, according to an aide, at the Californian's request.

Tunney's Republican opponent is the popular former president of San Francisco State University, S.I. Hayakawa, a Japanese-American.

An Inouye aide denied that Inouye's efforts will be "for political maneuvering, like heading off the Japanese vote or anything like that."

The aide admitted that would be an obvious advantage, but by "no means the major reason."

"Sen. Inouye is a good friend of Sen. Tunney," the aide pointed out.

Tunney apparently asked Inouye's help two or three weeks ago.

Inouye has campaigned for other Democrats in the past and is not up for reelection this year.

He is the former chairman of the Democratic Senate Campaign Committee, a committee responsible for helping Democratic senatorial candidates.

Credit Union to hear talk by league official

Bill Broxterman, managing director of the California Credit Union League (CCUL), Pomona, will be the featured speaker at the Tuesday meeting of the league's Mt. Baldy Chapter.

The meeting will be held at Orlando's in Pomona at 6 p.m. Broxterman will address credit union representatives on the issues facing them in the next two years.

Broxterman has been active in the credit union movement since 1952. He joined the CCUL in January 1974 after working as the executive assistant managing director of the Credit Union National Association (CUNA) in Washington, D.C., and also director of CUNA's Washington office.

The CCUL's Mt. Baldy Chapter is composed of credit union in West Covina, Pomona, Azusa, Upland and Ontario. There are 50 credit unions in the area of which 44 are affiliated with the CCUL. They have a combined membership of 52,096 and nearly $87 million in assets.

Alta Loma man honored

Donald E. Jones of Alta Loma has been honored by the General Telephone Co. for his 30 years of service with the company.

At special meeting of Pomona school board

$37 million budget to be reviewed

The Pomona school district's proposed 1976-77 $37 million publication budget will be reviewed at a special meeting of the school board Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Diamond Point Elementary School in Diamond Bar.

Other items to be considered by the board are the possible appointment of a principal at Pomona High School to succeed Joe Andrews, the awarding of a bid for construction of additions to Garey High School, an application for additional state monies to provide more child care programs, and a proposal that board meetings be rotated at locations throughout the district.

Also the board will be asked to authorize an expenditure of funds to provide language development programs for teachers and to pay August costs of bilingual (Title VII) and Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) programs pending approval of applications for the 1976-77 school year.

Administrators also will recommend that Henry F. Dalton, coordinator of the bilingual task force in San Bernardino County Schools, be retained to test and certify to the proficiency in Spanish of teachers seeking the bilingual-bicultural specialist credential. Cost of his service would be $200.

A salary schedule for hourly employes for 1976-77, reflecting a 7.2 per cent pay increase (with the exception of student helpers and student aides) will be presented for board approval.

Acting Supt. Sidney G. Moses will recommend that an administrative regulation be revised, detailing the role of board members in the negotiating process with employes.

It will be recommended that these paragraphs be added to the regulation: "Individual board members will not discuss employer-employe relations on an individual basis with any representatives, designated or otherwise, of any employe organization in the district.

"It is the policy of the board of education that any and all communications dealing with the employer-employe relations from employe organizations be directed through the official board's representatives as specified."

Administrators are to present information on what Senate Bill 1641, the new state school aid package, will mean to the district in terms of additional monies and changes in adult education funding.

Property tax initiative

Into the vacuum left by the Legislature's failure to provide tax relief for homeowners has moved Los Angeles County Assessor Phil Watson. He is readying another initiative campaign to limit property taxes.

Filed with the state he hopes to have sufficient signatures to qualify the measure by January. Even so it wouldn't go on the ballot until June 1978. It will be Watson's third effort to alter property taxes. He made unsuccessful attempts in 1968 and 1972.

Watson obviously has concluded the first two proposals lost because he attempted too much detail in spelling out other taxes to replace revenues which would have been lost. He avoids much of this now and his proposal merely places property tax limitations. The problem of devising substitute taxes is left to others, presumably the Legislature.

As a practical matter there are only two kinds of taxes which would provide enough revenues to offset the losses which would result from his proposal. One is income and the other is sales, which Watson concedes might have to go to 10 per cent.

Because the Watson proposal will eliminate property taxes entirely for those whose homes are valued at $20,000 or under and reduce them by at least two-thirds for all others, it undoubtedly will find considerable support, initially anyway.

For the measure would limit property taxes to 1½ per cent of market value, give a $20,000 exemption for owner occupied homes and an additional 20 per cent exemption on all homes.

It would also ban the use of property taxes to finance health, welfare and educational programs. This will appeal to those who have long contended that property should be taxed only to support property related services,such as sewer and water lines, streets, and police and fire departments.

But the limitation on the use of property taxes seems to be the joker. As it stands property taxes average slightly under 3 per cent of market value. Limiting that tax to 1½ per cent would then appear to require substantial cutbacks in local government costs. However, since more than half the property taxes go to health, welfare and educational programs, the net result would be more money for local government to spend. It is quite apparent that Watson is not striking at what many believe to be the cause of high taxation, the unbridled spending by local governments.

And since Watson does not propose any limitations on assessed valuations, his proposal offers no long range protections for property owners. Rapidly increasing market values of homes would soon see the tax bills back where they now are and climbing despite his provision for cost of living increases in the exemptions. All that would be accomplished would be some temporary relief on property taxes in exchange for implied consent to raise income, sales and other taxes. It amounts to a move to force a massive shift of taxes without reform and without permanent relief.

What the Watson proposal may do, however, is to finally spur the Legislature into serious action on tax reform with the chances being good for homeowner relief along with some controls over spending by local governments.

This because Watson has included a little provision which would require a two third majority vote of the Legislature to enact new or increased taxes rather than the simple majority now needed. If the lawmakers fail now to revamp the tax structure satisfactorily and the Watson measure wins approval by the voters, future levying of taxes by the Legislature will be far more difficult.

Think on these things

There are many thoughts just as well left unsaid — opinions best left unexpressed. We can't always help what we think, but experience teaches the wisdom of keeping many secrets with oneself.

Whatever is left unsaid will never have to be forgiven, nor will it come back to haunt us when and if we have a change of heart. When we express an opinion, it rules us — but as long as we think and do not talk, we have control over it. Even in the most open conversations it is well to listen much and say little, for a broad statement very often reveals a narrow mind.

Have you ever seen a fear-giant? It works in great silence. You hardly know it is there, except that you feel a mounting discomfort in your chest and stomach and your thoughts take on a whirling action. Sometimes you help to hide it by telling yourself not to be silly — and the fear-giant goes on working.

Fear-giants work best where people try to pretend they do not exist. But they cannot work in the light. They dwindle into nothing and leave us with a feeling of absolute quietness and peace when we realize they are simply negative and in the light of truth they are nothing. When fear knocks at the door and faith answers — there's no one there.

Challenges bilingual program

Dear Editor:

I wonder if Ms. Dancer of La Verne realizes the disservice she is doing Mexican-Americans by advocating for them the self-imposed apartheid of a separate language and a separate culture?

The reason most commonly given for the failure of certain Mexican-Americans to take their rightful place in our society is ignorance of its language. If this is true then how can it be of benefit to Mexican-American children to encourage them in the use of a language which is not that of the majority of the people with whom they will be in close contact throughout their lives?

By this I do not mean that they should be deprived of the language of their ancestors. The advantages, both cultural and material, of being bilingual are obvious. But I do mean that our public schools are not obligated to take over the responsibilities of parents who should, long before they enter school, teach their children the language of the classroom and playgrounds they will share with other young Americans.

Children who are unfortunate enough to come from homes where our language is not spoken should, of course, have special help. But this help should be in English, not in Spanish. Teaching programs or bestbooks which make them any more dependent upon a language which has already proven inadequate for their needs can make of them aliens in their own country.

No doubt Ms. Dancer will reply that there are parents who have no English to pass on to their children. But whose fault is this? For any one who wants to learn our language there are adult education courses. In our own area there is the vital English program which brings teachers into the home itself.

Parents who refuse to learn the language of the country they live in have only themselves to blame if their children are at a disadvantage in the schools of that country. Perhaps if they were to do otherwise there would be fewer high school drop-outs wasting their time in cars plastered with La Raza signs and Mexican flags.

Ms. Dancer speaks of the pride the United States has always taken in "the diversity of its racial groups" as though Americans prefer the immigrants who cherish their foreigness by keeping to themselves in alien enclaves lest they lose what she terms their "uniqueness" and "conform to a single cultural standard."

Personally I feel that we have far more reason to be proud of those who have added to our American way of life the best in their own while taking for themselves (and gladly!) the best in ours.

Ms. Dancer quotes freely from the 1848 Treaty of Guadulupe-Hidalgo too freely it seems to me when I recall that when I read that document in the National Archives museum a few months ago I failed to see the clause which, according to her, entitles Mexican American children to special food in school cafeterias. She would have us believe that its terms remain "sorely unfulfilled."

But I have lived a lifetime among the descendants of the people to whom the Treaty Of Guadalupe offered full citizenship and all the rights of Americans and found that the greater number of those who accepted that offer and claimed those rights by becoming loyal Americans are, except for their Spanish surnames, indistinguishable from their fellow Californians. Nor has it been necessary for them to sacrifice either their Spanish language or their Latin culture.

Ms. Dancer also takes exception to the fact that Mrs. Becker objects to the use of Spanish-English ballots, stating that she "can think of no reason other than bigotry or a misplaced sense of importance for any person being 'insulted' by their use." I am not bigoted nor do I suffer from a misplaced sense of importance and yet I agree with Mrs. Becker. No individual who has so little interest in the country he lives in that he does not even bother to learn its language has a right to cast a vote in the determining of its affairs. I am not "insulted" as Mrs. Becker says that she was at the sight of such a dual ballot but I would be if I were a Mexican-American. Why, of all the ethnic groups, should his be singled out as being the one that cannot or will not learn to read English?

Ms. Dancer is very articulate and seems informed on many subjects, so much so, that I would like to apply to her for some information. She speaks of "Numerous countries" which have "for years supported bilingual and even multilingual programs." Will she be so kind as to give me the names of these countries and tell me whether or not such commendable programs are supported, as our supposedly faulty ones are, by public funds. Also I would like to know if these other-than-native languages are included in the curriculum because they are expected to enrich the student culturally, give him a practical advantage in the business and professional worlds, or because a minority group "demands" (the word is Ms. Dancer's) their inclusion.

I am especially interested in hearing about this program in Mexico. I have traveled the length and breadth of that country, with more than a casual tourist's interest, and yet never once heard of a public supported school that offered English courses for the sole benefit of an American minority. English in Mexican schools is an elective course, as Spanish is in ours, and is designed for the Mexican who wants it (and can afford it) for his own personal enrichment or because it will be of use to him in earning his living.

Another question, and this one about the Black Studies program with which Ms. Dancer was associated in Michigan; was this valuable cultural program conducted in English or in one or more African languages? Would the use of the languages of their ancestors (presuming that most of the class was black) have contributed anything to the meaningfulness of the course, and had the students demanded that it be taught in these languages would Ms. Dancer consider their "demands" valid ones?

And about our "biased" history books with which, although I am something of a reader myself, Ms. Dancer seems more familiar than I, is there in print (even if not in use in our schools) a completely unbiased text written by what she calls a Third World American, namely, Blacks, Latinos, Native Americans (Indians), and Asian Americans? If such a book exists I would like to read it. I am sure that its lack of prejudice would be most refreshing.

Ford's men savor victory

The war of nerves over the Republican presidential nomination has reached its final stages.

The public, caught up in the drama, is watching in fascination as Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan struggle for the last few delegates. There have been bitter, conflicting claims from both camps.

But in the backrooms of President Ford's campaign headquarters, his top political strategists are behaving as if the nomination has already been won. They have turned their attentions to what they acknowledge is the "uphill battle" against Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter.

Ford's campaign aides are dedicated to the proposition that the President's first duty is to get himself re-elected. To this end, they are drafting a secret battle plan, which they expect him to use in the campaign. Our sources have seen preliminary drafts of the plan which they have summarized for us.

The Ford forces are still divided over whether to conduct a national or a regional campaign. Some advisers believe he should stay in the White House and emphasize his role as the incumbent President. These aides acknowledge candidly that his latest campaign endeavors have been disappointing.

One confidential paper suggests the final strategy should be determined by his choice of running mate. If he selects an aggressive campaigner like ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally, Ford should not campaign actively. But if he chooses a lackluster running mate like Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, the President may be needed on the campaign trail.

His personal preference, he has told senior White House aides, is "to run a national campaign," soliciting electoral votes in all 50 states. But many aides, disagreeing, want to concentrate on "selected areas."

His astute campaign strategist, Stu Spencer, favors the regional approach. "The President must pick off some of the big ones in the Midwest to win the election," Spencer has advised. "We can't blanket the nation." He has mentioned Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Ford has the best chance of beating Carter in the Midwestern states, in the opinion of most campaign aides. They also would like him to make a special effort to pick up a few of the heavily populated states, such as California, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Despite Carter's appeal in the South, some Ford strategists, including Spencer, have counseled against writing off the South. They also believe the President can win some of the border states. But they have little hope of winning New York and will advise Ford, therefore, not to waste too much time there.

The President's strategists believe Jimmy Carter is vulnerable, despite his current formidable lead in the popularity polls. They will try to capitalize on what they describe as "a vague feeling of unease about Carter."

Carter: Now the tough part

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Jimmy Carter's strategy is clear: To convince labor leaders he would be willing to see a destruction of right-to-work laws and simultaneously to reassure non-union working men and employers he would not work to abolish those laws where they exist.

To convince the anti-abortion groups he personally is against abortion and to reassure the pro-abortion advocates he would not stand in the way of more liberal abortion laws.

To convince women's groups he is in favor of equal representation in government, in employment, at Democratic party conventions while standing four-square against quotas.

To convince liberals he is heart and soul with them by the selection of Walter Mondale, Hubert Humphrey's protege from Minnesota as his vice-presidential running mate and by repeated assertions he sees eye to eye with Mondale on every important issue the two have discussed, while reassuring Southerners in particular and conservatives generally with repeated reminders that he grew up in one of the most conservative communities in the South and by insistent references to the importance of private industry, financial conservatism, budget balancing and efficiency.

To convince those in favor of expanded welfare, unemployment and health care programs he is one of them by outlining his concept of what needs to be done, while assuring those concerned with rising government expenditures that he will make certain overall spending will not be allowed to rise. There would, he says, be cuts elsewhere to match the increases.

To convince those concerned with military spending that he will make impressive cuts in the defense budget, while assuring those worried about the rise in Soviet nuclear power he would work for stronger defense — specifically that he would favor a firm increase in naval power.

To convince those disillusioned with government inefficiency that bureaucratic waste will be curbed while promising the bureaucracy that its economic needs would be met and its political power increased.

To convince those disillusioned with government bureaucratic inefficiency and waste while promising the government bureaucracy that its economic needs would be met and its political power increased.

To convince the unemployed and those who favor more government planning and regulation in management of the economy through an endorsement of the Humphrey-Hawkins unemployment bill, while reassuring those who fear such government intervention by expressing strong reservations about major aspects of that measure and by promising major changes in the regulatory agencies.

To convince those who fear he would be too soft in international affairs by threatening the sharpest sort of economic retaliation against the Arab nations if they once again imposed an oil boycott — while reassuring those who fear strong action by sharp attacks on Ronald Reagan's stance on the Panama Canal.

The Carter-party unity and harmony at the Democratic National Convention was held in place at a cost of submerging a good many of the issues and differences with hard fisted rulings against floor debate on a series of emotional issues, decisions made by the Rules Committee at the insistence of Carter's representative. These differences, however, will not disappear into thin air. What remains to be seen is whether Carter can keep them under control in the hard campaign that lies ahead.

The question in the end is whether Carter is a moderate who can convince those on opposite sides of important questions that he honestly understands and sympathizes with each, without offending and alienating the other side — or both — in each case. Thus far he has been remarkably successful in this attempt. But as each sector of the public asks increasingly pointed and precise questions — demanding less philosophy and more details on exact programs — Carter the candidate will face his most difficult moments.

From now on, whatever Carter says to one group will be televised for all groups to see and hear — including those with diametrically opposite views.

Mortuary fee finally paid

My husband died in April 1974 following a long illness.

He was a veteran of World War I and entitled to benefits of $250 for mortuary charges, $160 for cemetery expenses and, from Social Security, $255 in death benefits.

The Social Security and cemetery allowances were paid but not the mortuary charges.

The mortuary has contacted the Veterans Administration in Los Angeles many times. There have been no results.

Once the people at the Veterans Administration informed the mortuary that the file had been lost and a tracer was being started. Nothing has come of that.

I myself endeavored to get some action through the service officer of a local veterans' organization but nothing has been heard from him.

My patience has worn thin. I will greatly appreciate any assistance you can render. — Mrs. N.P., Pomona

Our letter to the Veterans Administration along with copies of documents substantiating your claim brought no direct answer from the VA staff.

But you wrote to us that through our efforts the amount due the mortuary was paid.

You wrote that we accomplished in a few weeks' time what you tried for over two years to get done.

We have had a problem with El Dorado Mint in Los Alamitos. We have been ordering mission ingots from this firm.

We are supposed to receive an ingot once a month. I end up writing a letter at least once a month before we receive our ingot.

It has been 2½ months since I sent off for the San Francisco de Solano Mission ingot. I have written to ask why the delay but have had no response.

The people there never let me know anything.

I wish you would find out why they take so long to send us our ingot. — C.A., Ontario

Our expereince with El Dorado Mint resembled yours. E.W. Randell of the firm replied a month and three days after the date of our letter.

He sent us a copy of a letter to you saying your San Francisco de Solano Mission bar was mailed to you two days after our letter was sent.

Since then another bar was mailed to you and a third order was being processed. Randell apologized for delays he said were caused by suppliers and labor.

He sent a note to us thanking us for our interest in your behalf.

The lids were almost impossible to get last year and aren't too plentiful now.

He has a lot of company

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will let me reply to "Bedroom Trouble Up North." He's the man who asked his wife to wear black nylon stockings and a garter belt to bed. The poor fellow needs to be told he's not nuts.

Dear B.T.: I know how frustrated you must feel. Your request was reasonable, honest and healthy, not in the least sick. I admire the loyalty you demonstrated by seeking advice from Ann Landers. In your letter you said you didn't want to "run around," just wanted to know if your request was weird.

As a former call girl, I've met hundreds of men who needed an outlet for frustration, without making a commitment. I also met men who were bothered by feelings of abnormality because they were turned on by simple things like black stockings and garter belts. I know the scene well. Their uptight, small-minded wives had laid guilt traps for these imaginative, normal males.

There is no harm in putting a little zing in the bedroom performance. Husbands should not need to go outside of marriage for excitement. How sad that so many wives have been warped by man-hating mothers who taught them sex is a "duty." Poor things. Sign me — At Home With All Kinds

Dear At Home: As a former member of the oldest profession you are certainly qualified to speak on this subject in a way very few can. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I need to know if my girlfriend and I are related.

Her brother married my sister. Since I am an uncle of their son and my girl friend is the little boy's aunt, it does make us relatives, doesn't it? She says no.

I'm worried about marrying a relative because our children might not be right mentally.

I hope you can figure out what I'm trying to say. With a high-school education this is as good as I can do. — Andy

Dear Andy: You are not blood relatives, just kin by marriage. Go ahead and marry the girl, if this is the only thing about her that bothers you.

Dear Ann: I'm 30 years old, the mother of several children. I have a severe case of varicose veins, only mine are splattered-looking, close to the surface.

My family doctor said nothing could be done so I went to another doctor. He injected medicine into one of the veins which he called a "feeder." It made aarge scar and didn't jelp. Is there any way I can get rid of these ugly veins? I love swimming and I hate the way I look. — D.N.

Dear D.N.: I checked with several physicians and the consensus is as follows: The veins sound too small to be stripped. Injections will not help. Buy Covermark (usually found in drugstores) and if it's properly applied the veins will not show. Yes, you can go swimming. It's waterproof.

Dear Ann: What can we do to dispel the myth that "nice girls don't get raped and bad girls shouldn't complain"?

My aunt was raped last week and the way she was treated at the emergency room of the hospital was outrageous. She decided not to press charges. Thanks for your help. — Stumped

Dear S.: Your aunt should have pressed charges — regardless. She should also have reported her hospital abusers to the head of the institution. Most emergency room personnel are wonderfully sympathetic. Your aunt ran into a bummer.

Any future in Futurism?

Since my great and good friend Johannes Gutenberg first pressed ink to paper lo, these many years ago, one of the most popular written works has always been the gazing-into-the-future form of literature now dignified as science-fiction. ("Gutenberg, we don't like your type!")

(Never say sci-fi, as in sigh-fie. Aficianados call it s-f, as in ess-eff.)

From the Biblical soothsayers to Burgess' "A Clockwork Orange" and Paul Ehrlich's "The Population Bomb," propheteering has always been an exciting and lucrative pastime. Today, because we like labels, we call this Futurism. Wells ("Mind at the End of Its Tether"), Huxley ("Brave New World"), Capek ("R.U.R."), Toffler ("Future Shock"), Herbert ("Dune"), Azimov ("Foundation Trilogy") — the list is endless of writers looking into the future, some with hope, others with none.

One of the former is Herman Kahn, director of the crystal-gazing Hudson Institute, whose recent book, "The Next 200 Years" is a euphoric glimpse of a future of declining population growth, rising levels of affluence, ample energy sources, and food for everyone. You Kahn hardly resist his ebullient optimism.

Then there are the Cassandras of our society who issue glum warnings that the world is consuming and polluting itself to death. Ethnic injustice, nuclear expansion, overconsumption, war, famine and those other horsemen threaten a violent and ugly future — or possibly no future at all. Whose side are you on?

What do YOU believe about the future? (Never mind what you hope — we all hope the same things.) What kind of a world are you projecting for your children and your grandchildren? Police state or freedom through the world? Starving millions or ample food for all? Can we lick smog and the diamond lane? Will nuclear armaments be brought under control? Will any of us be alive Jan. 1, 2000? (Twenty-four years from now. Hang on.)

Leaving aside the astrologers and phrenologists, people are always curious about the future, about "what's going to happen," about the live and times of their descendants in a world they never made. "The human race," says Time magazine, "can no more stop prophesying than it can stop breathing." (In 1945 there were 35 s-f books published; in 1975 there were 900 titles. I'll say interest in the future!) (An optimist is the condemned prisoner asking for a doggy bag at his last meal.)

All responsible seers know that the future of Futurism lies in today — what we do about famine, poverty, nuclear development, international relations, power shortages, pollution. Our future, you might say, lies in our hands.

"Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow," Macbeth laments, "creeps in this petty pace from day to day to the last syllable of recorded time, and all our yesterdays have lighted fools the way to dusty death." What a Gloomy Gus.

With a responsible and informed attitude toward our lives and our world, humanity can control its present and future to assure that it is not "a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

I don't care what Jeane Dixon says.

Dr. Lamb

His chances of heart disease

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a male, 67 years old, 6 feet tall and weight 186 pounds. Is that too much? I'm in excellent health. I smoke a pack of cigarettes a week and drink an occasional cocktail or beer.

When I came home from a German concentration camp in 1945 a check-up showed an ulcer — duodenal, perforated — which I have lived with since without any medication. It hurts a little every spring and fall, but a good diet for a week makes it disappear and I can eat and drink anything I want again. So, why am I going to have a heart attack and what can I do about it?

I am very calm and get 10 minutes of exercise every morning, plus jogging 100 yards. I ask because I have these beginning signs — pains in the left arm near the elbow and sometimes little pains in the chest (but it could be pain from the ulcer — right?).

I can stop smoking any time I want to, but what can I drink if coffee, tea and chocolate drinks are out? I drink three to four glasses of milk every day. I certainly would like to read your advice in our paper.

DEAR READER — If we assume that your blood pressure is normal at 135 and your cholesterol normal at 210, you have 11.8 chances in a hundred of developing coronary heart disease within the next six years. That assumes that you have a normal electrocardiogram, don't have diabetes or some other medical finding. If you didn't smoke at all you would have only 7.9 chances in 100 of this problem.

Notice that I made two very important assumptions, that your blood pressure and cholesterol were normal. These two factors and cigarette smoking are the important ones that you can do something about.

If you want to decrease your chances of having a heart attack I would recommend that you stop smoking, and if you have any excess fat at all under your skin that you should go on a sensible diet until it is all gone. It really doesn't matter what the reading on the scales is or how tall you are. What counts is how much fat you have under the skin and you can tell that with a little realistic self-examination. People who get rid of the fat or never develop it in the first place have a better chance of having a lower blood pressure and lower cholesterol levels.

What can you drink? Water is still used by some primitive people and is surprisingly good at quenching thirst. You can drink fortified skim milk and not have a high intake of fat or cholesterol. You could drink fruit juices as long as you don't drink so much that you overdo your calorie intake. People who like a hot coffee-like beverage can use Postum. You'll find it tastes better if you use less than is recommended on the jar in the brewing of your cup of Postum.

You can't tell what ill defined chest pains mean. You should see a doctor and find out. They can be from musculo-skeletal disorders, digestive compalints, even arthritis or from heart conditions. It is a good idea to have a good examination and find out which of these is the real cause.

Meanwhile I would suggest that you follow a program that I outlined for people who are recovering from a heart attack. It works just as well in preventing the first one. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-12, After The Heart Attack, with this information in it. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Jim: "In contract, North and South would bid and make four hearts. In auction when declarer got credit for everything made they would play two hearts and make four. In bridge the dealer either made trump or said 'I bridge it' whereupon is partner had to make trump."

Oswald: "Once South made it notrump North could not go to hearts. West made the book lead (book of 1905) of the deuce of clubs. East's queen lost to South's ace and three notrump wrapped up. Actually, the hand was given as an example of great card reading by South. You led your longest suit against notrump and if you had two suits of equal length you led from the stronger one."

Jim: "I see what the writer was driving at. West had led fourth best from a suit headed by nothing. Hence, he held three cards in each other suit. South played his ace of hearts, finessed against West's queen and wound up making twelve tricks. The author never pointed out that maybe a queen of spades lead from that collection of trash in the West hand would have been far better."

How Ivory soap got its name

Everybody knows that the floating Ivory Soap was first concocted accidentally by a daydreaming factory worker who inadvertently left the mixing machine on too long, so thusly whipped too much air into the batter. Fewer understand how Harley T. Procter came to change the name of the product from White Soap to Ivory, however. A Bible reader was Mr. Procter. What inspired him was Psalm 45:8: "All thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces whereby they have made thee glad."

DOGS

Q. "Louie, how can you call yourself a canine expert if you can't identify the famous dogs owned by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Richard M. Nixon, Lyndon B. Johnson and Mickey Mouse?"

A. Who calls himself a canine expert? Fala, Checkers, Him and Her, and Pluto.

Q. "How much does it cost to get a hunting license to kill an elephant in Africa?"

A. In Kenya, it's $225 for the general hunting license plus a $300 fee per elephant with a three-elephant limit. The zebra fee is only $8. Crocodile, $12. African lion, $45.

LOVE AND WAR

Our Love and War man sometime back reported sadly that it's an exceeedingly rare bridegroom who got down on one knee to propose to his ladyfriend. Not so rare, turns out. Numerous feminine subscribers have written in high pride that their husbands did just that thing, and mostly in recent years, too. The nature of the notes indicates beyond question that the one-knee proposal becomes a cherished memory in the minds of the ladies so honored. Our L. and W. man is thinking of including its endorsement as a plank in the platform of his upcoming Love and War Party. Along with such other planks as those that call for girls aboard submarines and detente with Women's Lib.

Q. "HOW IS RAINFALL MEASURED?"
SUE PRESTON SANTA ROSA, CA
A. RAINFALL IS MEASURED WITH AN INSTRUMENT CALLED A RAIN GAUGE, WHICH COLLECTS RAINFALL AND MEASURES ITS DEPTH IN INCHES
© 1976 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
DICK ROGERS
7/26

The weatherman measures rainfall with a special instrument called a rain gauge. It measures the amount of rain that falls on a certain area during a given period of time.

Among the many kinds of rain gauges made, the simplest kind is shaped like a long, hollow tube closed at the lower end, with a funnel at the top. Rain enters the funnel and falls into the tube where it can be easily measured.

In the United States, rainfall is measured in inches. When the weatherman says that we have had one inch of rainfall, he means enough rain has fallen to make a layer of water one inch deep on level ground if none sank in. When he speaks of a "trace of rain," he means that not enough rain has fallen to be measured.

Rainfall means all the water that falls, including snow, sleet and hail.

There is much less water in snow than there is in rain. It takes about 10 or 12 inches of snow to equal one inch of rain.

Breaks tradition before nomination

Reagan surprise: names V.P. choice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan said today he has selected U.S. Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his vice presidential running mate if he wins the Republican nomination for president.

Reagan said he knew he was breaking with tradition to announce his choice for a vice president in advance of the convention.

"Since I now feel that the people and the delegates have a right to know in advance of the convention who a nominee's vice presidential choice would be, I am today departing from tradition and announcing my selection," Reagan said in a news conference.

He refused to answer any questions and left immediately after reading a 350-word statement.

Reagan, a conservative challenger to President Ford, said that Schweiker, who has a more moderate image, is someone "whose basic beliefs (are) compatible with my own."

He described Schweiker as "a man of independent thought and action, with a background in business and 16 years in public service. He is respected by his colleagues but has not become a captive of what I call "the Washington buddy system.'"

Reagan did not mention in his prepared statement that Schweiker represents the state with the second-largest bloc of uncommitted delegates. Pennsylvania's 103-vote delegation stands 71-6 for Ford, with 25 uncommitted and one for Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

That 65-delegate margin in Pennsylvania represents slightly more than the entire nationwide delegate lead of 60 held by the President.

Reagan talked about Schweiker's qualifications for the vice presidency.

"He has an awareness of the shortcomings in our foreign policy and the domestic threat posed by continuing the present policies of inflationary deficit spending," the former California governor said.

"I have met with him and we have spent a considerable amount of time personally discussing the critical issues that face us today and the principles by which we would lead the nation," he said.

In the past week, spokesmen for both Reagan and President Ford have announced they were over the top in the delegate hunt.

James Baker, Ford's chief delegate hunter, announced that the President had 1,135 delegates, five more than the 1,130 needed for the nomination. Earlier, John Sears, Reagan's campaign director, announced Reagan had 1,140 delegates.

That means at least 16 — and possibly many more — of the 2,259 delegates to the Republican National Convention are being counted by both sides.

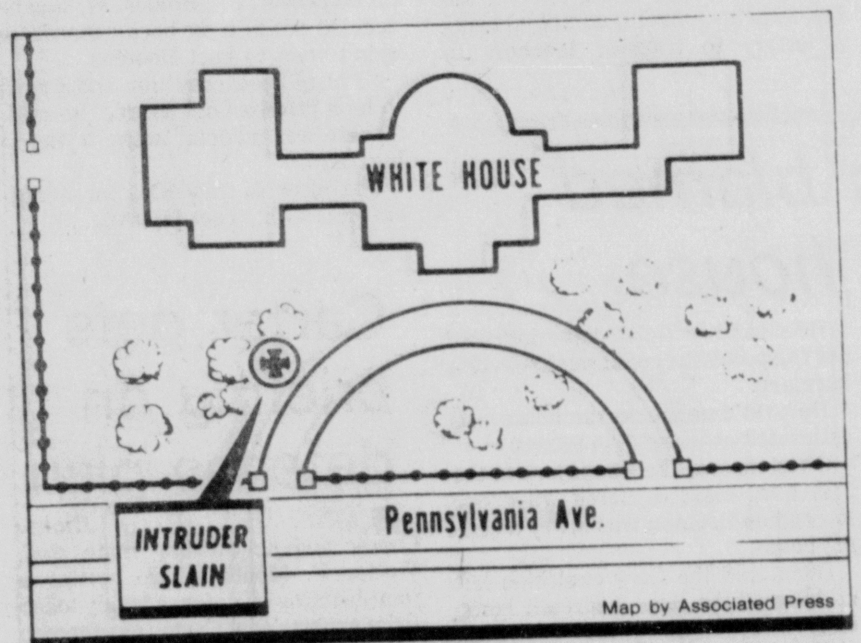
Slain W.H. intruder baffles police



Map pinpoints where the White House intruder was slain. He climbed the fence from Pennsylvania AVenue, a witness said.

Motive of pipe-wielding cabbie who leaped over fence unclear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authorities said today they are puzzled about what motiviated a cab driver who scaled a White House fence and threatened a guard with a three-foot pipe before being shot to death.

Washington police said the intruder, Chester M. Plummer, 30, raised the pipe "in a threatening manner" and ignored repeated orders of an Executive Protective Service guard to halt on the White House lawn Sunday night.

The guard, Pvt. Chales A. Garland, fired a single shot that hit Plummer in the upper left chest and felled him about 60 feet from the eight-foot fence he had scaled along Pennsylvania Avenue.

Plummer's name was not included on a list of about 38,000 persons considered a potential threat to government officials, said special agent Lewis McClam of the Secret Service. He said the agency is unaware of any grievance Plummer might have had against the government.

"We're trying to find out the purpose, the reasoning" of the incident, McClam said.

Plummer's father, Clarence M. Plummer Sr., identified his son's body at the hospital. Plummer told a reporter he was a District of Columbia government guard and said: "I don't know what happened."

A resident of an apartment house where Plummer lived for a time described him as a "loner" who was little known to others in the neighborhood.

The police said Plummer, a 30-year-old Washington cab driver, reportedly had a criminal record, but was not involved in any previous intrusions on the White House grounds.

A police sergeant said Plummer's motive was unknown. After talking with Plummer's parents, the sergeant said, "He never indicated to them he had any qualms with the President." Plummer, a bachelor, was estranged from his parents, he added.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner, asked whether the incident would cause any security changes at the White House, replied, "We constantly review our 'security procedures and find no problems with the outer perimeter at this time."

The White House recently installed crash-proof gates costing $550,000. A man crashed into the old gates in a car on Christmas Day 1974, and in February 1973 an AWOL soldier landed a helicopter on the White House lawn amid a hail of bullets from guards. Last November an unarmed intruder came within a few feet of Susan Ford, the President's daughter, on the first of his three illicit entries onto the grounds.

But no previous incident resulted in death or serious injury.

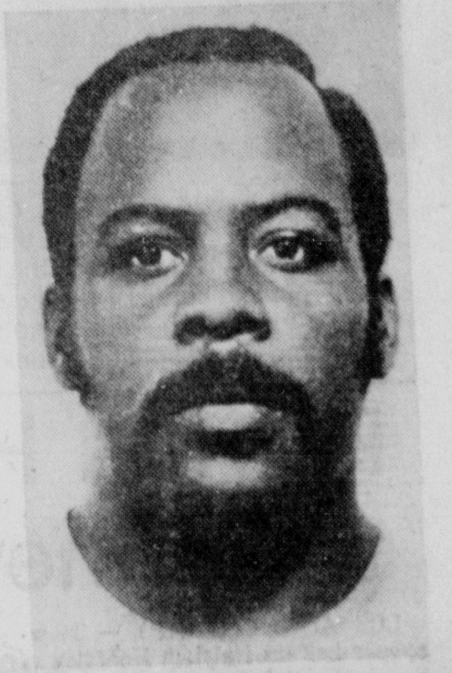
A dispatcher at the Red Top Cab Co. in Arlington, Va., where Plummer worked, said, "He was really a nice guy. He was quiet."

Plummer was shot several hundred feet from the White House, where President r second floor quarters. It was not known whether Ford heard the shot, but White House spokesmen say he was informed of the incident.

An ambulance squad tried to revive Plummer with heart massage on the White House lawn. He stopped breathing en route to George Washington Hospital, where efforts to revive him continued. He was pronounced dead at 11:05 p.m., about 90 minutes after the shooting.

Several women staging a summer-long vigil outside the White House for the Equal Rights Amendment said they noticed the man walking nervously around the White House area with the pipe in his hand for about 45 minutes before the shooting.

"He'd sit down, cross the street and come back, climb up on the rails and look in for a while and sit down," said Barbara Janifer, 18, of Seat Pleasant, Md., who was part of the vigil.



CHESTER M. PLUMMER

Another demonstrator, Judith Witherow, said, "Everytime he saw the police he would move."

A Secret Service official said, "The individual was observed earlier ... by EPS officers, but did not make any overt attempt at that time to arouse suspicion as to a possible penetration."

Plummer set off an alarm and was "immediately detected" by Garland and another officer when he scaled the fence, and Garland approached him alone, the official said.

Garland, 25, will be placed on administrative leave pending a routine grand jury investigation, the police said.

2 others believed involved in hijack, kidnaping of kids

CHOWCHILLA (AP) — As many as five persons may have been in on the kidnaping of a busload of Chowchilla school children, investigators say.

With one in jail and two more being sought, authorities said Sunday two more persons may be named in the nationwide manhunt to find the kidnapers.

"There has been some talk of a fourth and a fifth person being involved," a law enforcement source told The Associated Press. "But we haven't gotten far enough into the investigation to be sure."

Newspapers quoted investigators Sunday as saying a middle-aged man may have masterminded the elaborate July 15 kidnaping of 26 children and a bus driver.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates also said it seemed "logical" to assume at least four people were involved in the abduction. Noting the majority of the children were girls, Bates said the kidnaping gang might have included a woman to care for them.

Federal and local arrest warrants have been filed for Frederick N. Woods IV and James L. Schoenfeld, both 24. Woods' father owns the Livermore rock quarry where the children were held captive for 17 hours in a buried moving van before they managed to escape.

Schoenfeld's 22-year-old brother, Richard, surrendered Friday and is being held in the Alameda County Jail.

"We're definitely pursuing the possibility that there are other suspects in this case," an investigator told the San Francisco Examiner. "These others might be the brains behind the whole thing."

The Oakland Tribune quoted a source close to the investigation as saying there is "a possibility that an older male was involved in the kidnaping, and there are some good leads to back it up."

According to the victims, including 55-year-old bus driver Ed Ray, two of their captors were men in their 40s and 50s. Authorities have refused to explain the obvious discrepancies between the victims' descriptions and the youthful appearances of Woods and the Schoenfelds.

Richard Schoenfeld was visited by his parents and his attorney over the weekend.

"My client shows signs of being suicidal," attorney William Gagen said after a two-hour session with Schoenfeld Saturday. "He also fears that his brother...also might commit suicide."

Scientists cure arm ailment

Viking gets a free hand for tests

PASADENA (AP) — With Viking 1 back to almost-perfect health, scientists are preparing for this week's search for life on Mars — man's first scientific analysis of another planet's surface.

On Sunday, scientists unjammed the lander's sampling arm, in which a pin from a protective covering had become stuck for several days.

Now, with the arm unjammed, the experiment will take place according to schedule on Wednesday, the lander's eighth day on Mars, Viking Project Manager James Martin said Sunday.

The telescoping device is to reach out and scoop up 50 cubic centimeters of Martian soil — enough to fill a shot glass. The analysis of that soil is the key to Viking's search for life as well as its attempts to find out about the planet's evolution.

Unjamming the pin represented a major step toward a successful mission, but it did not remedy everything that has gone wrong with Viking 1. A seismometer to measure and locate marsquakes, the equivalent of earthquakes, was still out of operation after several attempts to repair it from earth.

"There's been no new word on the seismometer," Martin said, "and I frankly don't hold out much hope for success."

Scientists unjammed the pin by recreating the problem on an identical lander here and developing a command to free the pin.

There were several anxious hours between the issuing of the command and Viking's response. The craft finally sent back pictures showing the arm in the correct position, and then close-up shots of a small section of the red, rocky Martian surface.

There, the scientists spotted the pin and knew the arm was again in working order.

"We're heading right on forward," Martin said. "Everybody's very happy and excited."

"All of the (mission's) teams were very concerned about the pin," said engineer Ron Frank. "But it's in perfect health now."

On Sunday, after deciding to have the sampling done in a relatively smooth area less cluttered with sharp Martian rocks than the spot originally set for examination, scientists sent the command for the arm to conduct its soil collecting work on Wednesday. Whether it responds to the order will be known late that day.

Martin said he was "very excited" about Viking's chances for coming up with some proof of Martian life, chances he said were "greatly enhanced" by the craft's discovery of nitrogen in the atmosphere there in samples last week.

Nitrogen is one of the requirements for the existence of life as earthlings know it.

Martin said calculations based on the newest data received from the lander showed that the craft was only about 33 kilometers off the exact landing target when it touched down. Scientists were shooting for a landing anywhere within a 100by-140-kilometer oval.

Sea evacuation slated

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The United States today made plans for its second seaborne evacuation of Americans following the collapse of the latest of more than 50 cease-fires in the Lebanese civil war.

The helicopter carrier Iwo Jima and five other ships of a 6th Fleet task force were expected to move into place off the Lebanese coast to send one or more unarmed landing ships ashore Tuesday.

A total of 154 Americans and 281 persons of other nationalities registered with the U.S. Embassy last week for the evacuation. It was thought the number might increase because of the failure of the cease-fire attempt Sunday.

Plans for a road convoy to take the evacuees to Damascus, Syria, were cancelled because the embassy decided the trip would not be safe. The same thing happened in June, and the U.S. Navy removed 110 Americans and 157 other persons from the seafront on June 20.

Parts of valley hit by rare rain storm

A rare summer rain storm hit the western portion of the valley Sunday, but other areas got only a few drops.

The early afternoon rain measured .10 of an inch at Pomona's official weather station at Cal Poly, west of the city. The storm didn't move far across the Pomona city line, however, and The Progress Bulletin gauge downtown recorded no rain.

The weather station at Mt. San Antonio College reported .04 of an inch. La Verne and San Dimas also reported brief ranfalls.

More rain is on the way, at least in some parts of Southern California. It may not amount to a deluge, but the showers are predicted through Tuesday over a wide area of the mountains and desert regions.

There's also a chance of light showers in the coastal and intermediate valleys and Los Angeles and vicinity, forecasters said. In any case, skies are expected to be mostly cloudy through Tuesday. However, little change in temperatures is predicted.

Weather

Early morning cloudiness with hazy afternoon sunshine today and Tuesday. Possibility of scattered showers in the foothills. High today 85, low tonight 60, high Tuesday 87. The high Sunday was 85 and the overnight low was 63. The high Saturday was 93, and the overnight low was 59. Tuesday's sunrise 5:58, sunset 7:56.

Gasoline fire flares up

Chino father, two sons burned

A father and his two young sons suffered severe burns in a garage accident in Chino Sunday afternoon.

According to Chino fire officials, the father, Craig Johnson of 12949 12th St., was trying to repair a portable stove when a plastic cup of gasoline he had set nearby ignited.

The fire melted the plastic cup and the fuel spilled on Johnson's sons, Brandon, 4, and Bryant, 2, setting them ablaze. Johnson burned his hands smothering the flames.

The three were treated by paramedics, then taken to Chino General Hospital. From there Johnson and son Brandon were flown by a Los Angeles County Fire Department helicopter to the Sherman Oaks Burn Center for further treatment. Both were reported in good condition this morning.

Capt. Forest Alderman of the Chino Fire Department said when the firemen arrived at the scene the flames already were out.

Wants Ford to invoke Taft-Hartley Act

Reagan urges 'cooling off' time in cannery dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — As negotiations in the California cannery workers' strike continue, Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan is urging President Ford to impose a cooling-off period in the dispute, which could imperil California's vast fruit harvest.

The two sides in the 6-day-old strike spent 13 hours with an official of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service on Sunday, and the talks were scheduled to resume this morning. A mediation service spokesman had no report on whether negotiators made progress Sunday.

Reagan, a former governor of California, urged Ford on Sunday to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act immediately in the strike.

Reagan said the walkout "at the peak of fruit harvesting season threatens to bring disaster to California agriculture and fuel a new round of inflated food prices."

"I respectfully request him to act now in the national interest," Reagan said in a statement directed at his GOP rival.

There was no immediate response from the White House.

After Saturday's lengthy round of talks, the chief federal mediator said the discussion was centering on money.

Late Saturday James Scearce, national director of the mediation service, said he had "asked both sides to review their positions in the light of the proposals already made."

Scearce said the marathon negotiations have solved many noneconomic issues. "We are now to the hard core economic issues," he added.

The 30,000 cannery workers represented by the Teamsters Union went on strike last Tuesday. The talks moved to Washington Thursday.

California Processors Inc., representing the cannery operators, has offered wage increases ranging from 93 cents to $1.43 an hour over three years. But the unions have asked for increases of $3 an hour over three years. Wages currently average $4.93 an hour.

Growers say they expect the crop to peak in about a week and estimate they could lose $2.5 billion if the strike lasts indefinitely.

The walkout has closed 70 California canneries that process peaches, apricots, pears, tomatoes, grapes and other fruits.

Meanwhile, the head of President Ford's team surveying the economic impact of the strike said there has been a "substantial loss" of the apricot crop whose harvest period is nearly over.

Charles Brader, deputy director of the federal Agricultural Marketing Service, added that the tomato crop, whose harvest period is just beginning, has been "sharply affected."

Brader and two other officials inspected much of California's Central Valley Saturday and Sunday.

Brader, interviewed before returning to Washington, described the inspection as "an on-ground verification of some of the things we had heard from the growers" in the negotiations.

The team is reporting today to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

California supplies much of the nation's canned and fresh fruit and most of its tomatoes, which are now in high demand because of the popularity of pizza and other sauce dishes.

THE VIKING PROBLEM

K. Z. Bradford, manager of the science test laboratory for Viking I, holds the type of small pin which caused concern because scientists were unable to move the soil-sampler arm of Viking on Mars. He is holding it next to a full-scale model of the lander which is used for testing at the Jet Propulsion Lab in Pasadena. The stuck pin dropped out Sunday and the sampler-arm is ready for action.

Patricia Hearst due in court to set new date for her trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was due in court briefly today to set a new date for her trial on criminal charges that include assault, robbery and kidnaping.

The trial previously had been scheduled to begin today. But it was postponed when she was ordered to continue a psychiatric evaluation being conducted to help determine her sentence on a bank robbery conviction in San Francisco.

U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick has extended her stay at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in San Diego until Oct. 7, so presumably her trial will begin after that.

The hearing was to be held in the same courtroom as the trial, now being conducted, of Miss Hearst's former companions and codefendants, William and Emily Harris. Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler, who is hearing the Harris case, planned to recess their trial briefly upon Miss Hearst's arrival.

Superior Court Judge William Ritzi has been assigned to handle the proceedings in Miss Hearst's case.

Her appearance comes in the midst of a controversy about the validity of a tape recording of the Harrises and Miss Hearst which the prosecution hopes to enter as evidence against the Harrises. The defense has questioned the tape's authenticity and argued the prosecution cannot prove it has not been altered.

However, authorities said they do not plan to ask Miss Hearst any questions about the tape recording during today's court appearance.

Dep. Dist. Atty. Sam Mayerson has said he would probably have to grant her immunity to do so, and has balked at taking that step.

Mayerson says the tape contains discussion of some of the events which led the county grand jury to issue an 11-count indictment against Miss Hearst and the Harrises in connection with a May, 1974 shooting incident at an Inglewood sporting goods store.

Proposed dam would force relocation of 340 persons

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The proposed Parks Bar Dam on the Yuba River would force the relocation of 340 persons and take 19,500 acres off the Yuba County tax rolls, says a draft environmental impact report.

The preliminary report was sent to a number of organizations over the weekend by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Comment was invited.

The $734 million project was authorized in 1966 for the Yuba River about 12 miles east of Marysville. It would consist of two dams, each about 7,000 feet wide. One would be a 368-foot high concrete dam on the Yuba River, and the other a 328-foot high earth dam on Dry Creek, a tributary.

The resulting lake would cover 6,640 acres with a 67-mile shoreline, and hold 916,000 acre feet of water.

Also, an afterbay would be built three miles downstream to regulate releases from a proposed power plant.

The report said the lake would cover the old gold town remains at Timbuctoo, the Englebright Dam, and nearby power plants operated by the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and the Yuba County Water Agency.

Included in the affected land would be 4,310 acres of oak and grassland, and 1,490 acres of agricultural grassland. The relocation would also affect 11 farms and eight businesses, in addition to the 340 persons.

On the earthquake danger, the report mentions two "linear features" which run from the surface traces of the earthquake last Aug. 1 near Oroville, 25 miles north.

Larry Bowermaster of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers explained that a linear feature can be "a fault that existed 20 billion years ago, or a ridge or a depression."

One of the linear features crosses the axis of the Dry Creek Dam. The other crosses the Yuba River where the afterbay would be.

The reservoir could provide 150,000 acre feet of water per year if conservation is applied during dry periods.

It would also produce about 653 million kilowatt hours of electricity a year, the report said.

Stolen coins are recovered

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The 17-year-old son of an Orange County, Calif., coin collector and three companions have been arrested and $250,000 in stolen coins and bullion have been recovered, police say.

The rare coins and bricks of gold and silver bullion were taken earlier this month from the Cypress, Calif., home of Dean Brawley, police said Sunday.

One of the youths booked for investigation of possessing stolen property was Brawley's 17-year-old son, whom police refused to further identify because of his age.

The rest of the collection was recovered later, police said.

Racial balance dispute sparks bout

State legislators 'talk it out,' then decide to 'fight it out'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A fight erupted between two state legislators following the taping of a talk show on the subject of racial balance, witnesses said.

"I've seen politicians mad before, but never anything like this," said Dr. Robert Docter, a member of the Los Angeles Board of Education and another panelist on the show taped Sunday.

Docter said the fight began when State Sen. Alan Robbins, D-North Hollywood, lunged at State Sen. Nate Holden, D-Los Angeles, after the taping.

"As soon as we went off the air," Docter said, "Sen Robbins took off his microphone and went toward Sen. Holden. He (Holden) was sort of physically attacked."

Witnesses said the fight lasted about a minute, until Docter and Hank Springer, president of a Los Angeles teachers' union, pried them apart with the aid of stagehands.

Witnesses said the pair had engaged in some bitter verbal exchanges during taping of the KNXT show, "Talk About." They had been discussing Robbins' proposed legislation which would prevent the Los Angeles school board from using a lottery to transfer teachers to achieve racial balance in the district.

Holden, a black man, had recently charged the bill had "racial overtones." Witnesses said that during Sunday's taping, Robbins, who is white, called Holden a "liar."

CBS employe Ted LaForte, an ex-fighter, said, "Robbins was trying to throw punches, but Holden was trying to block them off." He said he had to push the heel of his palm into Robbins' face to break up the scuffle.

Robbins, 33, could not be reached for comment. But Holden, 47, said he decided not to fight back because he didn't want to hurt Robbins.

"I'm in good condition and I used to be a professional boxer," he said. "There was no point in my trying to hurt him."

The show is scheduled for broadcast at 1 a.m., Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Natural gas blamed for blast at house

ESCONDIDO (AP) — Natural gas may be responsible for an explosion which ripped through an empty home here while its occupants were vacationing, firemen say.

Officials said the blast Sunday turned the house into a ball of flames and rained glass over portions of a neighboring country club.

"All they believe is that natural gas ignited," fire department dispatcher David Dunn said Sunday. "They're not sure how the gas escaped into the house."

He said fire officials have not ruled out the possibility of arson to cover a burglary.

He said damage to the home was estimated at more than $60,000.

Officials said the sole injury in the 3:15 a.m. blast occurred when one Escondido fireman was hit by a ceiling beam.

JIMMY'S WAY

Carter gets briefing on defense plan

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, are getting a joint briefing on defense policy today from experts on a Carter ask force.

Included in the Carter brain trust are several people who served as Pentagon officials under former President Lyndon Johnson.

It was the first of four joint briefings scheduled in Plains this week. The Democratic running mates are to be briefed on the economy on Tuesday and foreign policy on Thursday.

On Wednesday, CIA head George Bush will brief the two on national security.

Among those briefing the candidates today are Paul Warnke, former assistant secretary of defense; Paul Nitze, former undersecretry of defense and Cyrus Vance, former secretary of the Army. All served under Johnson.

On Sunday, the Carters escorted the Mondales to Sunday school and church, a family picnic in a tree-shaded churchyard, and a softball game between reporters and the Secret Service.

Since Mondale arrived in Plains late Saturday night, Carter has stressed his compatibility with his vice-presidential running mate and his assertion that the liberal Minnesota senator will be accepted in the South.

"There's no doubt in my mind that his acceptance in the South will be equally as enthusiastic and as friendly as mine has been in the North," Carter told a cheering crowd of about 300 who turned out to greet Mondale and his wife Joan at the Plains train depot Saturday.

The 48-year-old senator attended the Sunday school class Carter teaches in the basement of the Plains Baptist Church, and heard Carter say: "If we have faith in Jesus, if we believe that he is willing to take the punishment for our sins, we can be right in God's eyes, just as though we've never sinned." But, Carter added, "We have to admit we're sinners."

After church, the Carters drove their visitors to another churchyard five miles south of Plains for an annual picnic attended by numerous relatives of Carter's wife, Rosalynn,

William Spann, 29, in and out of California prisons

Jimmy Carter's nephew serving 10 years in jail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — William Carter Spann, 29, a nephew of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, is a California convict serving 10 years to life in prison for two armed robberies, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

An officer at the San Francisco County Jail said Spann was serving his sentence at the state prison facility at Vacaville, but was currently kept at the jail here as a material witness in another robbery case.

The Chronicle in a copyrighted story gave this account:

Records show that Spann has been in and out of California prisons since 1969 when he first moved here from the east.

"Coming out here was like stepping off the ground onto a carousel," Spann said of his first days in Los Angeles.

He was first jailed after convictions for car theft and burglary in Los Angeles County, paroled in 1971, then returned to prison in 1972 for parole violations including possession of a weapon, failure to report to his parole officer and reckless driving, the state Department of Corrections reported.

Spann testified in San Francisco Superior Court last week that while in San Quentin Prison from 1972 to 1975 he commenced a homosexual relationship with another inmate, James Yarborough. The relationship was continued after their release.

Spann said he had told his mother and Carter's sister, Gloria Spann, he had received death threats in prison when it was learned he planned to testify as a prosecution witness.

"She told me 'We're too involved in this campaign' to help...she told me to live my own life..." Spann said in the interview.

The candidate's press secretary, Rex Granum, told the Chronicle that he would not comment on Spann's complaints of death theats.

"It's not the role of the campaign to speak on behalf of the candidate's sister," he said.

Spann went back into prison last month after his conviction for two San Francisco armed robberies in March, including a $60 stickup from a Market Street tavern. The second robbery involved the stickup of two rooming house employes for an unspecified amount of cash. Spann pleaded guilty to both offenses. He was sentenced May 26.

Spann said in the interview that at the time of the robberies he was "so high on speed and heroin that I couldn't remember what had happened. It was like I was on a roller coaster."

Prison records show that Spann was treated in a prison hospital for drug addiction in 1974.

Spann said that before his move to California he had spent most of his childhood on the Carter family peanut farm in Plains, Ga.

He was born in Americus, Ga., near Plains, the only child of Gloria Carter and her first husband, William Hardy. When they divorced, young William's name was changed to Carter, and he lived with his grandparents, Lillian and James Earl Carter, until 1951 when Mrs. Carter married farmer Walter Spann, who adopted the boy.

Commenting about his 1969 move to Los Angeles, Spann ruefully told the Chronicle, "That was one of my biggest mistakes. I need to be someplace where things are a little simpler."

3-year-old shoots, kills friend, 7

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nine-year-old Marie Barcrof thought it was play when a 3-year-old threatened her and her father with a .357 magnum pistol. Then she watched in horror as the youngster turned and killed her 7-year-old friend.

"It was just the awfullest thing I ever saw," said the young South Baltimore girl after her friend's death Sunday.

"Jeffrey just stood there for a moment with a big hole in his stomach and blood all over the place. Then he fell over."

The victim, Jeffrey Krausch, was shot once in the chest from point-blank range, police said. He was pronounced dead at South Baltimore General Hospital shortly after 2 p.m.

Police would not reveal the name of the youngster who shot Jeffrey.

The father of the 3-year-old is a security guard and neighbors said they had seen the gun in his car on previous occasions. But police said the 3-year-old and his 5-year-old brother took the gun from a kitchen table in a house where they and their father were visiting.

Marie was sitting with her father, George Barcroft, on their porch enjoying Sunday's springlike weather when the boy and his brother came out of a nearby house where they were visiting.

"He just came up to us and pointed this gun in my face and said, 'I'm going to shoot you and I'm not going to miss.' I thought it was just play," said Marie.

According to Marie, just before the shooting the two visiting children had argued with Jeffrey and a playmate about the younger children poking holes in the Krausch's front lawn.

The Krausch family lives around the corner from the Barcroft family and the house where the two unidentified children were visiting.

As far as the shooting itself, Marie said, "I don't think the little boy knew what he was doing."

"He didn't even say nothing to Jeff," Marie said. "He just pointed the gun. His brother cocked it and the little boy pulled the trigger."

The mortally wounded boy fell against the side of his house. Barcroft said he jumped to his feet and screamed at the two younger boys, who ran inside the home they were visiting.

Barcroft then called an ambulance as the youngster's mother cradled her son's head, sobbing, "Oh my baby."

"Jeff and I were real good friends. We went to the same school and everything," the girl said.

GI HELMETS

The new proposed helmet for the U.S. Army, bottom, is made of hard, light plastic and comes in different sizes. At top is the flat "tin hat" adopted during World War I and center, the "steel pot" worn since World War II.

GI helmet changing styles

ABERDEEN, Md. (AP) — The steel helmet that World War II GIs used to cook rations and wash their socks is going the way of the cannon ball and Gatling gun.

In emergencies, the old helmet had also served as a foxhole digger.

Researchers at the Army's Human Engineering Laboratory here have developed a synthetic helmet which resembles a cross between what a German World War II helmet and and the protective headgear now worn by motorcyclists.

Lab officials insist it was not modeled after the German helmet, but its developers have dubbed it "Fritz" because it has a protective skirt covering the back of the neck.

The design is an attempt to provide more protection and to make the helmet fit more comfortably by shifting the center of gravity backward and toward the center of the head, an Army spokesman said.

Final testing of the new helmet is scheduled for the fall. The Army hopes to have it in regular issue by 1980. The sixyear development project has cost $2.5 million.

Critics of the old helmet complain that it is heavy, uncomfortable and unwieldy. Unlike the new headgear, the old steel helmet comes in one size with a plastic helmet liner.

Developed in the 1930's, the old helmet is made of Hadfield steel alloy and weighs 56 ounces. Its replacement will weigh between 47 ounces and 53 ounces, depending on size, and will be made either of Kevlar, a substance designed by DuPont to replace steel cords in automobile tires, or fiber glass.

In 1941, the steel pot succeeded the flatter "tin hat" worn during World War I.

"Fritz" wouldn't be suitable for cooking stew or digging holes. The synthetic materials are not able to withstand intense heat and the built-in webbing prevents it from being used as a shovel.

"Yes, the steel pot was useful as a wash basin," said one Aberdeen researcher. "But that isn't what a helmet is supposed to be."

Iran floods take 14 lives

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Floods following heavy rains killed 14 persons Sunday in the Kerman district of south-central Iran, according to reports reaching Tehran.

The newspaper Ayandegan said a large region in the southern part of the country was under water. Heavy rain has done damage in other parts of Iran, but no casualties have been reported.

More whales go on beach

LOGGERHEAD KEY, Fla. (AP) — At least 30 mammals thought to be pilot whales beached themselves Sunday on this tiny island in the Gulf of Mexico and most died later, officials said today.

It is the third incident within two weeks in which deep-water mammals beached themselves in large numbers on Gulf Coast beaches or sandbars.

Coast Guard spokesman John Ralph said the creatures were first sighted Sunday afternoon on the beach of this island in the Dry Tortugas chain.

"None were dead when they first were found, but all appeared sick and dying," Ralph said. "Most died by this morning, but some are still alive."

Ralph, based in Key West, said communciations with Coast Guard personnel on the Dry Tortugas, about 72 miles west of Key West, were difficult and further details were not immediately available.

Last Thursday, five animals at first believed to be pilot whales but later identified as false killer whales beached themselves near Fort Myers, about 150 miles northeast of the Dry Tortugas.

One died, but rescuers were able to save the other four. The surviving whales were taken to a marine attraction where they were reported in good health.

A week earlier, 25 spinner dolphins died in a mass beaching near Sarasota, 50 miles farther north of the Gulf Coast.

Experts have theorized that a parasitic infection is affecting the sensitive sonar devices that the mammals possess. But no conclusive cause of the beachings has been determined. Pollution has been ruled out because these creatures live too far out to sea to be affected by man-made irritants.

Pilot whales are porpoises that vary in length from 14 to 21 feet and weigh between .75 and 2.5 tons. They travel in schools which can contain as many as several hundred members.

False killer whales are porpoise-like mammals that weight between 1,000 and 2,000 pounds.

Elephant rustling on rise

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Elephant rustling is on the rise and police have set up a special unit in an attempt to halt the traffic following complaints from the Wild Life Association of Thailand.

"At least 20 elephants have been driven from southern Thailand to Burma and dozens of others taken for ransom this year," said Boonsong Lekakul, president of the association.

Elephants are used as work animals in logging operations in remote or hilly areas of Thailand. The elephant population in the country has dropped from about 2,500 to 2,300 in the last year. A working male elephant is worth about $1,500.

The flag of the United States is mounted on the housing of Viking 1's nuclear power system in this picture taken July 23, 2:30 p.m. Martian time. Also seen are the U.S. Bicentennial symbol and a student-designed Viking emblem. The view is west of the spacecraft and includes a series of low hills. The blocky hill in the center appears to be a part of a crater rim. Light areas are dune-like and may be windblown sand or dust. The dark rocky stripes may be material ejected from the crater. Story about Viking activities is on page 1.

Five arrested in auto gunfight

Three Pomona men and two juveniles were arrested by MONTCLAIR police Sunday after officers intervened in a high speed two-car chase involving several groups of persons exchanging gunfire.

Arrested for investigation of attempted murder in the incident were Larry Paul Fernandez, 19, of 1744 S. San Antonio Ave.; Mario Joe Rios, 19, of Pomona, now with the U.S. Marines at Camp Pendleton; Steve Michael Duenas, 18, of 730 E. Grand Ave.; and two Pomona juveniles. Police are searching for several other youths for questioning in the incident.

Officers said several cars traveling at a high rate of speed on Holt Boulevard were seen and pursued. Officers said both vehicles were pursued at speeds of 80 to 90 miles per hour until one went out of control and crashed.

The second vehicle involved was stopped and its occupants questioned in the 5200 block of Orchard Street. Police said the drivers and passengers of both vehicles were questioned and gave statements that they had been shooting at each other. However, police said no weapons were found in either car.

Police said no one was injured in the crash. Police said the victim of the shooting incident was a juvenile from Ontario. Police said the chase began somewhere in Pomona and ended up in Montclair.

Three caught

Three Pomona youths, suspected of robbing and stealing a car from a Pomona man early this morning, were arrested by West End sheriff's deputies following a high speed car chase on East End Avenue from Philadelphia Street in CHINO.

The youths were booked in the Pomona jail this morning for investigation of armed robbery. Two youths were 17, and the other 15.

West End sheriff's Deputies Dan Clark and Lester Breeden said they observed a vehicle parked outside of a dairy store at East End Avenue and Philadelphia Street about 2 a.m. The deputies said as they pulled in behind the car it sped away at a high rate of speed. The deputies said the vehicle stopped at East End Avenue and Phillips Street and its four occupants fled on foot.

Breeden said that he and Clark finally caught up with three of the youths after a short foot pursuit and arrested them on a variety of misdemeanor charges. At the jail the deputies learned that the youths had allegedly robbed a man of his car in Pomona a short time before. The youths were turned over to Pomona police for booking on charges of armed robbery. Deputies said they found a switchblade knife in possession of one of the youths. The fourth youth that ran from the officers is being sought this morning.

Wrong victims

Two men are nursing numerous cuts, bruises and abrasions in the West End Jail, allegedly because they picked on the wrong victims in an attempted robbery Saturday near CHINO.

Jacques Edwards, 18, of 3159 Kellogg Park Drive, Pomona, and William Windle, 33, of 4366 Phillips St., Chino, according to West End sheriff's reports, were arrested by a vacationing Michigan sheriff's deputy and his half-brother, the intended victims of an armed robbery on Ramona Avenue south of Grand Avenue.

According to sheriff's reports Ivan Deering, 23, a Livingston County Michigan sheriff's deputy visiting his half-brother Bruce Harmon, 12228 Dunlap Place, Chino, were driving on Ramona Avenue when another vehicle pulled up beside them. The two men in the other vehicle yelled at Deering and Harmon to stop.

Deering and Harmon said they stopped and the two men approached their car. One of the men pulled a knife and placed it against Harmon's throat and demanded money. Deering, taking advantage of a careless moment by the suspects, disarmed them. A fight between the four men erupted, deputies said.

Deering and Harmon slugged it out with the suspects for several minutes before subduing them.

Deputies said that Edwards suffered a broken nose, broken jaw, a cut lip and black eye in the altercation while Windle lost several teeth, a cut eye and cut lip. The two suspects were treated for their injuries at Doctors Hospital in Montclair and turned over to local sheriff's deputies. Edwards and Windle were booked in the West End Jail this morning for investigation of armed robbery.

Deputies said that Harmon and Deering suffered no injuries.

Fights off rapist

A tiny Vietnamese woman fought off a would-be rapist who attacked her in south POMONA early today, police said.

The victim, 32, gouged the man with her fingernails but was slugged several times herself in a field in the 2100 block of S. Garey Avenue.

The woman, about 5 feet tall and weighing less than 100 pounds, was crossing the field on her way to work shortly after 6 a.m. when the man jumped a fence and approached her. She said that when he asked her for the time she saw a watch on his wrist and started to run because she became suspicious of him. She said he grabbed her and tried to pull off her clothing. She scratched him and he slugged her. When she began screaming he ran, vaulted the fence and fled.

Police Officer Michael Bouse, who investigated the incident, said a market employe witnessed the attack but it was over before he could react. The victim declined immediate medical attention for facial injuries she suffered.

The attacker was described as black, of indefinite age, wearing a bluish plaid shirt and dark trousers.

Suspect nabbed

A 19-year-old Glendora man was caught inside the burglarized McCoy's Market at 3200 N. Garey Ave. early Sunday morning, POMONA police reported.

The young man, Danny Guy Day, was found atop a refrigerator after police, summoned to the store by a burglar alarm, were admitted to the building by the manager. They had called him from his home.

Officers said Day entered the building by climbing to the roof and squeezing through a window. They said he told them he had been visiting a friend in Pomona earlier and had been drinking beer. He was booked on suspicion of burglary.

Mississippi's 30 GOP delegates remain uncommitted

By The Associated Press

Mississippi's 30 Republican delegate-votes could have put President Ford within a political inch of the GOP nomination, but the delegation voted to stay uncommitted until the convention. So the Republican presidential contenders keep scrambling for delegates while the Democratic ticket starts writing its policy proposals.

The Mississippi delegates, the only full state delegation still unaligned either with Ford or challenger Ronald Reagan, also reaffirmed on Sunday an agreement to vote as a bloc.

But they gave no clear sign which candidate will win their votes. Both camps lobbied fiercely and both claimed strong support.

Ford has 1,096 delegates and Reagan 1,024, according to a survey by The Associated Press. The winner needs 1,130 and there are 138 delegates still uncommitted. Both candidates claim enough votes now to win the nomination.

Reagan announced Sunday that he would make "a major campaign statement" today. There were no details but one aide said it would be "a positive statement" for the campaign.

As the Mississippi delegates met, Jimmy Carter and running mate Walter F. Mondale prepared for a week-long session in Plains, Ga. with Democratic economic and foreign policy advisers.

Reagan spent Sunday taping television interviews and Ford was on the golf course as their aides lobbied for support in Mississippi.

The White House announced that Ford would meet with the Maryland delegation at a White House reception todayand had invited Pennsylvania's 103 delegates for a similar session on Thursday.

All 43 Maryland delegates are committed to For and most of the Pennsylvania delegates support the President, but White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford isn't taking any chances.

In Plains, Carter said he believed the Democratic ticket was a "pretty good melding between North and the South." The candidate, his running mate and their Secret Service detail played a game of softba l ith relatives and visiting reporters Sunday night.

In other weekend developments:

—Carter told Time magazine in an interview published Sunday that his major problem remained recognition. "My major vulnerability is that people still don't know who I am or what I stand for on specific issues.

—Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., saying voters wouldn't be fooled by Carter's "messianic smile," predicted Ford will win both his party's nomination and the general election next November.

Russians again fail to destroy satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have suffered their third straight failure this year in testing a satellite-destroying system, U.S. intelligence sources report.

The latest failure occurred July 21 when a Russian Hunter satellite failed to stay in orbit, the sources say.

According to U.S. specialists, the Hunter satellite was sent up to try to destroy Russia's Cosmos 839 satellite which had been lofted into orbit 12 days earlier.

American analysts say they do not know what is causing Russia's apparent technical problems.

The Russian effort to develop an operational anti-satellite system dates back about 10 years and has proceeded in fits and starts.

There were only five successful launchings out of more than 20 attempts before testing halted in 1971. Soviet flight tests resumed in February and all three attempts since then have been flops, U.S. intelligence sources say.

The Russian satellite destroyer is said to be a vehicle about 20 feet long, weighing about 2½ tons at launch.

Equipped with five main rocket engines for making orbital adjustments and maneuvering, the interceptor is believed capable of closing in on its target at the rate of 1,300 feet per second. Experts say it can come within 100 feet or less of the target satellite before exploding on radio command from the ground. Intercepts have been made at altitudes between 120 and 550 nautical miles, U.S. sources say.

There are obvious military advantages to being able to knock down or blind an opponent's intelligence-gathering satellite. Spy satellites using cameras, infra-red sensors and various other monitoring devices are particularly important to the United States as a means of keeping track of missile tests, deployments and other military developments inside Russia.

Of special concern are U.S. satellites on guard against possible Russian missile attack.

Dr. Malcolm Currie, the Pentagon's research chief, said last winter that "we are very concerned about satellite vulnerability." He said U.S. scientists are working on ways of assuring the survival of American satellites.

Currie did not elaborate, but it is known that the United States has been testing secret new types of power generators and mechanisms designed to keep space vehicles in proper orbital position and in action in the event of Soviet efforts to disable them.

The United States has not tried to develop its own satellite-killing weapons systems since the 1960s.

The 1972 nuclear arms limitation agreement forbids Russia and the United States from interfering with each other's spy satellites or with any other means of monitoring compliance with that agreement.

However, the 1972 pact does not prohibit the Russians from testing an anti-satellite system, so long as they do not deploy it.

UC economist cites benefits of made-jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A University of California economist says federally funded jobs programs do provide a quick pick-me-up in times of recession.

Michael Wiseman's findings may reassure congressmen who last Thursday overrode President Ford's veto of a $4 billion federal jobs bill.

However, Wiseman based his study not on the jobs included in the new public works bill, but on a $1.6 billion federal program that created jobs at the city and state levels in 1974 and 1975.

Wiseman, who teaches at the University of California at Berkeley, reached no firm conclusion on whether job programs provide more lift to the economy than alternative antirecession moves, such as increased tax incentives in the private sector to expand employment.

But he found that the vast majority of the jobs created with federal funds would not have existed otherwise; over 80 per cent of the persons hired had not been receiving even unemployment benefits, and a third of them were blacks and other minorities, who have been hit hardest by unemployment.

Most important, according to Wiseman, the programs proved the government can create a quarter-million jobs within six months.

At the height of the programs in late 1975, about 360,000 persons were employed at an average salary of about $8,000 a year. There were 8 million unemployed at that time.

Among the drawbacks cited by Wiseman were that one-fifth of those hired already had jobs, according to one study. Also, about 10 per cent of the jobs would have been created anyway by local governments without the federal subsidy. And he found that unskilled people benefited least from the program.

The Brookings Institution released Wiseman's study Sunday in one of its periodic reports on the economy.

His findings prompted Arthur M. Okun, a senior Brookings fellow and onetime chief economic adviser to President Lyndon B. Johnson, to raise his estimate of the value of the public jobs program.

"I think I started out with a pretty skeptical view," commented Okun. Now, judging the program on an academic basis, "I'd give it a B."

Parasol ants

The parasol ants live in very warm regions and raise tiny mushrooms. The worker ants in the community bring in bits of leaf for the mushrooms to grow on. The pieces of leaf look like tiny parasols as the ants carry them along.

Everything grows—including nuts!

California: where abnormal is normal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Almost anything grows — and goes — in California, including nuts.

Is there something in the environment that nurtures human variety?

Examining the state's recent police blotter — the latest item being the Chowchilla busnaping — might lead one to ponder the observation by an easterner that "the United States is tilted and everything that isn't tied down slides into California."

The taking of the Dairyland School District bus on July 15 with 26 children aboard was a bizarre innovation in crime. But of late there have also been Charles Manson, the Symbionese Liberation Army and Miss Hearst, Juan Corona and 25 bodies he buried around the countryside, Squeaky Fromme and Sarah Jane Moore who tried within weeks of each other to do away with President Ford, and the uncaught Zodiac killer who once threatened to augment his list of at least a dozen murders by killing a busload of school children.

In fairness, most of the above were not Californians, but then neither are millions of residents of this state, named, incidentally, after an imaginary island. California has always been a dream: Forty-Niners seeking gold, Okies seeking farms that wouldn't blow away, Flower Children seeking waterbeds, encounter devotees seeking the touch of togetherness, everyone seeking sun. Most of them stayed on.

"It's the end of the country. There is still a sense of frontier," said Prof. Joseph Gusfield of the University of California at San Diego. "California is a community of less controlled populations, less likely than elsewhere to be open to the influences of past traditions, families, old neighborhoods, familiar churches. There's a fluidity, and that tends to bring people to form around things that are new. That's why cults flourish here. But that doesn't necessarily lead to violence."

California has been called the world's largest outdoor asylum, noted Dr. Donald Cressey, a sociologist at the University of California at Santa Barbara. "I think that's right. All the kooks from New York come out here. When students burned down the Bank of America here in 1969, every freak in the United States got his backpack and hitchhiked to Santa Barbara."

The search by the rootless for an identity has led to what professor Warren Klapp has called "ego screaming." Said Gusfield: "The individual finds it more and more necessary to take on a more flamboyant way of presenting himself. In his clothing, his manner. He has to immediately make his identity known."

Beyond dispute, California is a land of extremes. It has the highest point in the contiguous 48 states. And the lowest. It has Disneyland and the Hollywood Pet Cemetery where Puzzems, Mack Sennett's cat, rests her nine lives until Judgment Day.

In the 1940s Encinitas almost became the home of the Golden Lotus Yoga Dream Hermitage but didn't for lack of funds. California has the Golden Gate Bridge that "people love to jump off of," said Sheldon Messinger, a criminologist at the University of California at Berkeley. "Almost all of them jump off the side facing the city. They don't like the ocean side." Keep the dream in sight right to the end.

A state that can make pictures of Marilyn Monroe's cleavage as well as ground zero photos of Mars can't help but attract comment. Westbrook Pegler, the acidulous columnist, thought California should be declared incompetent and have a guardian appointed. Comedian Fred Allen said it "is a fine place to live—if you're an orange." An old adage has it that California is what the United States will be next year. Las Vegas is what it will be like in 20. California, wrote Julia Sloane, "is the land of the second chance."

And so they come, to the end of the rainbow. "These people have left their kin behind," said Sanford Dornbusch, a Stanford University sociologist. "They get here and the norms break down."

"There is less restraint," said Gusfield. "Even nature is less harsh on you. Manson would have had trouble existing in Illinois. It gets cold. In California you can live without much shelter."

Out of the search for the pot of gold, comes a search for self.

"Who am I? That's why so many of the contact groups started in California," said Gusfield. "It's the need to create a person of oneself, of creating a membership because there's nothing else.

"Some take these frustrations a little less easily. They don't have their traditions to fall back on and take obstacles a little less easily. This sets up a kind of environment where there are a lot of ways of acting out."

Like kidnaping children on school buses?

"That's a very iffy question. No one has a good theory."

That includes U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., the man who prosecuted Patty Hearst. "California is a permissive area. And we have a broader spectrum of people than anywhere else. Things sort of feed on themselves. If one nut sets a standard of nuttiness, other nuts are attracted because they feel a base has been established. You know, 'come on in, the water's fine.' These things become in vogue.

"In the East municipal crime is quite common. We have very little of it out here. On the other hand we have more sects, fanatical people, either religious or political. But I can't make the leap from that to crime."

"There are so many partisans in California," said Gusfield. "The conservatives hate the liberals, and the liberals hate the conservatives. You get individualistic politicians. Nixon. Reagan. Jerry Brown. Shirley Temple, an actress. George Murphy, a soft shoe man. The political stability that comes from a political machine is absent," said the professor, who used to live in Chicago. "So we have anger in paradise."

Animal still worth more than a man in Egypt

TALKHA, Egypt (AP) — Financially speaking, Mussad Hagry would be better off if he were a water buffalo.

His take home pay would be 30 times more than it is now, and he would get free food and shelter, which he doesn't get now.

For Hagry is the lowest man on Egypt's economic ladder, a day laborer who is an immigrant in his own country, his sunup to sundown efforts can be had for 40 cents a day, of which he has to pay half for food and drink provided by his employer.

It costs $6 a day to hire a water buffalo, frequently used in agricultural or construction projects. This condition represents unfinished business for the Egyptian revolution of 24 years ago, one of whose basic aims was to make a man worth more than an animal.

Struggling to propel the country out of poverty, the government has concentrated on establishing industries, and most of the nine-million member labor force now earns substantially more than a Hagry or the water buffalo.

But there are still two million day laborers like Hagry, according to a study by the Ministry of Social Affairs, representing 22 per cent of the labor force. Most are jobless for more than 12 days a year. The hard-pressed government is only now getting around to giving them some help.

Every morning, seven days a week, he rises at dawn when the crew boss bangs on the hovel he sleeps in. He washes in untreated water from the Nile River and then has breakfast, a crust of bread and a glass of sweet tea.

Then with a straw basket and hoe he and the rest of the crew head for the muddy construction site near this Nile Delta town, 78 miles northeast of Cairo, to dig an irrigation canal.

Under a hot sun he works until noon. Lunch is a piece of cheese, bread, an onion and another glass of tea. Then it's back to work until sunset.

Like millions of Egyptians who lived on the banks of the Nile for centuries, Hagry accepts his fate with patience and says it is God's will.

Relieves Tormenting Rectal Pain And Itch, Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...Due to inflammation. Gives prompt, temporary relief from such burning itch and pain in many cases.

The burning itch and pain caused by infection and inflammation in hemorrhoidal tissues can cause much suffering. But there is an exclusive formulation that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from this itch and pain so that the sufferer is more comfortable again. It also actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation and infection.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center reported similar successful results in many cases. This is the same medication you can buy at any drug counter under the name Preparation H®.

Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed surface area and it doesn't sting or smart. In fact, it has very soothing qualities which make it especially helpful during the night when itching becomes more intense.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Key Facts* About the U.S. Prescription Drug Industry

Today's better medicines take less of your health dollar than a decade ago. U.S. Department of Commerce data reveal that drug products (prescription and over-the-counter) purchased by consumers take a declining share of the total medical care dollar. Ten years ago it represented 15 cents; today, 11.6 cents. Based on government data, industry economists estimate that prescription drugs account for only about 8.2 cents out of every dollar spent on medical care.

Joyce Brothers

Fight nervous habit

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: It never bothered me that I've always been a nail-biter until I met and fell in love with a boy. Now, I'm embarrassed because my hands always look so terrible. He's never said anything but sometimes I catch him looking at my fingers. I also run my fingers through my hair and pull it. And this draws attention to my hands, making matters worse. I do want to be liked. Trying to break these habits only makes me nervous. What can I do? — W. R.

Dear W. R.: Usually nail-biting and hair-twisting or pulling are symptoms of anxiety and nervousness. You want to stop these habits which are a manifestation of your nervousness, but you want to get rid of the nervousness too. Sometimes the root of the problem and the symptoms are so intertwined that it's difficult to tell where one stops and the other begins.

First, observe what situations are apt to trigger the nail-biting or hair-tugging. Write these down and find ways that will make you feel more comfortable in these situations. This will take time. Right now, substitute a less offensive habit. Instead of biting your nails, push your hands to your sides and clench your fists.

Then jot down the actions that accompany or conceal the nail-biting. If you cup your hands for instance, and hold it near your face, try forming a counter-habit. Getting rid of the accompanying action, such as cupping your hand near your face, will help you avoid nail-biting. Your hand won't be near your face and you will be forced to think before lifting it to your mouth.

Analyze and break up the sequence of events that lead to the nail-biting. When you become more aware of what you're doing, you'll find it easier to control your behavior.

At the start of the chain of actions that lead to nail-biting, begin the competing action — clenching your fist, counting to 10, reaching for a pencil. Let a friend in on your campaign and practice with her. Pretend you're in a situation where your habit would occur and think of how you're going to react in a new way. Don't hesitate to ask friends to remind you if you slip, and keep notes so you'll know what situations are likely to make you resume the old habits.

These are only suggestions for altering the symptoms of anxiety. What is perhaps more important is increasing your self-esteen and developing your potential. If you understand and appreciate yourself, others will like you.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband kids our 15-year-old son because he doesn't like to date girls. I'm afraid the kidding will destroy our son's friendship with his dad and it might make him afraid that he's homosexual. I don't see why he has to be rushed into something he's not ready for but my husband feels it's important. — T. T.

Dear T.T.: Your husband may not realize that when he "kids" his son as you describe, he's behaving in an aggressive, hostile manner. Teasing usually carries a certain amount of anger and the person who is teased is the victim. This can damage the relationship between father and son because no one enjoys being the butt of a joke or the object of laughter.

Children need to extend, rather than shorten their childhood. Psychologically, the young adolescent is still a child and there's no way to rush his emotional maturation. If he's pushed into growing up too fast, he may remain a child.

It would be wise to encourage your husband to examine his own motives more closely when he tries to push his son into premature dating. It is quite normal for a 15-year-old to feel more comfortable with member of his own sex and he should be allowed to develop at his rate of speed.

Swimming taught to tiny children

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — You're in the kitchen and your infant child crawls unnoticed out the door and tumbles into the swimming pool. Instant tragedy, right?

Not necessarily, says Gay Lee, a sprightly 65-year-old woman who has spent much of her adult life teaching infants and handicapped children how to swim and survive in water.

She has done what many people have considered impossible — taught infants just out of the cradle how to swimn even how to jump off a diving board.

"I got the idea back in 1954 after reading a story in the paper about a grandmother who was babysitting two kids, both under 2, who wandered off and fell into a swimming pool and drowned," she said. "It shouldn't have happened."

She then launched her own survival program, determined to prevent similar tragedies, and began teaching infants to turn over on their backs and cry for help the moment they hit water.

"They don't like being on their backs anyway, so they cry," explains Mrs. Lee, a longtime swimming instructor from Milwaukie in the Portland suburbs.

Mrs. Lee, who didn't learn to swim until the age of 30, has received numerous local, state and regional awards for her accomplishments in working with the handicapped and initiating infant swimming survival techniques.

She has taught thousands of youngsters and adults how to swim. She has taken many children who could hardly walk — crippled, palsied, amputees — and turned them into good swimmers.

She has demonstrated her techniques across the country, even internationally. Film crews followed her through the Scandinavian countries on a demonstration tour, and several African newspapers covered her swimming lessons in the pool of the Nairobi Hilton.

But swimming lessons are over, at least temporarily, for Mrs. Lee, who is now fighting for her own survival against cancer. She suffered a back injury in a fall at home last February and was hospitalized.

An X-ray then revealed a maglignant tumor of her spine. She's been hospitalized ever since.

She says she's not as concerned about dying as she is being away from the kids she taught.

"I just want to get out of here so I can get back to my swimming pool," she says. "We — my late husband and I — never had any children. I guess the good Lord didn't give me any so I could love many."

5-week summer ballet course

The Los Angeles Ballet School will conduct a special five-week summer course for ballet students through Aug. 27.

Hector Zaraspe, on the dance faculty at the Juilliard School and internationally known ballet teacher, will be the special guest instructor.

Since 1954, Zaraspe has served as choreographer, teacher and ballet master in the major dance centers of the world. Among these were the Joffrey Ballet, Vienna State Opera Ballet (as the assistant and teacher to Rudolph Nureyev), Dutch National Ballet, Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires and the Metropolitan Opera in New York City.

He has served as private teacher and coach for such dance greats as Antonio of the Ballet de Madrid, Maya Plisetskaya, Margot Fonteyn and Nureyev.

Others on the summer faculty include Irina Kosmovski, ballet mistress and principal teacher at the Los Angeles Ballet, a former member of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and a regular member of the summer faculty at the School of American Ballet in New York City; and Nancy Robinson, former member of the Joffrey Ballet and currently ballet mistress and instructor for the Los Angeles Ballet.

Joanne Vennera will also teach two weekly jazz classes. Guest teachers from the Los Angeles Ballet will also attend.

The curriculum for the summer session will include beginning through advanced ballet, variations, pas de deux dance forms, and pointe. Those wishing additional information may call (213) 478-0107.

Saxophone

The word saxophone originated from Antoine Joseph Sax (1818-1894), Belgian inventor of the instrument.

BIG MARKET — Moustepha Akkad, right, sets up a scene for Anthony Quinn during filming of "Mohammad — Messenger of God," in North Africa. Akkad reports great interest in the Middle East for the film and points out that there are 700 million Moslems in the world.

Syrian producer takes Peckinpah's advice, feels his epic will be hit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The gospel according to Sam Peckinpah: "If you want to become a film maker, don't screw around with menial jobs. Start at the top: be a producer-director and make your own film."

Once a film student at UCLA and USC, Moustapha Akkad followed the advice of the hardbitten Peckinpah. The result is the $17 million epic "Mohammad — Messenger of God," which Akkad produced and directed through a series of troubles that would have frayed the nerves of a Job.

"But I think it has been worth it," said Akkad, making final cuts for the July 29 premiere in London. "There are 700 million Moslems in the world, and there is great interest in the Middle East for the film.

"There is also a curiosity about the title and the subject in the West. My picture won't be a 'Jaws,' but I think it will be well received here. There seems to be a return to spirituality today, as the machine is taking over. I think people in the western world will be interested in learning about the Moslem religion. Nobody here knows that Islam believes in Christ, in Noah, and all the prophets, in the virginity of Mary."

Not that "Mohammad — Messenger of God" is a religious tract. It is a full-scale spectacle with Anthony Quinn as the warrior-disciple Hamza, Michael Ansara as Meccan leader Bu-Sofyan, Irene Papas as his wife, plus the Demillean cast of thousands.

Moustapha Akkad was born 43 years ago in Aleppo, Syria, attended the American college there and came to California to learn film making. After graduating he learned the bitter truth of 1950s Hollywood: there were no jobs for film students. Then he found work with Peckinpah on "Ride the High Country" and learned the invaluable advice.

Akkad produced and directed TV documentaries, notably "Cesar's World" with Cesar Romero. Then in 1970 the film maker decided to go for broke. He commissioned British writer H. A. L. Craig ("Waterloo") to write a script about Mohammad.

"We had one major problem: the Islamic religion forbids the portrayal of Mohammad," said Akkad. "I solved that by having the camera act as the eyes of Mohammad. He is never seen, nor does he speak, but you feel his presence as the action swirls around him."

Financing the film was the easiest part, Akkad claimed. The initial $10 million came "from sources in the United States, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Libya and Morocco." Akkad had an ambitious plan: to make two versions simultaneously, one with an English-speaking cast, the other Arabic. That was one of the factors that stretched the budget to the breaking point.

A $700,000 replica of Mecca was thrown up near Marrakesh, Morocco, and Akkad began filming in late 1974. Progress was slow. He was working with 40 members of each cast, crowds of 5,000, a 300-person crew that included 28 nationalities, filming entirely on location amid sandstorms and other mishaps of nature.

"I didn't realize how much longer the Arabic version would take," said the film maker. "The Arabic language is much more flowery, and the actors are more dramatic with their gestures."

The severest blow came when the film makers were expelled from Morocco because, said Akkad, "King Hassan had been pressured by religious extremists who threatened trouble because of the film." Mecca and the entire "Mohammay" company was moved by rail, air and boat to Tripoli in Libya, where the movie was completed in May 1975.

Akkad finished post-production in London, and Maurice Jarre ("Lawrence of Arabia" and "Dr. Zhivago") composed the score. He had to stretch his music for the Arabic version, which runs 20 minutes longer than the English-language three hours. Akkad is now negotiating for distributors in the western world, plans to release it with his own organization in Islamic countries.

George Carlin

Comic to spice variety series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Carlin has this kind of mind. "Ever noticed," he asks, "there aren't many guys in China named Rusty?" A short pause. "Guess the name never caught on over there. ..."

In September, the 39-year-old comic starts a 13-week gig on CBS' "Tony Orlando and Dawn," doing a five-minute monologue each week. The one-hour variety series appears in "family viewing" time.

Those who've only seen Carlin in concert, discussing such things as dope, bodily functions and how dirty words lose shock value, might consider his coming job coronary time for the CBS censor.

No way. For one thing, the show is taped and tape can be edited. For another, Carlin is a veteran guest performer on TV. He knows discretion is the better part of a return engagement. He's a realist.

Carlin, who started in comedy doing gags for pals on New York's West Side, used to be what's called a cuff-link comic, working top night clubs, doing safe, noncontroversial routines for big bucks.

He wore a suit and tie then. In 1970, when the nation seethed with youthful protest over the Vietnam war and lesser causes, he began casing his largely older, middle-class audience and pondered.

He concluded they weren't for him. He started doing stuff that then was a no-no for top night clubs — drugs, race, Vietnam. He deliberately antagonized patrons, burned his bridges and headed home.

When he began what he calls his "changes," the money was much less than what he'd earned in the saloons of the establishment, he conceded.

"But I knew in my heart all the other stuff would work out later," said Carlin, who lists his occupation as "foole" — Old English for jester.

"The money follows if you do the thing you love and do it well."

Dodgers happy to see Braves

ATLANTA — The Dodgers, happy to be in friendly Atlanta, open a three-game series here with the Braves tonight.

Believe it or not, the fifth-place Braves are the only other Western Division team besides Houston against which the Alstonmen have won more games than they have lost.

Atlanta has won three of eight and Houston two of nine against the Dodgers. Unfortunately, Houston is not a scheduled stop on this trip.

Beautiful San Diego is Waterloo for the Angelenos. Following Sunday's 1-0 Dodger victory, The Angelenos still had won only four of 13 games with the border city expansionists.

Safely out of the clutches of the pesky Padres, the Dodgers will send Don Sutton (10-8) against Carl Morton (1-7) tonight (4:30 p.m. PDT). Rick Rhoden (9-0) will try again for his 10th win Tuesday night against knuckleballer Phil Niekro. Tommy John (6-6) takes on Andy Messersmith (9-9) Wednesday in only his second start against his old teammates.

San Diego was a hotbed of enthusiasm and excitement . . . for the Padres as they hosted the Angelenos Saturday and Sunday.

A goodly number of the 38,511 hung around long after Saturday night's thrilling (for the San Diegoans . . . frustrating for the Angelenos) 6-5 Padre win.

"McNamara's Band," the musical group headed by Marine Captain Jim Eakle, was still playing on the main plaza as members of the press trickled out of the park 30 minutes after the game.

Padre fans dance

A goodly crowd watched and applauded and cheered and couples, that would look more at home dancing to Lawrence Welk, bounced around to Eakle's tuba, drum and tambourine combo.

It's not just a baseball game in San Diego, It's a happening. The band, with two pretty girls and two other male "helpers" moves around the park and entertains whenever the Padres are at bat,

The Tuba is painted green and yellow and bears the label, "Tuba Man." Eakle wears a yellow Padre jersey with the number 44 stenciled on its back. The girls wear Padre brown shorts and yellow sweaters with "Pom Pom Girl" on the front.

There is a "Sign Man" who holds up various signs such as "Beat the Bums" and leads cheers.

There is also a group of Padre cheerleaders (six pretty girls) wandering around leading cheers.

One of the local radio stations has a character dressed as a giant bird. A hyper-active type, he dances up a storm whenever any music is played. Circulating through the stands he greets fans, hugs kids (and pretty girls if they wish), leads cheers and goes out of his gourd when the Padres do antyhing at all.

With all this going on, it's hard not to enjoy a game no matter what the outcome.

But there was no joy for the Dodgers Saturday. The loss was all the more frustrating since a pregame meeting on how to hit against 17-game winner Randy Jones was highly successful.

Standing closer to the plate, the Dodgers produced seven hits and five runs in seven innings off Jones who had beaten them three times previously.

After leaving the bases loaded without scoring in the seventh, you would have thought the Padres were dead trailing, 5-1. But they came right back and tied it in the eighth.

No relief help

Stan Wall, Charlie Hough and Elias Sosa all had a hand in trying to stop San Diego, but to no avail.

"If you can't go to the bullpen in the eighth inning with a four-run lead, you aren't worth a dime," muttered a disappointed Walter Alston.

But Walter wore a happier expression Sunday after Doug Rau's fine effort. Rau scattered six hits in extending his record to 10-6. Lee Lacy doubled in the only run of the game in the seventh inning.,

"It's been an experience," said Lacy of his return (from Atlanta) to the Dodgers. "In this series I've played all three outfield positions and gone 7-for-14 at the plate."

Lacy is 20-for-54 (.370) since rejoining L.A.

Bill Buckner did not play Sunday. "Buck" hurt his wrist batting in the first inning Saturday night.

Pitcher Al Downing did not even make the trip to Atlanta. Downing, who warmed up but wasn't called upon (as usual) Saturday, was sent back to Los Angeles with an ear infection.

He'll join the team in San Francisco if his condition improves.

HERE 'N THERE — The Dodgers are only 8-16 against their Western opponents. Even the lowly Giants (next stop on this trip) have won six of nine from the Alstonmen.

U.S. Olympians on rebound

MONTREAL (AP) — The East Germans are leading, the Americans are on the rebound and the Russians are busily denying rumors one of their premier athletes is among the missing at the XXI Olympic Games.

American forces, down but not out after one of its worst days in Olympic history, turned Dark Saturday into Sunny Sunday with a gritty comeback that was sparked by one of the most dramatic moments of the Games—Shirley Babashoff's last-gasp winning anchor leg in the women's final swimming event, the 400-meter freestyle relay.

That victory, the continued dominance of the men swimmers, and a couple of gold medal performances by track and field men—including Edwin Moses' world record run in the 400 hurdles—served as the highlights of the American revival that came just in the nick of time.

East Germany, however, won five of the eight men's rowing finals, got a medal in every race and swept past the troubled Russians into the gold medal lead with 26. They also have 17 silver and 10 bronze, a total of 53. Russia leads in total medals with a 24-24-22 gold-silver-bronze count. The United States, which won only 10 of the 104 medals distributed Friday and Saturday, collected 18 of 66 Sunday and has a 21-21-16 count.

There appeared to be more trouble for the Russians, who will host the 1980 Games in Moscow. They've twice been accused of attempting to influence judges and had one of their modern pentathlon athletes kicked out for cheating. This time the problem involved Valeriy Borzov, winner of both the 100 and 200 meter dashes in 1972.

Early reports said Borzov either had defected or been kidnapped. However, the Soviets denied it.

"All of this is just a rumor started by the news media," Mikhail Efimov, the Soviet press attache said today. "Valery Borzov had a good sleep, is having breakfast and will go out to train this morning."

Borzov finished third in the 100 and withdrew from Sunday's 200-meter qualifying. Efimov said it was because the Russian sprinter had "aggravated an injury."

Sgt. Andre Laurendeau said the Montreal Urban Po;lice had investigated and were assured "that Borzov is in good hands."

The Soviet press attache said Borsov will compete in the 400meter relay later this week.

The schedule today includes five track and field finals, with the Americans hoping for a one-two finish from Dave Roberts, Gainsville, Fla., and Earl Bell, Jonesboro, Ark., in the pole vault. Medals also will be awarded in the men's 200-meter dash, 10,000 meters and javelin and the women's 800.

The men's basketball team, apparently headed for another showdown with the Russians, plays Canada in a semifinal game. Russia plays Yugoslavia in the other. The winners meet for the gold medal which the Russians won in a controversial final in Munich in 1972. The American women could gain a silver against Czechoslovakia.

Also on the schedule are finals in fencing, cycling, judo and the men's platform diving.

Relaxed Halos ready for K.C.

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels have found sudden success under new manager Norm Sherry at the expense of the slump-ridden Texas Rangers. Now the challenge gets stiffer.

The runaway American League Western division-leading Kansas City Royals open a three-game series tonight at Anaheim Stadium. There's an 18-game gap in the standings between the Royals and sixthplace Angels, who completed a three-game sweep of the Rangers with an 11-inning, 7-3 victory Sunday.

"This is as good a time as any to play them," said Sherry, 3-0 as a major league manager. "My guys have pride and don't want to accept being in the cellar and we want to take the division's best, too.

"I'm thrilled myself and thrilled for these players about this weekend. It's been frustrating for them to know they have the ability but not being able to do something about it."

Texas suffered its 16th lose in 18 games and has fallen into third place.

Sherry will be matching wits and players with Kansas City skipper Whitey Herzog, who paved the way for Sherry's ascension into the Angels' managerial job. Herzog was thirdbase coach for Dick Williams before taking the Royals' job in mid-1975. Sherry was promoted from Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League to man the third-base box.

A more relaxed clubhouse and dugout have been obvious signs of the Sherry regime. An instant benefactor has been Lee Stanton, who hit a grand-slam home run to produce Sunday's victory.

"I know I'm more relaxed and I know the team is too, both in the clubhouse and on the field," said Stanton. "We've always been trying to do our best but the ability comes out better when you're relaxed."

Stanton's deep drive to left field was his first home run of 1976. Last year he led the Angels with 14 home runs and 82 runs batted in.

"It's funny. Bobby Bonds and I were talking about grand slams before the game," said Stanton, who now holds the Angels career record with three. "He got one earlier this year and he said he was going to catch me today. But I won't let him."

Stanton's grand slam came off loser Steve Foucault after a leadoff single by Terry Humphrey and successive two-out intentional walks to Jerry Remy and Bobby Bonds. It made a winner of Dick Drago, who allowed a two-out, bases-loaded single by Lenny Randle in the ninth inning to deprive Gary Ross of an apparent victory.

California had led from the second inning when Terry Humphrey's bloop double produced one run and set up two more. Texas scored first off Ross in the fourth inning on consecutive two out singles by Toby Harrah, Tom Grieve and Juan Beniquez.

The Rangers have fallen from tight contention with the Royals to 11½ games behind. They are only half a game ahead of four-place Minnesota and only 6½ ahead of the Angels.

At Sherry's pace, that gap won't last long.

ANGEL ANGLES — Bonds plans to undergo surgery to repair his injured right hand on Aug. 15. Bonds arrived at the decision after meeting with Angels' general manager Harry Dalton. Bonds, who has hit 10 homers and has driven in 51 runs with a .261 average, has been hampered by the injury suffered in an exhibition game with the Dodgers. He will have his hand in a cast for 1½ months.

Bill Melton's suspension ended Sunday. He missed three games because of his argument on the team bus with the departed manager Dick Williams Friday morning.

Nolan Ryan (7-12) will be on the mound tonight against Al Fitzmorris (11-6).

Moses shows what Olympics all about

MONTREAL (AP) — It was a gesture that signified what sports and the Olympic Games are all about.

There was Edwin Moses, who had just set a world record in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles and won the Olympic gold medal, and his American teammate Mike Shine, the runnerup, jogging happily around the track, their hands clasped and waving joyfully to the capacity crowd of some 70,000 in the spanking new Olympic Stadium Sunday.

Then, the quiet, intelligent Moses did what all hurdlers dread doing during a race: he knocked over a hurdle.

But this time, there was no reason to fret. His gold medal was secure.

So he let out a big grin, and continued waving and jogging until he and Shine had completed their victory lap.

A short time earlier, the 20year-old Moses, an engineering major going into his senior year at little Morehouse College in Atlanta, had been a lot more tense, a lot faster and a lot more careful in streaking to a 47.64 second clocking in winning the hurdles title in his first international meet. John AkiiBua of Uganda had set the earlier mark of 47.82 at the 1972 Games.

Akii-Bua was unable to defend his title when Uganda withdrew from the Games in a political squabble.

"I guess I can chop some more time off the world record," said the bespectacled Moses, an "A" student in math and physics, "but I can't run 47 seconds every week.

"Last year, I was just running the high hurdles and open 400 meters," he continued, "just rounding myself out. I've been running seven years now. I guess it's about time something happened."

Moses is a virtual novice at the intermediate hurdles. He only began competing in the race last year—and ran it just once, before resuming competition in the event last March. Then, in June, at the Olympic Trials in Eugene, Ore., he blazed into prominence by setting an American record of 48.30. And he took one-hundredth of a second off that mark in winning his Olympic semifinal heat Saturday.

"I knew the race would be in the 48s, but Eddie was really smokin'," marveled Shine, who recently graduated from Penn State University.

"When he stayed in front and I saw I was second, I just kept pushing it," added the littleheralded Shine. "I couldn't believe Ed was pulling away in the straight after that super first part."

Shine's second-place finish was considered a surprise to most experts ... except him.

Pincay takes riding lead

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Hollywood Park's 37th thoroughbred racing season winds down today on a financially successful note as jockeys Laffit Pincay, Jr., who holds a lead of four wins, and Sandy Hawley battle for the riding title of the meeting.

The count stood at 123 for Pincay, 119 for Hawley, following a winning weekend for the muscular Panamanian.

Pincay started it Saturday with five trips to the winner's circle in which he caught and passed Canada's Hawley, 122-119. Pincay got one win Sunday on eight mounts. Hawley was blanked on all nine.

In today's traditional feature finale, the $125,000-added Sunset Handicap, Pincay is booked to ride either King Pellinore or Riot In Paris, and Hawley will be aboard One on the Aisle.

Neither was successful in Sunday's feature, the $160,750 Hollywood Juvenile Championship, won by Fleet Dragoon, the second betting choice of the 40,655 on hand. Jockey Frank Olivares rode Fleet Dragoon in by 2¼ lengths over Grey Moon Running, at 63-1 the longest shot on the board. Red Sensation, 40-1, was third in the field of 13 2-year-old colts.

Fleet Dragoon paid $7.60 to win, Grey Moon Runner $33.80 to place and Red Sensation $7.60 to show.

Pincay, on Super Joy, the favorite, finished seventh, and Hawley, aboard a 6-1 choice, J. George, was ninth.

"My horse ran hard all the way," said Olivares, "and I was never afraid of the second horse (Grey Moon Runner), catching us."

Commenting on his mount, Pincay said, "The move he made from the three-eighths pole to the quarter pole made me think we were going to win it. But he didn't keep going through the stretch."

The Juvenile was only the second start for Fleet Dragoon. A Fleet Allied California colt, Fleet Dragoon won as a maiden in an allowance.

Pincay's biggest win Saturday was aboard Bastonera II by a neck over the favorite, Miss Toshiba; in the $65,800 Beverly Hills Handicap.

Ontario halts drag racing

Ontario Drag Races, Inc., headed by former Indy driver Rodger Ward, has cancelled all drag races at Ontario Motor Speedway for the balance of this year.

The Winston World Finals Supernationals, promoted and sponsored by the National Hot Rod Association, will be run as scheduled on October 8, 9 and 10.

Rau looks good on 'flat' mound

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Doug Rau doesn't like the mound at San Diego Stadium but he has no complaints about the results he gets pitching off of it.

Rau shut out the San Diego Padres, 1-0, Sunday for the second time this season with a six-hitter that helped the Los Angeles Dodgers salvage a split of the four-game series.

"This probably sounds strange because of my two shutouts here," said Rau, "but the mound here makes me uncomfortable because it's low and flat.

"I'm not questioning whether it's a legal mound or not, but it does give me problems. I wound up with a sore arm after the last game I pitched here."

That game was May 26th and along with a sore arm Rau wound up with an 8-0 victory, stopping the Padres on only three hits.

San Diego matched Los Angeles' six-hit attack Sunday but saw a scoreless pitching duel between Rau and Padre righthander Dave Freisleben broken up in the seventh inning when Lee Lacy's double scored the game's only run.

"I hung a slider to Lacy," lamented Freisleben, who pitched a strong eight innings only to see his record fall to 6-8 because of the one bad pitch.

With one out in the seventh, Dodger shortstop Bill Russell drew a base on balls and then stole second base to set the stage for Lacy's decisive hit.

As it was, Padre left fielder Johnny Grubb nearly made a fine running catch on the ball but had it pop out of his glove as he hit the padding against the left field fence.

"The count was 3-1 and I was looking for Freisleben to throw me a breaking pitch," said Lacy, "Fortunately, I guessed right and hit it good."

"That has to be a tough game for Freisleben to lose, said Rau, "because he really pitched well. He looked like he had outstanding stuff."

Although the Dodgers won the pitcher's duel, their record against the Padres this season still is only 4-9.

"The Padres just seem to play inspired baseball against us," explained Rau. "It's that simple. Every team has problems against certain teams and I guess the Padres are our problem team this year."

Nonetheless, the second-place Dodgers remain confident they can overtake the Cincinnati Reds down the stretch. Lacy typifies their confidence.

"I really, truly believe we've got the best shot at taking it all," said Lacy, who collected seven hits during the four-game series against San Diego.

"We have great balance and outstanding pitching. All we need to do is get hot. The Reds could easily fold because their pitching isn't all that hot."

Lacy singled and doubled and Russell singled twice to pace the Dodgers Sunday while Rau struck out three and didn't walk a man while improving his record to 10-6.

First baseman Mike Ivie paced the Padres with a single and double in three trips.

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Is Jerry Pate the next Jack Nicklaus?

There are many who would argue there may never be another golfer as good as Nicklaus — who has won 75 tournaments in his fabled career.

But the way Pate has blossomed as a rookie on the Professional Golfers' Association tour this year, one can't help but speculate.

Pate, the 22-year-old Floridian who won the U.S. Open last month, added the third national championship to his collection Sunday by running away with the $200,000 Canadian Open.

He fired an Essex Golf and Country Club course record of seven-under-par 63 in his final round for a 13-under 267 total, beating Nicklaus by four strokes. The $40,000 top prize brought Pate's winnings to a rookie-record $128,482. He joined the tour last fall.

It was the fourth time Nicklaus was runner-up in the Canadian Open, the only national championship he hasn't won. Last year he lost to Tom Weiskopf in a sudden-death playoff.

Like Pate, Nicklaus won the U.S. Open as a rookie, in 1962. He is a two-time U.S. Amateur champion, a title Pate grabbed in 1974.

"It would be pretty tough to be on top like he always is," Pate said of Nicklaus, "but I'm gonna try."

Nicklaus shot a 65 Sunday. Yet Pate, a former All-American from the University of Alabama, turned on the afterburners and destroyed Nicklaus, Lyn Lott, third-round leader Bob Wynn and everyone else.

"It just seemed like every shot I hit was right at the flag," Pate said. "And I always had the right club...I told my caddy if I can birdie the first hole I'm gonna win this thing."

Pate — youngest to win the tourney — not only birdied the first hole, but the third, fifth, ninth, 10th, 11th, 15th and 16th as well. He bogeyed the par three 12th. He shot 69-67-68 the first three days for a tourney total of 267.

Besides Nicklaus at 271, Pate's closest challengers were Lott at 274, Ed Sneed at 275, Wynn and Bob Eastwood at 277. Wynn, who had an eight-under 202 after 54 holes, shot a five-over 75 in the finale over the classy, 6,696-yard course.

Only 17 golfers from the final field of 79 shot par 280 or better for the four days — despite ideal course conditions and weather.

Arnold Palmer, whose first tour triumph was the 1955 Canadian Open and who was among the leaders much of the way this year, wound up at 281, as did Weiskopf. British Open champ Johnny Miller shot 278.

"See you next year at Glen Abbey," Nicklaus told reporters. "If I can't win at any of these course, maybe I can win at my own."

The tourney — which drew 75,000 spectators this year, with 21,500 Sunday — will be held permanently beginning next year at the Nicklaus-designed Glen Abbey course in Toronto.

"This week I've played better than I have in 75 per cent of the tournaments I've won," he said. "In better than 90 per cent of those I've won I would have won with the score I had here."

Ben Crenshaw, who won $5,250 for his seventh-place tied at 278, took over the tour moneywinning lead from Hubert Green with $190,401. Green passed up the Canadian Open.

Ramirez gets chance to test his theory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico's Raul Ramirez concedes that Jimmy Connors is one of the best players in the world but insists Connors is not as good as he used to be.

Ramirez gets a chance to test his theory tonight when he meets Connors in the finals of the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships. The winner takes home $20,000 and the loser $10,000.

Ramirez, the No. 5 seed, gained the final round with an easy 6-2, 6-2 victory over Brian Fairlie of New Zealand Sunday, while top-ranked Connors breezed to a 6-2, 6-1 triumph over Ray Moore of South Africa. Each match lasted only a little over one hour.

Following the victory, Ramirez was asked about Connors' comment that he likes being on top because his opponents need to go all-out to defeat him.

"In 1974, when he was playing his best, maybe you needed to play 110 per cent to beat him," said Ramirez. "It's not so any more. So many guys have been beating him, and they weren't all playing 110 per cent.

"When I beat him, I played well, but not 110 per cent," he said. "I just played well, as have the others, such as (Eddie) Dibbs and (Adriano) Panatta."

Ramirez said he has beaten Connors twice and lost to him three or four times. Last December, in their most recent meeting, Ramirez defeated Connors in Mexico City during Davis Cup play.

Ramirez said, however, that Connors cannot be taken lightly or be considered just another player in a tournament.

"You just can't play one pattern with him," he said. "You can't think you can overpower him. You have to do different things, like dinking him."

On the other hand, Connors, who now calls Las Vegas his home, says he doesn't plan to change his style against Ramirez.

"Everybody knows how I play," he said. "I play the same as I did on my backyard court when I was 14. I don't scout anybody and I doubt if they scout me anymore."

Connors also would like to throw out his last meeting with Ramirez during the Davis Cup, especially when a newsman suggested that conditions in the nation's capital this week — hot and muggy on the clay court — were similar to those in Mexico City.

"No way," he said. "In Mexico, there was red clay, heavy balls and Mexican linemen. Everything was Mexican, even the food I ate was Mexican. It isn't the same."

Connors agreed that Ramirez is one of the top clay court players in the world, but added that so are Ilie Nastase, Guillermo Vilas and Bjorn Borg, all of whom he has defeated.

Ellis, Weinert win Motocross titles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jimmy Ellis was the overall winner of the fifth annual Oly Superbowl od Motocross, but he may have been upstaged.

Ellis won the first two 250cc motos Saturday night, but Jim Weinert, racing for the first time since Memorial Day after suffering a broken kneecap, won the Supercross Series before 65,842 at the Coliseum.

Weinert took the title after finishing fourth and sixth in the first two motos. Pierre Karsmakers finished second in the Supercross Series and Kent Howerton, who was hurt in the first moto, came in third.

Tony DiStefano won the third moto, just ahead of Ellis.

In the second moto, DiStefano challenged Ellis for the lead until the sixth lap, when he fell. Ellis went on to win the moto easily, although DiStefano got back up and finished an easy second.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Florida will have a World Hockey Association team this year, promises sports promoter Bill Putnam, but at the moment the only thing he's certain of is what the team's new name will be.

A deal to create the Florida Breakers by moving the Cleveland Crusaders to the Sunshine State has apparently run into problems.

"There is some question whether it will be the Cleveland Crusaders," he said in a telephone interview Sunday from his Atlanta home. "But there will be a team in Florida in time for opening game Oct. 15. I have two other teams I'm dealing with."

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A pair of Californians, Peter Pearson of Sunnyvale and Ann Lebedeff of San Diego, have been top-seeded for the 85th annual Pacific Northwest Tennis Championships which begin a week-long run today at the Tacoma Lawn Tennis Club.

Defending men's champion Steve Docherty of Portland is the No. 3 seed, but reigning women's champion Isa Ortiz Figy of Columbia is not seeded.

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Britisher Jackie Oliver won his first Formula 5000 auto race Sunday with some help in the engines of Al Unser and Brian Redman.

Oliver started from 14th place and won the 100-mile feature race at Road America in 54:43.2, his Shadow-Dodge averaging 109.65 miles per hour.

He edged Unser's Lola-Chevy by 4.8 seconds, having been trying for three years to win one.

Little Leagues remain busy

With no less than five tournaments going strong, local Little League teams have a busy week ahead of them.

Action starts tonight in the Pomona City Playoffs in the Major Division, (Ages 11-12) and City playoffs begin Wednesday in the Senior Division, (Ages 13-15).

In tonight's Major opener in the City Tourney, Emblem Club of the American League takes on the Westmont A's of Pomona Southwest in a 5:30 p.m. battle at the Pomona American diamond. The American field, located on the corner of San Antonio and Grand avenues, will be the site of all tourney outings in the Major Division.

Major City finals are set for Wednesday, August 11.

While the City Senior playoffs begin Wednesday, two Senior All-Star squads from the valley will be in action starting Tuesday in the Section 7 Tournament. That All-Star affair is set to go at the Highlander Little League field in Hacienda Heights.

Pomona American, the District 20 champs, will be taking on District 60 at 5:30 p.m., while in the other tourney game Ontario North, the District 23 titlist, will meet the District 19 champ at 8 p.m.

Highlander Park, site of the double-elimination Senior tourney, is located at Stitzel and Paso Verde avenues in Hacienda Heights.

Wednesday's openers in the City Senior Playoffs pit Taco-Rita of Pomona Southwest vs. Pomona First Federal of Pomona Northwest in one game and Pomona Police Association of Pomona American vs. the Elks of Pomona National in the other contest. Both games will be played at Ralph Welch Park and will start at 6:30 p.m.

The double-elimination tourney runs through Monday, August 9 when the City Senior champ will be decided.

The Major All-Star tournaments in District 20 and 23 are still going strong. District 20 All-Star play will resume on Thursday, with District 23 getting back into action on Wednesday.

Montclair loses in finale

Montclair concluded its American Legion schedule Sunday afternoon on a losing note as Redlands Post 650 up-ended the Montclair outfit 4-1. Montclair ended the season 12-14 overall and 8-10 in league action.

Redlands broke open a 1-1 pitcher's duel in the final two innings of the contest as they racked up three runs off of Don Pierce. The key play of the contest came in the eighth for Redlands as a walk and throwing error by the Montclair catcher gave 650 a 2-1 advantage.

Chet Dawson's ninth inning double with Tim Settles and Kent Neil on the base paths gave Redlands a lead of 4-1. Montclair could not mount any kind of attack in their ninth inning at bat.

Montclair's attack was stifled by the six-hit pitching of Redlands' hurler Elwood Smith. Outside of the sixth inning, when Montclair scored its only run of the game, Smith was not in any serious trouble. He fanned four and walked three.

Montclair's Don Pierce was also on his game as the contest only lasted two hours. However, Pierce faltered in the later innings as the Redlands' batters began to hit him. Pierce fanned four and allowed five hits despite losing the ball-game.

Here's an interesting football fact. . .Although George Blanda has played more seasons of pro football than anyone else in history (26), he does NOT hold the record for most consecutive seasons of playing pro football. . .Blanda played every year from 1949 through 1958, but then sat out 1959, and then played every year from 1960 through 1975, so the most consecutive years he's played are 16. . .Meanwhile Earl Morrall has played pro football every year from 1956 through 1975, so it is Morrall who holds the record for playing pro football the most consecutive years, 20.

★★★

One little-mentioned effect of baseball expansion is that now that the American League will have a team in Toronto starting next season, and since the National League already has a team in Montreal, it will be possible some year for the World Series to take place entirely outside the United States for the first time in history.

★★★

What's the fastest anyone ever played 18 holes of golf?. . .The world record is held by Len Richardson who once played a 6,248-yard, 18-hole course, holing out on each hole, in 31 minutes. . .Richardson was an Olympic runner and ran at top speed between each shot.

Women avert shutout

Swimming ended last night. And it ended on a high note for the deeply frustrated American women who were facing their first gold medal shutout since 1952. It was averted by an almost superhuman performance by 19-year-old Shirley Babashoff, of Fountain Valley, Calif., and three of her teammates.

It was a last-gasp thing. Going into the last event, the Americans hadn't won. Miss Babashoff had collected three silver medals, including one in the exhausting 800 meters just an hour earlier. They were facing the broad-shouldered East German women, winners of all but one event.

And the American girls won it by the touch of Miss Babashoff's fingertips over the East Germans in world record time of 3 minutes, 44.82 seconds.

"I'm very happy with all my medals," Miss Babashoff said. "I did my very best in every race. In the relay, I just got a little more help."

The help came from Jill Strickel, Hacienda Heights, Calif., Kim Peyton, Portland, Ore., and Wendy Boglioli, Ocean City, N.J., each of whom clocked her own fastest time for 100 meters.

But it was the outspoken Miss Babashoff who provided the heroics. Only an hour after the 800 meters she came back to swim the anchor leg and just hold off East Germany's Claudia Hempel.

"I'm glad," Miss Babashoff sniffed with a glance toward the husky, powerful East Germans, "I'm glad I don't have to walk around my neighborhood looking like a guy."

Petra Thumer of East Germany had to swim a world record 8:37.14 to beat Miss Babashoff in the 800. Shirley was timed in 8:37.59 and Wendy Weinberg, Baltimore, was third in 8:42.

Ulrike Richter of East Germany won the other women's final last night, clocking 2:13.43 for the 200 backstroke with teammate Birgit Treibers and Nancy Garapick of Canada second and third.

Elena Vaytsckhovskaia of Russia won the women's platform diving with Deborah Wilson, Columbus, Ohio, third.

The American men, even more dominant than the East German women, reeled off two more in a string of victories that became almost routine.

Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis., took the 100 freestyle in 49.99 and became the first man to crack 50 seconds. Jack Babashoff, Shirley's brother, was second in 50.81. Rod Strachan, Santa Ana, Calif., won the 400 individual medley in 4:23.68, another world record. Tim McKee, Newton Square, Pa., was second in 4:24.62.

In all, the American men won 12 of the 13 swimming events, set world records in 11 of them and accumulated 12 gold, 10 silver and 5 bronze medals in the strongest performance in the history of the Games.

They were kept from a sweep only by the victory of Scotland's David Wilkie over John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., Saturday night in 200 breaststroke.

But track and field victories by the lanky, 6-foot-2 Moses and massive Mac Wilkins in the discus Sunday, along with the United States' first individual gold in three-day equestrian, by Tad Coffin, helped greatly to restore American prestige.

The 6-foot-4, 250-pound Wilkins, from Eugene, Ore., won the discus with a heave of 221-5, well off his own record but good enough to win. Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany was second and John Powell, San Jose, Calif., third at 215-7.

Moses, who has been running the 400-meter hurdles for only a year, scored easily in world record time of 47.64 with delighted Mike Shine of Penn State second.

Alberto Jauntoreno of Cuba won the 800 meters with another world record, 1:43.50 and Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago was a disappointing third.

Annegret Richter of West Germany won the other track final, the women's 100, with a time of 11.08. Americans were shut out of medals in that one.

Coffin, from Stratford, Vt., and Mike Plumb, Cheasapeak City, Md., finished one-two in the individual standings in the three-day equestrian and the Americans won the team title easily. Princess Anne of Great Britain finished 24th.

The United States got only one medal in men's rowing, a silver by Cal Coffey, Jewett City, Conn., and Mike Staines of Philadelphia in the coxless pairs.

Big Leaguers drop opener

The San Bernardino All-Stars which trailed 4-2 at the end of three innings of play bounced back to win a 5-4 decision from the Pomona Valley Big League All-Star squad Sunday night at Corona Butterfield Park.

Gary Easly of District 43 won the ballgame with an eighth inning leadoff home run off of District 20 hurler Butch Long. Long until the home run had pitched a strong game despite giving up four runs to the District 43 All-Stars. Long in six innings fanned six San Bernardino All-Star batters.

Pomona Valley built up a 4-2 lead in the first three frames with a three-run outburst in the second inning. Pomona Valley added one to its total in the third. The big blow of the second inning was a run-scoring double off the bat of Mark Stanley.

Pomona Valley All-Star squad will return to All-Star action Tuesday night at Corona Butterfield Park to battle the loser of Sunday's contest between West Covina and Barstow.

A's, Otis exchange angry words

By Associated Press

Earlier in the season, Amos "No Interviews" Otis was trying to prove that silence is golden.

Now, the Oakland A's are trying to prove it to him.

Kansas City's Otis sounded off after the Royals beat the A's with a big rally Saturday. The A's, who can read, came out roaring with a seven-run first inning Sunday and went on to a 9-2 romp.

"Those statements contributed very much to our victory," said Manager Chuck Tanner. "We didn't have to have any team meeting. The team was sky-high and showed it."

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 7-3 on Lee Stanton's 11th-inning grand slam for their victory in a row under new manager Norm Sherry while the Boston Red Sox suffered their fifth consecutive setback and sixth in seven games under new manager Don Zimmer, bowing to the New York Yankees 6-5 on Chris Chambliss' dramatic three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth.

Saturday, Otis said that "ever since Reggie Jackson left, the A's have been dead," adding: "How many lies is Chuck Tanner going to tell today? Every time he opens his mouth he says the A's have won the pennant. Doesn't he know he is nine games behind?"

That was Saturday. Now the lead is eight games, down from 10½ a week ago.

"Those statements will come back to haunt him," Tanner replied. "They haunted him today. He played a single into a triple and grounded out with the bases loaded. Otis is a quitter, not a leader. Maybe when the going gets tough he'll quit like he does every year."

Oakland's big inning against Doug Bird and Andy Hassler included RBI singles by Gene Tenace and Claudell Washington, Ken McMullen's two-run triple—Otis missed a shoestring catch—and a two-run homer by Phil Garner. Tenace homered in the third.

"This was a big win," Tanner said after the A's took the rubber game of the three-game set. "It meant two games because we could have been 10 back. We still have six games left against Kansas City and I think we can catch up."

Yankees 6, Red Sox 5

Chambliss slammed reliever Tom House's only pitch into the bleachers to cap a comeback that began after Boston led 5-0 in the fifth inning. Elrod Hendricks opened the ninth with a pinch single off Tom Murphy and Mickey Rivers doubled. After Murphy retired Roy White and Thurman Munson with no advance, Zimmer signaled for left-hander House, only to have the strategy backfire on House's first and only pitch.

"I told him to pitch him tough and I didn't care if he walked him," said Zimmer, whose defending AL champs are just one percentage ahead of last-place Milwaukee in the East Division. "I was hoping Martin would send up Lou Piniella. I played this game the way I wanted. I would not make any different moves. It's been about the toughest week I ever had."

Brewers 3, Orioles 1

Bill Travers allowed three hits, one a solo homer by Paul Blair, as Milaukee completed a four-game weekend sweep of the Orioles. The Brewers scored twice in the second inning on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Dave Pagan following three consecutive walks and Tim Johnson's two-out single off Rudy May.

Tigers 9-5, Indians 1-4

Pedro Garcia's two-run triple turned out to be the game-winning hit as Detroit piled up a five-run lead and held on to win the nightcap behind a 17-hit attack. In the opener, John Wockenfuss drove in two runs with a homer and single, Aurelio Rodriguez added a two-run single and Garcia slammed a two-run homer.

Twins 13-4, White Sox 8-7

Pinch hitter Lamar Johnson's three-run homer in the seventh inning brought Chicago from behind in the nightcap and snapped the Twins' longest winning streak of the season at five games. Rod Carew's basesloaded pinch triple featured a five-run Minnesota rally in the sixth inning of the opener that offset five RBI by Chicago's Jorge Orta.

The Twins pulled off a triple play in the first inning of the opener when catcher Glenn Borgmann grabbed Bill Stein's bunt in the air and threw to shortstop Luis Gomez, who stepped on second to double Orta and tagged Jim Spencer coming down from first for the third out.

Lighter bat helps Phils

By Associated Press

The Mike Schmidt model is a popular bat in Philadelphia — popular, that is, with everyone but Mike Schmidt.

The Philadelphia third baseman prefers the Johnny Oates model.

Schmidt, gripped by a mild slump, tried Oates' lighter, shorter bat and wound up hitting a home run Sunday to help the Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 13-7.

"I just grabbed Oates at going up to the plate," said Schmidt. "It's an ounce lighter and an ounce shorter than mine."

Schmidt also had two singles and drove in four runs, a performance that lifted his spirits and boosted the Phillies' lead in the National League East over the Pirates to 13 games.

"The Pirates must have wondered what I was doing in the big leagues, the way I've been hitting of late," said Schmidt, whose homer was his 26th this season but only his fourth in July. "I'm telling you, the Pirates' pitchers were so hard on me it was a shame. They weren't even bothering to throw me breaking balls. Just fire it past him, they seem to be thinking.

Ollie Brown also knocked in four runs for Philadelphia — but he did it with one swing, on a grand slam homer.

Astros 1, Giants 0

Greg Gross' sacrifice fly in the 10th inning scored Wilbur Howard as Houston blanked San Francisco behind rookie Mike McLaughlin's six-hitter.

Houston had loaded the bases in the 10th off losing pitcher Ed Halicki, 9-13, on a single by Ed Herrmann, an intentional walk to Rob Andrews and a walk to pinch-hitter Ken Boswell. Gross followed with his sacrifice fly.

"You just have to go out there and throw the ball," said McLaughlin after picking up his first major league victory. "If I go down to the minor leagues I can always come back up. It's good to get the experience in now."

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3

Don Kessinger contributed two key singles and second baseman Manny Trillo's two errors permitted St. Louis to score four unearned runs. Winning pitcher Lynn McGlothen, 9-9, restricted the Cubs to a double by loser Rich Reuschel, 9-8, until Chicago scored three runs in the eighth inning on five hits.

Expos 2, Mets 1

Andre Thornton singled home Ellis Valentine from third base with one out in the ninth to give Montreal its victory. With the bases loaded, the Mets were playing a drawn-in outfield and Thornton lashed the ball over the head of center fielder Pepe Mangual for the winning run.

Reds 7, Braves 6

George Foster tied the score with a leadoff home run in the eighth and Doug Flynn drove in the winning run later in the inning with a sacrifice foul pop, leading Cincinnati over Atlanta. The victory went to Gary Nolan and was the 100th of his career. Nolan, 9-5, went seven innings, giving up 10 hits. Bruce Dal Canton, 3-3, absorbed the loss.

Planners to consider request for drive-through restaurant

The Ontario Planning Commission will be asked Tuesday night to approve a conditional use permit to allow construction of a Der Wienerschnitzel drive-through restaurant at the southwest corner of Euclid Avenue and Francis Street.

The applicant, Colwell Ray Hornacek Okinaka, Inc., Tustin, proposes a restaurant with 44 permanent indoor seats. The site is part of the Alpha Beta shopping center recently constructed.

In recommending approval, the city staff proposes that only one seven-foot high sign be permitted. This would carry the franchise name and give no reference to the types of food served.

The commission meeting starts at 7 p.m. in the City Hall council chambers.

In another matter, the planners will consider a city-initiated request to rezone about six acres at the southeast corner of G Street and Archibald Avenue from industrial to commercial use.

Such a change is needed to bring the zoning in compliance with the city's general plan, said officials.

The commission will be asked to deny a tentative tract map for 20 lots on the west side of Cypress Avenue north of Phillips Street.

The application was filed by Dwight W. Mize.

But the planning staff recently received a letter from Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Durel indicating the sale of their property to Mize had expired and the application for a zone change signed by them on Sept. 18 was also "null and void."

The Charlberg Construction Co. will seek approval for a tentative tract map for 37 lots located on the east side of Cypress Avenue south of Francis Street.

The city staff recommended conditions be added to the City Engineer's office's report requiring verification by an acoustical engineer guaranteeing that all houses constructed meet state interior noise level standards and the California Department of Real Estate public report indicate the tract is subject to noise from Ontario International Airport and may have a greater noise impact.

TELEVISION LOGO

Monica Morris, assistant professor of sociology at Pomona College, displays TV logo for "Celebrate the Years" television pilot programs developed at the college.

Colleges make two pilot films for television program

Two pilot films for a television program designed to educate and entertain the elderly have been produced in a cooperative program by Pomona College and Cal Poly Pomona.

The films were produced under the direction of Monica Morris, assistant professor of sociology at Pomona College, and funded by a $23,317 grant from the John and Mary R. Markle Foundation in New York.

Mrs. Morris is taking the pilot films to network television stations, corporations and foundations on the East Coast this summer in the hopes that they will have commercial use.

Students were involved in research, editing scripts and designing and building sets and the filming was a joint venture of the two colleges under the directionof John Steven, program associate in the instructional television department at Cal Poly.

Title of the series, "Celebrate the Years!" emphasizes the "up-beat" mood, but does not play down totally the needs, loneliness and frequent poverty of the elderly.

Will Geer, the "Grandpa Walton" on television, is host in the two pilot programs which demonstrate some of the times which might be included in a series of programs intended for older viewers, but which might be entertaining and useful for a young audience.

One film stresses the need for older people to find satisfying work. The second pilot film explains self-protection.

The series will include a leaflet service that provides more information about work opportunities and other topics.

The idea for the series grew out of a course Mrs. Morris teaches at Pomona College which deals with social issues tha are tied to particular age groups.

3 car-crash in Pomona injures three

Three persons were injured in a three-car collision in Pomona late Saturday night in which one of the drivers fled the scene on foot, police reported.

The accident occurred at the Corona Expressway at Ninth Street shortly before midnight. Police said the missing motorist ran a red light eastbound in Ninth Street, slammed broadside into a car driven northbound in the expressway by Robert M. Gilpin, 50, of Burbank, knocking it into a car stopped headed west and driven by Billy Ray Sears, 22, of Claremont.

Injured in the accident were Gilpin, his wife, Jeanne R. Gilpin, 48, and Sears' passenger, Monte Elizabeth Shank, 25, of Pomona.

Only Mrs. Gilpin was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where her condition today was termed serious. She suffered a cerebral concussion and was in the hospital's intensive care unit. The other two victims were released after treatment of minor injuries.

Police said the missing driver apparently walked away as a crowd gathered at the accident scene. His car was impounded.

Salary plan on Walnut board agenda

Walnut school board members may respond to collective negotiation proposals of both certified and classified employes tonight at 7:30.

The teachers' salary schedule proposed by the Walnut Valley Educators Association ranges from $10,337 to $21,890 for 1976-77. The approximate increase asked is 12 per cent.

The Walnut Chapter of the California Employes Association is asking for a 12.2 per cent increase for classified employes.

The proposal made by classified employes is fairly simple in form but teachers compiled a contract proposal 47 pages long including appendices.

David L. Brown, district superintendent, said today that the response formulated by the administrative staff for consideration by the board includes only items within the scope of the Rodda Act, which provides for collective bargaining.

He named specifically salaries, benefits, transfers and leaves but said no response is being prepared to a description of tenure, not included in Rodda Act provisions.

Banquet scheduled

The staff of Le Roy Boys' Home in La Verne will sponsor a scholarship banquet Tuesday for 21 boys who have done commendable work in school for the past six months.

The banquet will be at Sir George's restaurant in Pomona at 6:30 p.m.

The boys will receive trophies.

Pine to seek another term with Pomona school board

Elections to fill two seats on the Pomona school board will not be held until next March yet one member whose term is expiring already has announced he will seek another term.

He is Ken Pine, a Diamond Bar business executive, who has served on the board since Aug. 2, 1972.

The other member whose term expires next spring is Don L. Donnelly, first elected in 1969. School board terms are for four years.

Pine, in making his announcement, expressed "sincere thanks" to persons who sent cards, letters and gifts to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he underwent surgery July 8.

"I will be fully recovered within two weeks," said Pine. "I feel a new exuberance, a new attitude. I'd like to get back to work. I will run again in another eight months, get my seat back and go about accomplishing the goals we've set. I make a total commitment."

Pine listed the goals as "our policy on academic excellence, meeting recommendations made by the State Management Team, our Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) program, our bilingual program, a return to an emphasis on the basics, Affirmative Action, a budget we can all read and, hopefully, more education for the money we spend so we can reduce the tax burden in our district.

"Also, we have a new superintendent to break in and you all know how hard that is."

Pine won election to the board in July of 1972 to fill the unexpired term of Donald McCombs who resigned. He was re-elected to a full term in April of 1973. He served as board president in 1974-75.

Hawaiian senator to help John Tunney's campaign

PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Hawaiian Sen. Daniel Inouye will campaign in California this fall for incumbent Sen. John Tunney.

Inouye, a Japanese-American and a star of the Senate Watergate hearings, will stump, probably in September, for Tunney, according to an aide, at the Californian's request.

Tunney's Republican opponent is the popular former president of San Francisco State University, S.I. Hayakawa, a Japanese-American.

An Inouye aide denied that Inouye's efforts will be "for political maneuvering, like heading off the Japanese vote or anything like that."

The aide admitted that would be an obvious advantage, but by "no means the major reason."

"Sen. Inouye is a good friend of Sen. Tunney," the aide pointed out.

Tunney apparently asked Inouye's help two or three weeks ago.

Inouye has campaigned for other Democrats in the past and is not up for reelection this year.

He is the former chairman of the Democratic Senate Campaign Committee, a committee responsible for helping Democratic senatorial candidates.

The CCUL's Mt. Baldy Chapter is composed of credit union in West Covina, Pomona, Azusa, Upland and Ontario. There are 50 credit unions in the area of which 44 are affiliated with the CCUL. They have a combined membership of 52,096 and nearly $87 million in assets.

Going-away party held

Claremont city employes held an informal going-away luncheon Thursday noon for Mrs. Susan Smith, who has resigned as secretary for the city Parks and Recreation Department.

Mrs. Smith was hired by the city Sept. 13, 1972. She also served as secretary for the Parks and Recreation Commission during its meetings.

Parks and Recreation Director Fred Hawkins said that Mrs. Smith had initiated many helpful office procedures which increased the efficiency of the department.

At special meeting of Pomona school board

$37 million budget to be reviewed

The Pomona school district's proposed 1976-77 $37 million publication budget will be reviewed at a special meeting of the school board Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Diamond Point Elementary School in Diamond Bar.

Other items to be considered by the board are the possible appointment of a principal at Pomona High School to succeed Joe Andrews, the awarding of a bid for construction of additions to Garey High School, an application for additional state monies to provide more child care programs, and a proposal that board meetings be rotated at locations throughout the district.

Also the board will be asked to authorize an expenditure of funds to provide language development programs for teachers and to pay August costs of bilingual (Title VII) and Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) programs pending approval of applications for the 1976-77 school year.

Administrators also will recommend that Henry F. Dalton, coordinator of the bilingual task force in San Bernardino County Schools, be retained to test and certify to the proficiency in Spanish of teachers seeking the bilingual-bicultural specialist credential. Cost of his service would be $200.

A salary schedule for hourly employes for 1976-77, reflecting a 7.2 per cent pay increase (with the exception of student helpers and student aides) will be presented for board approval.

Acting Supt. Sidney G. Moses will recommend that an administrative regulation be revised, detailing the role of board members in the negotiating process with employes.

It will be recommended that these paragraphs be added to the regulation: "Individual board members will not discuss employer-employe relations on an individual basis with any representatives, designated or otherwise, of any employe organization in the district.

"It is the policy of the board of education that any and all communications dealing with the employer-employe relations from employe organizations be directed through the official board's representatives as specified."

Administrators are to present information on what Senate Bill 1641, the new state school aid package, will mean to the district in terms of additional monies and changes in adult education funding.

Property tax initiative

Into the vacuum left by the Legislature's failure to provide tax relief for homeowners has moved Los Angeles County Assessor Phil Watson. He is readying another initiative campaign to limit property taxes.

Filed with the state he hopes to have sufficient signatures to qualify the measure by January. Even so it wouldn't go on the ballot until June 1978. It will be Watson's third effort to alter property taxes. He made unsuccessful attempts in 1968 and 1972.

Watson obviously has concluded the first two proposals lost because he attempted too much detail in spelling out other taxes to replace revenues which would have been lost. He avoids much of this now and his proposal merely places property tax limitations. The problem of devising substitute taxes is left to others, presumably the Legislature.

As a practical matter there are only two kinds of taxes which would provide enough revenues to offset the losses which would result from his proposal. One is income and the other is sales, which Watson concedes might have to go to 10 per cent.

Because the Watson proposal will eliminate property taxes entirely for those whose homes are valued at $20,000 or under and reduce them by at least two-thirds for all others, it undoubtedly will find considerable support, initially anyway.

For the measure would limit property taxes to 1½ per cent of market value, give a $20,000 exemption for owner occupied homes and an additional 20 per cent exemption on all homes.

It would also ban the use of property taxes to finance health, welfare and educational programs. This will appeal to those who have long contended that property should be taxed only to support property related services,such as sewer and water lines, streets, and police and fire departments.

But the limitation on the use of property taxes seems to be the joker. As it stands property taxes average slightly under 3 per cent of market value. Limiting that tax to 1½ per cent would then appear to require substantial cutbacks in local government costs. However, since more than half the property taxes go to health, welfare and educational programs, the net result would be more money for local government to spend. It is quite apparent that Watson is not striking at what many believe to be the cause of high taxation, the unbridled spending by local governments.

And since Watson does not propose any limitations on assessed valuations, his proposal offers no long range protections for property owners. Rapidly increasing market values of homes would soon see the tax bills back where they now are and climbing despite his provision for cost of living increases in the exemptions. All that would be accomplished would be some temporary relief on property taxes in exchange for implied consent to raise income, sales and other taxes. It amounts to a move to force a massive shift of taxes without reform and without permanent relief.

What the Watson proposal may do, however, is to finally spur the Legislature into serious action on tax reform with the chances being good for homeowner relief along with some controls over spending by local governments.

This because Watson has included a little provision which would require a two third majority vote of the Legislature to enact new or increased taxes rather than the simple majority now needed. If the lawmakers fail now to revamp the tax structure satisfactorily and the Watson measure wins approval by the voters, future levying of taxes by the Legislature will be far more difficult.

Think on these things

There are many thoughts just as well left unsaid — opinions best left unexpressed. We can't always help what we think, but experience teaches the wisdom of keeping many secrets with oneself.

Whatever is left unsaid will never have to be forgiven, nor will it come back to haunt us when and if we have a change of heart. When we express an opinion, it rules us — but as long as we think and do not talk, we have control over it. Even in the most open conversations it is well to listen much and say little, for a broad statement very often reveals a narrow mind.

Have you ever seen a fear-giant? It works in great silence. You hardly know it is there, except that you feel a mounting discomfort in your chest and stomach and your thoughts take on a whirling action. Sometimes you help to hide it by telling yourself not to be silly — and the fear-giant goes on working.

Fear-giants work best where people try to pretend they do not exist. But they cannot work in the light. They dwindle into nothing and leave us with a feeling of absolute quietness and peace when we realize they are simply negative and in the light of truth they are nothing. When fear knocks at the door and faith answers — there's no one there.

Challenges bilingual program

Dear Editor:

I wonder if Ms. Dancer of La Verne realizes the disservice she is doing Mexican-Americans by advocating for them the self-imposed apartheid of a separate language and a separate culture?

The reason most commonly given for the failure of certain Mexican-Americans to take their rightful place in our society is ignorance of its language. If this is true then how can it be of benefit to Mexican-American children to encourage them in the use of a language which is not that of the majority of the people with whom they will be in close contact throughout their lives?

By this I do not mean that they should be deprived of the language of their ancestors. The advantages, both cultural and material, of being bilingual are obvious. But I do mean that our public schools are not obligated to take over the responsibilities of parents who should, long before they enter school, teach their children the language of the classroom and playgrounds they will share with other young Americans.

Children who are unfortunate enough to come from homes where our language is not spoken should, of course, have special help. But this help should be in English, not in Spanish. Teaching programs or best-books which make them any more dependent upon a language which has already proven inadequate for their needs can make of them aliens in their own country.

No doubt Ms. Dancer will reply that there are parents who have no English to pass on to their children. But whose fault is this? For any one who wants to learn our language there are adult education courses. In our own area there is the vital English program which brings teachers into the home itself.

Parents who refuse to learn the language of the country they live in have only themselves to blame if their children are at a disadvantage in the schools of that country. Perhaps if they were to do otherwise there would be fewer high school drop-outs wasting their time in cars plastered with La Raza signs and Mexican flags.

Ms. Dancer speaks of the pride the United States has always taken in "the diversity of its racial groups" as though Americans prefer the immigrants who cherish their foreigness by keeping to themselves in alien enclaves lest they lose what she terms their "uniqueness" and "conform to a single cultural standard."

Personally I feel that we have far more reason to be proud of those who have added to our American way of life the best in their own while taking for themselves (and gladly!) the best in ours.

Ms. Dancer quotes freely from the 1848 Treaty of Guadulupe-Hidalgo too freely it seems to me when I recall that when I read that document in the National Archives museum a few months ago I failed to see the clause which, according to her, entitles Mexican American children to special food in school cafeterias. She would have us believe that its terms remain "sorely unfulfilled."

But I have lived a lifetime among the descendants of the people to whom the Treaty Of Guadalupe offered full citizenship and all the rights of Americans and found that the greater number of those who accepted that offer and claimed those rights by becoming loyal Americans are, except for their Spanish surnames, indistinguishable from their fellow Californians. Nor has it been necessary for them to sacrifice either their Spanish language or their Latin culture.

Ms. Dancer also takes exception to the fact that Mrs. Becker objects to the use of Spanish-English ballots, stating that she "can think of no reason other than bigotry or a misplaced sense of importance for any person being 'insulted' by their use." I am not bigoted nor do I suffer from a misplaced sense of importance and yet I agree with Mrs. Becker. No individual who has so little interest in the country he lives in that he does not even bother to learn its language has a right to cast a vote in the determining of its affairs. I am not "insulted" as Mrs. Becker says that she was at the sight of such a dual ballot but I would be if I were a Mexican-American. Why, of all the ethnic groups, should his be singled out as being the one that cannot or will not learn to read English?

Ms. Dancer is very articulate and seems informed on many subjects, so much so, that I would like to apply to her for some information. She speaks of "Numerous countries" which have "for years supported bilingual and even multilingual programs." Will she be so kind as to give me the names of these countries and tell me whether or not such commendable programs are supported, as our supposedly faulty ones are, by public funds. Also I would like to know if these other-than-native languages are included in the curriculum because they are expected to enrich the student culturally, give him a practical advantage in the business and professional worlds, or because a minority group "demands" (the word is Ms. Dancer's) their inclusion.

I am especially interested in hearing about this program in Mexico. I have traveled the length and breadth of that country, with more than a casual tourist's interest, and yet never once heard of a public supported school that offered English courses for the sole benefit of an American minority. English in Mexican schools is an elective course, as Spanish is in ours, and is designed for the Mexican who wants it (and can afford it) for his own personal enrichment or because it will be of use to him in earning his living.

Another question, and this one about the Black Studies program with which Ms. Dancer was associated in Michigan; was this valuable cultural program conducted in English or in one or more African languages? Would the use of the languages of their ancestors (presuming that most of the class was black) have contributed anything to the meaningfulness of the course, and had the students demanded that it be taught in these languages would Ms. Dancer consider their "demands" valid ones?

And about our "biased" history books with which, although I am something of a reader myself, Ms. Dancer seems more familiar than I, is there in print (even if not in use in our schools) a completely unbiased text written by what she calls a Third World American, namely, Blacks, Latinos, Native Americans (Indians), and Asian Americans? If such a book exists I would like to read it. I am sure that its lack of prejudice would be most refreshing.

Ford's men savor victory

The war of nerves over the Republican presidential nomination has reached its final stages.

The public, caught up in the drama, is watching in fascination as Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan struggle for the last few delegates. There have been bitter, conflicting claims from both camps.

But in the backrooms of President Ford's campaign headquarters, his top political strategists are behaving as if the nomination has already been won. They have turned their attentions to what they acknowledge is the "uphill battle" against Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter.

Ford's campaign aides are dedicated to the proposition that the President's first duty is to get himself re-elected. To this end, they are drafting a secret battle plan, which they expect him to use in the campaign. Our sources have seen preliminary drafts of the plan which they have summarized for us.

The Ford forces are still divided over whether to conduct a national or a regional campaign. Some advisers believe he should stay in the White House and emphasize his role as the incumbent President. These aides acknowledge candidly that his latest campaign endeavors have been disappointing.

One confidential paper suggests the final strategy should be determined by his choice of running mate. If he selects an aggressive campaigner like ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally, Ford should not campaign actively. But if he chooses a lackluster running mate like Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, the President may be needed on the campaign trail.

His personal preference, he has told senior White House aides, is "to run a national campaign," soliciting electoral votes in all 50 states. But many aides, disagreeing, want to concentrate on "selected areas."

His astute campaign strategist, Stu Spencer, favors the regional approach. "The President must pick off some of the big ones in the Midwest to win the election," Spencer has advised. "We can't blanket the nation." He has mentioned Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Ford has the best chance of beating Carter in the Midwestern states, in the opinion of most campaign aides. They also would like him to make a special effort to pick up a few of the heavily populated states, such as California, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Despite Carter's appeal in the South, some Ford strategists, including Spencer, have counseled against writing off the South. They also believe the President can win some of the border states. But they have little hope of winning New York and will advise Ford, therefore, not to waste too much time there.

The President's strategists believe Jimmy Carter is vulnerable, despite his current formidable lead in the popularity polls. They will try to capitalize on what they describe as "a vague feeling of unease about Carter."

Carter: Now the tough part

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Jimmy Carter's strategy is clear: To convince labor leaders he would be willing to see a destruction of right-to-work laws and simultaneously to reassure non-union working men and employers he would not work to abolish those laws where they exist.

To convince the anti-abortion groups he personally is against abortion and to reassure the pro-abortion advocates he would not stand in the way of more liberal abortion laws.

To convince women's groups he is in favor of equal representation in government, in employment, at Democratic party conventions while standing four-square against quotas.

To convince liberals he is heart and soul with them by the selection of Walter Mondale, Hubert Humphrey's protege from Minnesota as his vice-presidential running mate and by repeated assertions he sees eye to eye with Mondale on every important issue the two have discussed, while reassuring Southerners in particular and conservatives generally with repeated reminders that he grew up in one of the most conservative communities in the South and by insistent references to the importance of private industry, financial conservatism, budget balancing and efficiency.

To convince those in favor of expanded welfare, unemployment and health care programs he is one of them by outlining his concept of what needs to be done, while assuring those concerned with rising government expenditures that he will make certain overall spending will not be allowed to rise. There would, he says, be cuts elsewhere to match the increases.

To convince those concerned with military spending that he will make impressive cuts in the defense budget, while assuring those worried about the rise in Soviet nuclear power he would work for stronger defense — specifically that he would favor a firm increase in naval power.

To convince those disillusioned with government inefficiency that bureaucratic waste will be curbed while promising the bureaucracy that its economic needs would be met and its political power increased.

To convince those disillusioned with government bureaucratic inefficiency and waste while promising the government bureaucracy that its economic needs would be met and its political power increased.

To convince the unemployed and those who favor more government planning and regulation in management of the economy through an endorsement of the Humphrey-Hawkins unemployment bill, while reassuring those who fear such government intervention by expressing strong reservations about major aspects of that measure and by promising major changes in the regulatory agencies.

To convince those who fear he would be too soft in international affairs by threatening the sharpest sort of economic retaliation against the Arab nations if they once again imposed an oil boycott — while reassuring those who fear strong action by sharp attacks on Ronald Reagan's stance on the Panama Canal.

The Carter-party unity and harmony at the Democratic National Convention was held in place at a cost of submerging a good many of the issues and differences with hard fisted rulings against floor debate on a series of emotional issues, decisions made by the Rules Committee at the insistence of Carter's representative. These differences, however, will not disappear into thin air. What remains to be seen is whether Carter can keep them under control in the hard campaign that lies ahead.

The question in the end is whether Carter is a moderate who can convince those on opposite sides of important questions that he honestly understands and sympathizes with each, without offending and alienating the other side — or both — in each case. Thus far he has been remarkably successful in this attempt. But as each sector of the public asks increasingly pointed and precise questions — demanding less philosophy and more details on exact programs — Carter the candidate will face his most difficult moments.

From now on, whatever Carter says to one group will be televised for all groups to see and hear — including those with diametrically opposite views.

Mortuary fee finally paid

My husband died in April 1974 following a long illness.

He was a veteran of World War I and entitled to benefits of $250 for mortuary charges, $160 for cemetery expenses and, from Social Security, $255 in death benefits.

The Social Security and cemetery allowances were paid but not the mortuary charges.

The mortuary has contacted the Veterans Administration in Los Angeles many times. There have been no results.

Once the people at the Veterans Administration informed the mortuary that the file had been lost and a tracer was being started. Nothing has come of that.

I myself endeavored to get some action through the service officer of a local veterans' organization but nothing has been heard from him.

My patience has worn thin. I will greatly appreciate any assistance you can render. — Mrs. N.P., Pomona

Our letter to the Veterans Administration along with copies of documents substantiating your claim brought no direct answer from the VA staff.

But you wrote to us that through our efforts the amount due the mortuary was paid.

You wrote that we accomplished in a few weeks' time what you tried for over two years to get done.

We have had a problem with El Dorado Mint in Los Alamitos. We have been ordering mission ingots from this firm.

We are supposed to receive an ingot once a month. I end up writing a letter at least once a month before we receive our ingot.

It has been 2½ months since I sent off for the San Francisco de Solano Mission ingot. I have written to ask why the delay but have had no response.

The people there never let me know anything.

I wish you would find out why they take so long to send us our ingot. — C.A., Ontario

Our expereince with El Dorado Mint resembled yours. E.W. Randell of the firm replied a month and three days after the date of our letter.

He sent us a copy of a letter to you saying your San Francisco de Solano Mission bar was mailed to you two days after our letter was sent.

Since then another bar was mailed to you and a third order was being processed. Randell apologized for delays he said were caused by suppliers and labor.

He sent a note to us thanking us for our interest in your behalf.

We recently published names of several stores where canning lids could be obtained.

The lids were almost impossible to get last year and aren't too plentiful now.

Another source has been called to our attention by an employe of Budget Ranch Market. She says the market, located in Pomona, has more than 20 cases of lids.

He has a lot of company

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will let me reply to "Bedroom Trouble Up North." He's the man who asked his wife to wear black nylon stockings and a garter belt to bed. The poor fellow needs to be told he's not nuts.

Dear B.T.: I know how frustrated you must feel. Your request was reasonable, honest and healthy, not in the least sick. I admire the loyalty you demonstrated by seeking advice from Ann Landers. In your letter you said you didn't want to "run around," just wanted to know if your request was weird.

As a former call girl, I've met hundreds of men who needed an outlet for frustration, without making a commitment. I also met men who were bothered by feelings of abnormality because they were turned on by simple things like black stockings and garter belts. I know the scene well. Their uptight, small-minded wives had laid guilt traps for these imaginative, normal males.

There is no harm in putting a little zing in the bedroom performance. Husbands should not need to go outside of marriage for excitement. How sad that so many wives have been warped by man-hating mothers who taught them sex is a "duty." Poor things. Sign me — At Home With All Kinds

Dear At Home: As a former member of the oldest profession you are certainly qualified to speak on this subject in a way very few can. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I need to know if my girlfriend and I are related.

Her brother married my sister. Since I am an uncle of their son and my girl friend is the little boy's aunt, it does make us relatives, doesn't it? She says no.

I'm worried about marrying a relative because our children might not be right mentally.

I hope you can figure out what I'm trying to say. With a high-school education this is as good as I can do. — Andy

Dear Andy: You are not blood relatives, just kin by marriage. Go ahead and marry the girl, if this is the only thing about her that bothers you.

Dear Ann: I'm 30 years old, the mother of several children. I have a severe case of varicose veins, only mine are splattered-looking, close to the surface.

My family doctor said nothing could be done so I went to another doctor. He injected medicine into one of the veins which he called a "feeder." It made aarge scar and didn't jelp. Is there any way I can get rid of these ugly veins? I love swimming and I hate the way I look. — D.N.

Dear D.N.: I checked with several physicians and the consensus is as follows: The veins sound too small to be stripped. Injections will not help. Buy Covermark (usually found in drugstores) and if it's properly applied the veins will not show. Yes, you can go swimming. It's waterproof.

Dear Ann: What can we do to dispel the myth that "nice girls don't get raped and bad girls shouldn't complain"?

My aunt was raped last week and the way she was treated at the emergency room of the hospital was outrageous. She decided not to press charges. Thanks for your help. — Stumped

Dear S.: Your aunt should have pressed charges — regardless. She should also have reported her hospital abusers to the head of the institution. Most emergency room personnel are wonderfully sympathetic. Your aunt ran into a bummer.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up in one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. Joe Firman

Any future in Futurism?

Since my great and good friend Johannes Gutenberg first pressed ink to paper lo, these many years ago, one of the most popular written works has always been the gazing-into-the-future form of literature now dignified as science-fiction. ("Gutenberg, we don't like your type!")

(Never say sci-fi, as in sigh-fie. Aficianados call it s-f, as in ess-eff.)

From the Biblical soothsayers to Burgess' "A Clockwork Orange" and Paul Ehrlich's "The Population Bomb," propheteering has always been an exciting and lucrative pastime. Today, because we like labels, we call this Futurism. Wells ("Mind at the End of Its Tether"), Huxley ("Brave New World"), Capek ("R.U.R."), Toffler ("Future Shock"), Herbert ("Dune"), Azimov ("Foundation Trilogy") — the list is endless of writers looking into the future, some with hope, others with none.

One of the former is Herman Kahn, director of the crystal-gazing Hudson Institute, whose recent book, "The Next 200 Years" is a euphoric glimpse of a future of declining population growth, rising levels of affluence, ample energy sources, and food for everyone. You Kahn hardly resist his ebullient optimism.

Then there are the Cassandras of our society who issue glum warnings that the world is consuming and polluting itself to death. Ethnic injustice, nuclear expansion, overconsumption, war, famine and those other horsemen threaten a violent and ugly future — or possibly no future at all. Whose side are you on?

What do YOU believe about the future? (Never mind what you hope — we all hope the same things.) What kind of a world are you projecting for your children and your grandchildren? Police state or freedom through the world? Starving millions or ample food for all? Can we lick smog and the diamond lane? Will nuclear armaments be brought under control? Will any of us be alive Jan. 1, 2000? (Twenty-four years from now. Hang on.)

Leaving aside the astrologers and phrenologists, people are always curious about the future, about "what's going to happen," about the live and times of their descendants in a world they never made. "The human race," says Time magazine, "can no more stop prophesying than it can stop breathing." (In 1945 there were 35 s-f books published; in 1975 there were 900 titles. I'll say interest in the future!) (An optimist is the condemned prisoner asking for a doggy bag at his last meal.)

All responsible seers know that the future of Futurism lies in today — what we do about famine, poverty, nuclear development, international relations, power shortages, pollution. Our future, you might say, lies in our hands.

"Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow," Macbeth laments, "creeps in this petty pace from day to day to the last syllable of recorded time, and all our yesterdays have lighted fools the way to dusty death." What a Gloomy Gus.

With a responsible and informed attitude toward our lives and our world, humanity can control its present and future to assure that it is not "a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

I don't care what Jeane Dixon says.

Dr. Lamb

His chances of heart disease

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a male, 67 years old, 6 feet tall and weight 186 pounds. Is that too much? I'm in excellent health. I smoke a pack of cigarettes a week and drink an occasional cocktail or beer.

When I came home from a German concentration camp in 1945 a checkup showed an ulcer — duodenal, perforated — which I have lived with since without any medication. It hurts a little every spring and fall, but a good diet for a week makes it disappear and I can eat and drink anything I want again. So, why am I going to have a heart attack and what can I do about it?

I am very calm and get 10 minutes of exercise every morning, plus jogging 100 yards. I ask because I have these beginning signs — pains in the left arm near the elbow and sometimes little pains in the chest (but it could be pain from the ulcer — right?).

I can stop smoking any time I want to, but what can I drink if coffee, tea and chocolate drinks are out? I drink three to four glasses of milk every day. I certainly would like to read your advice in our paper.

DEAR READER — If we assume that your blood pressure is normal at 135 and your cholesterol normal at 210, you have 11.8 chances in a hundred of developing coronary heart disease within the next six years. That assumes that you have a normal electrocardiogram, don't have diabetes or some other medical finding. If you didn't smoke at all you would have only 7.9 chances in 100 of this problem.

Notice that I made two very important assumptions, that your blood pressure and cholesterol were normal. These two factors and cigarette smoking are the important ones that you can do something about.

If you want to decrease your chances of having a heart attack I would recommend that you stop smoking, and if you have any excess fat at all under your skin that you should go on a sensible diet until it is all gone. It really doesn't matter what the reading on the scales is or how tall you are. What counts is how much fat you have under the skin and you can tell that with a little realistic self-examination. People who get rid of the fat or never develop it in the first place have a better chance of having a lower blood pressure and lower cholesterol levels.

What can you drink? Water is still used by some primitive people and is surprisingly good at quenching thirst. You can drink fortified skim milk and not have a high intake of fat or cholesterol. You could drink fruit juices as long as you don't drink so much that you overdo your calorie intake. People who like a hot coffee-like beverage can use Postum. You'll find it tastes better if you use less than is recommended on the jar in the brewing of your cup of Postum.

You can't tell what ill defined chest pains mean. You should see a doctor and find out. They can be from musculo-skeletal disorders, digestive compalints, even arthritis or from heart conditions. It is a good idea to have a good examination and find out which of these is the real cause.

Meanwhile I would suggest that you follow a program that I outlined for people who are recovering from a heart attack. It works just as well in preventing the first one. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-12, After The Heart Attack, with this information in it. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Oswald: "If the bidding of today's hand looks peculiar it is taken from a book on the game of bridge which was succeeded by auction and then by contract."

Jim: "In contract, North and South would bid and make four hearts. In auction when declarer got credit for everything made they would play two hearts and make four. In bridge the dealer either made trump or said 'I bridge it' whereupon is partner had to make trump."

Oswald: "Once South made it notrump North could not go to hearts. West made the book lead (book of 1905) of the deuce of clubs. East's queen lost to South's ace and three notrump wrapped up. Actually, the hand was given as an example of great card reading by South. You led your longest suit against notrump and if you had two suits of equal length you led from the stronger one."

Jim: "I see what the writer was driving at. West had led fourth best from a suit headed by nothing. Hence, he held three cards in each other suit. South played his ace of hearts, finessed against West's queen and wound up making twelve tricks. The author never pointed out that maybe a queen of spades lead from that collection of trash in the West hand would have been far better."

How Ivory soap got its name

Everybody knows that the floating Ivory Soap was first concocted accidentally by a daydreaming factory worker who inadvertently left the mixing machine on too long, so thusly whipped too much air into the batter. Fewer understand how Harley T. Procter came to change the name of the product from White Soap to Ivory, however. A Bible reader was Mr. Procter. What inspired him was Psalm 45:8: "All thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces whereby they have made thee glad."

Q. "Louie, how can you call yourself a canine expert if you can't identify the famous dogs owned by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Richard M. Nixon, Lyndon B. Johnson and Mickey Mouse?"

A. Who calls himself a canine expert? Fala, Checkers, Him and Her, and Pluto.

Q. "How much does it cost to get a hunting license to kill an elephant in Africa?"

A. In Kenya, it's $225 for the general hunting license plus a $300 fee per elephant with a three-elephant limit. The zebra fee is only $8. Crocodile, $12. African lion, $45.

LOVE AND WAR

Our Love and War man sometime back reported sadly that it's an exceeedingly rare bridegroom who got down on one knee to propose to his ladyfriend. Not so rare, turns out. Numerous feminine subscribers have written in high pride that their husbands did just that thing, and mostly in recent years, too. The nature of the notes indicates beyond question that the one-knee proposal becomes a cherished memory in the minds of the ladies so honored. Our L. and W. man is thinking of including its endorsement as a plank in the platform of his upcoming Love and War Party. Along with such other planks as those that call for girls aboard submarines and detente with Women's Lib.

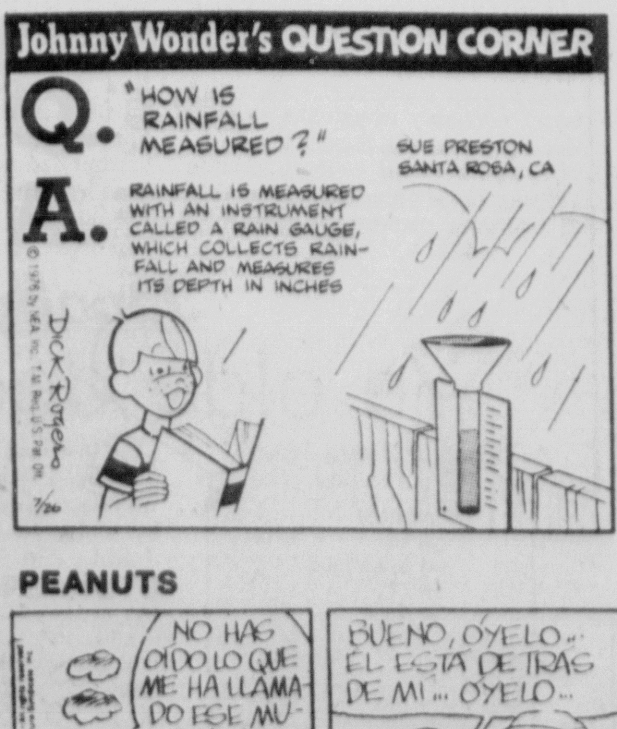
JOHNNY WONDER



Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "HOW IS RAINFALL MEASURED?"
SUE PRESTON SANTA ROSA, CA
A. RAINFALL IS MEASURED WITH AN INSTRUMENT CALLED A RAIN GAUGE, WHICH COLLECTS RAINFALL AND MEASURES ITS DEPTH IN INCHES
DICK ROGERS
7/26

The weatherman measures rainfall with a special instrument called a rain gauge. It measures the amount of rain that falls on a certain area during a given period of time.

Among the many kinds of rain gauges made, the simplest kind is shaped like a long, hollow tube closed at the lower end, with a funnel at the top. Rain enters the funnel and falls into the tube where it can be easily measured.

In the United States, rainfall is measured in inches. When the weatherman says that we have had one inch of rainfall, he means enough rain has fallen to make a layer of water one inch deep on level ground if none sank in. When he speaks of a "trace of rain," he means that not enough rain has fallen to be measured.

Rainfall means all the water that falls, including snow, sleet and hail.

There is much less water in snow than there is in rain. It takes about 10 or 12 inches of snow to equal one inch of rain.
